HIGHSCHOOL HEAD BURNED IN EFFIGY

Walla Walla, Wash., Oct. 17.—Intoxicated with a spirit of vengeance, the result of losing two of their best football players for what they consider a minor offense, according to regulation rules, about 50 high school students, with appropriate ceremonies preceding, burned in effigy their principal, Professor F. C. Heck, on the high school lawn about 9 o'clock last night, following a hostile demonstration in the vicinity of the school in which the leaders waxed warm in denunciation of the present administration at high school.

Immediately after a jury of 12 students, who heard the evidence in the case under consideration, the entire procedure being carried out according to "Hoyle," had reached their verdict of "guilty," a stuffed sack affair representing the person of their principal, was hung by the neck to the flag pole and ignited with a match, the resulting flames lighting up an excited crowd of students who much resembled a tribe of Indians burning at the stake the body of a captured enemy.

All court rules were laid aside in the trial, the evidence being simply a shouted statement of the offense committed by the prisoner, following which the jurymen lost no time in returning their verdict and the officers in charge in carrying out the orders.

When the ceremonies had been completed, the crowd assembled and marched down to the business district where another demonstration was held and divers threats made, the party not dissolving until a late hour or until after the excitement of the evening had worn off.

The whole trouble arose when Principal Heck expelled Booker and Cox, halfback and center on the football team, for having appeared in class in full dress suit, and is said to have refused to recognize their petitions that were presented to him in their behalf.

IMMIGRATION LAWS ARE BRINGING BETTER PEOPLE

Houston, Texas.—The United States immigration laws require the prospective American citizen, upon entering the United States from a foreign country, to possess at least $5 in money. This is but one of the prerequisites, yet when it is applied to immigrants entering Texas it is rarely found that $5 is the minimum amount of cash carried.

On the other hand as a general rule the finances of the immigrants are healthy. For one month, for instance, it was found that the 276 immigrants who entered possessed a total of $23,168 as against the total sum necessary to get them in of $1380.

Divided as to nationalities it is found that the German leads the list as to wealth, while the Hebrew is next. The best record made during the month was by a lone Frenchman who, unwrapped from a hiding place within his shirt the sum of $1045.

Many curious ways are employed to secure the cash and one woman immigrant had to retire to a room with a woman inspector who went through an array of buttons and hooks in her dress before her wealth was disclosed. The money was so secure from the owner that it required a second party to unlock it.

COLORING FROM JAM USED TO DYE SHIRT

Experiment at Food Show to Illustrate Dangers of the Present Law.

New York.—A darning needle and a file were copper plated with the artificial coloring taken from strawberry jam, and a baby's undershirt was dyed a vivid cerise.

The experiment was performed by Prof. F. E. Brethbut and B. G. Feinberg for the benefit of housewives at the booth of the College of the City of New York in the pure food show at Madison Square Garden.

Jam of a rich red was placed in a receptacle, and a few drops of hydrochloric acid added. The file and needles were placed in the liquid, and after they had remained there several hours became covered with a coating of copper which made them shine like a new telephone wire. The acid caused a chemical reaction, but merely served to make the copper sulphate in solution plate the metal.

Then the garment was dipped in the liquid. The color the wool absorbed was then dissolved in ammonia, which removed the vegetable coloring, and the garment was then redipped and took on its present cerise color, which came from the coal tar dye used to give the syrup its red hue.

The sale of the syrup was not in violation of the present law, because the law specifies that products marked "artificially colored" and colored with copper sulphate or coal tar may be sold. The purpose of the demonstration is to educate the people into the realization that though the law permits the sale of such food products they are harmful to health. Copper sulphate is a cumulative poison, and enough collected in the system would produce injurious results. While all coal tar products are not harmful, the effects of some taken in large quantities would be anything but beneficial.

A quotation of Doctor Wiley, the government pure food expert, posted on the walls of the booth summarizes the purpose of the exhibit. It says: "It is evident, it seems to me, that the very best remedy for the evils of food adulteration would be the creation of a public opinion of a character that would regard persons engaged in food adulteration as without the pale of ethics, moral and polite society."

