HOBBLES FOR WOMEN AS WELL AS SKIRTS

Georgia Caine Invents Contrivance Which Will Remove Danger From Wearing Tight Garments—Gets Idea From Race Horse.

New York.—Get out that hobble skirt—if you have not already made it into a dusting cap or slipper bag—for you can wear it with safety now. That is, if you equip it with the latest kink in hobble skirts—the hobble garter.

Never seen a hobble garter? Well they haven't been on exhibition much. But you may see one when Georgia Caine, the actress, puts one on the one she is going to wear.

Miss Caine was busy rehearsing a new piece, but she took the time to elucidate her addition to the R. R. O. skirt.

"The idea mine? Well, hardly; they've used it on race horses. Oh, no, not the kind I wear," Miss Caine hastened to explain. "But the principle is the same. You know the chief drawback (get that, drawback) to the hobble skirt, was its danger to the wearer. One step a little too long, or eager, and over you go. Or if it was a light gown—rip, and your knees would go through.

"Just like baggy trousers, that's it. Tailors somehow couldn't get on to pressing hobble skirts, and women became tired of wearing those ugly things that bagged at the knees every time they sat down. And one can't ride on the street cars continually, you know.

"My hobble garter is being made into the gown. Ordinary garters are tacked onto the inside of the skirt at the knee, and these are connected with a strong elastic. The elastic has been measured—well, rather gauged. I would say—to the limit of my step. The hobble garter will permit me to walk, but it will prevent me from becoming excited and taking a step past the limit.

MRS. SUYDAM IS OFFERED $100,000 TO WED AFFINITY

Plumber Says Father of Blue Point Millionaire Will Settle Fortune on Eloper.

New York.—Walter L'Esperand Suydam, millionaire father of the young Blue Point fisherman, whose wife eloped with young Frederick Noble, has offered to settle $100,000 on Mrs. Suydam, Jr., if she will agree not to fight divorce proceedings and to marry her soul mate immediately after a decree of divorce has been obtained, according to a statement made to a reporter by Harry M. Noble, father of the boy eloper.

The elder Noble was seen at his plumbing establishment in Nostrand avenue, Brooklyn. When questioned about a report that his son had quarreled with the young wife, with whom he ran away, he replied with a vigorous negative.

"There has been no quarrel so far as I know," said Plumber Noble, "and I am sure my boy's affections for Mrs. Suydam is as strong as ever. He intends to marry her and will do so as soon as the marriage is legally possible. Both these young people have done too much talking, but from now on I am sure that they will be silent. They have been advised by Mr. Suydam's lawyer not to discuss their affairs until things happen.

"I look for a favorable solution of the tangle before long. The attorney for Mr. Suydam, Sr., has offered to settle $100,000 on Mrs. Suydam, Jr., if she will not fight a divorce proceeding. Whether she has accepted that offer I cannot say. I am saying too much as it is.

"I have not seen Fred for several days, but I expect him to join me in a day or so and accompany me on a cruise down to Green Point. He will spend his vacation with me aboard the boat I have chartered for the cruise. Then, thank heaven, we will be safe from interlopers for a while.

"It is not true that Fred has lost his job with the Howard Dustless Duster company. He is still manager of their New York office and his employers think very highly of him. He has chosen the present time to take his vacation and that is the reason he has not been seen around his office.

"Both Fred and Mrs. Suydam have been in communication with Mr. Suydam's lawyers during the last few days. What the result of their conference has been I do not know, except that I know an offer of $100,000 was made to Mrs. Suydam.

Mrs. Suydam, Jr., is still occupying the little affinity flat in the Rogers apartments on West Twelfth street today. Fred Noble paid her a brief visit there, but he was the only caller during the day.

WAITERS TELL OF WOES.

Most of Them Hate to Serve Other Women.

Boston, Mass.—It is a penalty to wait upon women customers? The management of the Thompson's spa evidently believe it is for they have warned their waitresses that if they do not confine their conversations with men customers to strictly business, they will be transferred to the women's part of the restaurant.

A heated question has thus arisen among Boston sales people as to whether women or men are the best customers to wait upon.

Miss H. E. McKinley, behind the men's and women's handkerchief counter at one shop says: "Give me men every time. A woman will never take your word for a thing. She refuses to recognize you as an authority in your line of goods."

"But," said Frank B. Phinney, the proprietor of a picture store, "women are far pleasanter to wait upon than men, because they will always take your word. They recognize you as an authority in your line of goods."

Said Jennie Arenburg at a cafe-ter-la, "men are a thousand times easier to wait on, because they know what they want and they hurry right along the line."

"But," said Robert Nort, the head of a lunch counter, "women are always more apt to know just what they want and then to hurry through with it."

ning; they are continually sending the food back with a complaint and asking why it was made that way, while a man will eat almost anything you set before him."

"But," said H. E. Larkin, at a big soda fountain, "men do so much fussing and complaining and asking why a dish is put together in just that way. Women are so much more courteous and more easily pleased that it's much more agreeable to wait on them."