"RAT" IS MOUSE'S NEST.

Little Rodent Leaps from Woman's Coiffure at Emergency Hospital.

San Francisco.—For more than a decade the joke smiths have been springing the perennial jest founded upon the "rat" woman wears in her hair. Their time-worn joke became a near-reality yesterday. As Mrs. Eleanor Struckey was being examined at the Central Emergency hospital preparatory to being transferred to the city and county hospital a mouse peeped from under her heavy tresses and in a second leaped to the floor and scampered for cover. Mrs. Ida Currier, the attendant, reversed the traditions of her sex by promptly smacking the mouse on the skull with a broom handle.

Tickling in the throat, hoarseness, loss of voice indicate the need of Ballard's Horehound Syrup. It eases the lungs, quiets the cough and restores health in the bronchial tubes. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by A. C. Koepfen & Bros.

The best plaster, a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Liniment and bound on over the affected parts is superior to a plaster and costs only one-tenth as much. For sale by all dealers.

Commission Government in Spokane

By Charles M. Fassett, Commissioner of Public Utilities, Spokane Wash.

The commission form of government has been in operation in Spokane for seven months. The adjustments necessitated by the change from the old form have been fairly well worked out, and city business is going on smoothly, with less disturbance and wrangling at the city hall than for years.

Our people, as a rule, seem well satisfied with the change and it is very doubtful if even those who were most active against adopting the commission form would vote to return to the old system. There are, of course, a few citizens who honestly believe the old form better, but the great bulk of the opposition, both to the adoption to the commission form and to its continuance, comes from those whose private, selfish interests are being interfered with by beneficial changes in administration inaugurated by the new government.

Briefly, what seem to me to be the particular points of advantage, are as follows:

There is no wrangling at the city hall. Of course, honest and conscientious men differ. Our commissioners frequently do not agree on various measures, but differences are soon healed and there is harmony and good feeling between them as a rule.

There is direct responsibility. Each commissioner has charge under the authority of the whole body of his departments, and the citizen knows to whom to apply for his needs. Our people say now that they can get their business with the city attended to in hours and days, where it formerly took weeks and months.

By the use of the preferential system of voting and by the election of the commissioners at large, the party boss is eliminated and the results of the election express the will of the majority much more closely than the old system of caucus, convention and ward representation. Hereafter there will not be more than three commissioners elected at any election, giving the voters no excuse for ignorance of the men or their duties. We require a non-partisan affidavit and restrict the use of money for election purposes to $250 for any candidate.

We are getting street improvement made for 20 to 40 per cent less than in recent years, without reducing the city wage scale or decreasing our standards of quality. The contractors' ring which has held up public work, is broken, and the most of our work is going to those contractors who have done the best work in the past. For the first time in our history a contractor has been fined for delay.

Our tax levy will be the same this year as last, notwithstanding a deficit of about $50,000 left over by the old government, and the settlement of many old claims and the straightening out of complications which have been neglected for years.

The laws of this city are made by the men who administer them and who know the needs and uses of proper ordinances. Every morning at 11 o'clock an administrative session is held, at which any citizen may have a hearing. Petitions and communications received at these meetings are referred to the proper department and action usually had very promptly.

The various departments are being managed with efficiency and common sense. The water department, which had been allowed to run heavily in debt, is being put on a business footing, free water has been cut off, meters have doubled in seven months, wastes have been stopped and adequate supply furnished in the hot months, where heretofore every year there has been a famine. Our streets are well paved and kept clean, sewers are maintained, the health of the city was never so good, the public service corporations are encouraged (and enforced when necessary) to give good service, back franchise taxes are collected and city affairs generally are conducted along business lines.

We believe Spokane has the most advanced characteristic commission charter yet adopted by any city. The preferential system of voting, the short ballot and the election of the five commissioners at large, they selecting one of their number as mayor, are features which have very strong arguments in their favor.
