NEVER CAN TELL. Never can tell what's a-comin' along; One day a sigh, and the next day a song. But the storm's passing by, And there's light in the sky, And the roses still bloom o'er the red thorns of wrong.

DEMAND A SQUARE DEAL. Local people who wish to see a "square deal" given the Umatilla Indians may work to such an end by urging that the government through the United States district attorney or a special attorney take proper steps towards establishing the right of the Indians to the use of the water of the Umatilla river for irrigating their allotments.

The question of reservation water rights is now before the federal courts and the fight for water is being waged single handed by one individual, William Caldwell. This is not right, Mr. Caldwell should not have to make this fight alone. His personal interest is as nothing compared with the interest of the 1000 or more Indians living upon the reservation. His interest is small compared with the interest of the white people of this county who will have to support the Indians if they become pauperized.

From an ethical standpoint the Indians are plainly entitled to water for the irrigation of their lands. Their allotments are small and of little value unless irrigated. As dry land farms they produce but little and the Indians will be unable to sell the allotments for much when they mature. Unless something is done it is inevitable that before many years scores of Indians will become candidates for our poor farm. The Indians have a just right to use of the stream that flows past their homes.

It also seems clear that the Indians are legally entitled to water under the terms of the treaty which provided for the establishment of the reservation. It is declared that the milling company which has long been using all the water of the river and "bluffing out" those who have sought to take water from the stream is merely operating under a permit to use the water when it is not otherwise utilized by the Indians.

Whether or not this contention is correct is of course a matter for the courts to determine. But there can be no dispute as to the right of the Indians to have their case properly presented. It is clear that the government through the United States district attorney or a special attorney should make a vigorous effort to establish the rights of the Indians. The Indians are wards of the government and the government will prove itself an unworthy guardian if it does not do its utmost to protect the redmen in this matter. Nor will it suffice to say that to establish the right of the Indians to water would jeopardize the water supply for the Umatilla project or for any other irrigation project in the west end of this county. There is ample water for the reservation and for the west end projects also. Everybody knows this.

Pendletonians should demand that the government require its attorney or attorneys to take part in the adjudication of the reservation water rights so as to insure justice to the Indians. The welfare of Pendleton is also involved. It will mean much to this city to have the reservation irrigated. It will mean close settlement and development.

See that the case for the Indians is properly presented or learn the reason why.

FOREST TO PAY CITY'S TAXES.

San Diego, in the extreme southwestern corner of Uncle Sam's dominions, is the first of American cities to inaugurate a great forestry enterprise in the expectation of speedily lessening the burden of taxation borne by its citizens, and, possibly, of ultimately relieving them of all tax levies for the support of the city government, says a story in The Technical World Magazine.

As a heritage from the days when San Diego was a Mexican pueblo, the city owns 7000 acres of land, which, up to the present time, has been unproductive. On account of the rapid growth for which the various species of eucalypti are remarkable, and the great value of the timber as a substitute for oak, hickory, and the other common hardwoods, these are the trees that are being most largely planted. Forty thousand seedlings of the "sugar gum"—Eucalyptus corymbosa—were purchased from nurserymen and set out in the spring of the present year. The Federal Bureau of Forestry, in official publications, discourages the expectation of extraordinary profits from Eucalyptus culture; but, on the other hand, the pioneers in Eucalyptus culture, who have been growing timber for profit for a quarter of a century or longer, exhibit statements of their business that seem of more practical value than any amount of theorizing. One conservative statement is given by the owner of a large Eucalyptus grove planted more than twenty-five years ago. He says that he harvests annually timber to the value of $350 from each acre, and that the timber remaining becomes of greater value each year, the natural growth of what is left more than compensating for what is cut. Groves of this kind will continue productive forever, with no diminution of the annual harvest, young trees spring up from the old stumps, or being replanted, so that the stand of timber is kept as heavy as the land is capable of supporting to the best advantage.

Let us grant the contention—although advocates of Eucalyptus culture will never do so—that San Diego can never approach the record referred to. Suppose that the city forest, when 25 years old, can do only half as well, and can only yield $175 worth of timber to the acre. That means that the annual harvest from its 7,000 acres of pueblo land—if all is devoted to forestry—will be $1,225,000. Allowing for all expenses, there will be left a profit that should go far towards reducing the burden of taxation now imposed upon the people of San Diego.

Jeff Davis, senator from Arkansas and who has just been married says he considers woman's suffrage as nonsense with an adjective. Pretty strong talk for Jeff to make under the circumstances.

Why not call off the world's series and schedule a football game.

A HUSBAND'S LOVE.

Somebody has been interviewing Mme. Maeterlinck on the subject of wifely duty, and the wife of the Belgian poet and dramatist gives these directions for the use of women who desire to retain the love of their husbands:

Never allow hirelings to tend your husband in what concerns his bodily welfare.

See that his clothes are ready each day and befitting the season of the year.

When your husband is in a bad temper don't develop similar symptoms, but when he is merry initiate him plentifully.

Don't fondle him before meal time—kisses to a hungry man are as soap bubbles to a parched throat.

These instructions will do very well as far as they go but there are several points that Mme. Maeterlinck has failed to cover.

Every wife should be an expert manicurist so that she may keep her husband's nails in good condition.

She should change the strings in his shoes when they need changing.

She should always remember, if his love seems to be growing cold, that she cannot scold it into a flame.

When he is not inclined to talk she should refrain from asking questions.

She should always know where his collar buttons are.

And, above all, she should cease to remind him in the presence of company that he was crazy to get her.

NEW THRILLER FROM PARIS.

Dance of "The Woman and the Statue" to be given here.

Paris—A unique, eccentric pantomime dance called "La Femme et la Statue" will be taken to New York soon by Reggie De Vuille and Mile. Denise Muller of Paris are practicing the dance here. The scene of the dance is laid at the Pre Catalan, De Vuille poses as a statue of Apollo on a pedestal. Mile Muller enters, dances about it, makes love to it and tries to bring the statue to life, but to no avail.

The impassiveness of the statue sets the girl wild with excitement. She tears off her clothes in a frenzy. At this point the statue begins to take notice. Finally it awakens, comes off the pedestal and begins a wild dance, when the curtain falls.

SPEED VERSUS COURTESY.

"While we had nothing happen on the trip, and at no time were in need of help," says Helen Lukens Gau describing in Sunset Magazine for November, a motor run from Los Angeles to San Francisco, "we often stopped to water and oil the Meadow Lark and adjust the machinery, just as a wise precaution. Usually during our stops, from one to six autos would hurry past, covering us with dust and dirt, never so much as slowing up a trifle to inquire if we were in trouble. In fact, during the entire trip of approximately one thousand miles, only two auto parties stopped and offered us assistance. In our

WHAT I WENT THROUGH

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the change of life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it had worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. It will help others, you may publish my letter."—Mrs. NATHAN B. GREATON, 51 N. Main Street, Natick, Mass.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

TRY Every woman ought to learn for her own sake—for the sake of those about her—the secret of cheerfulness, of better feelings, of greater strength. Suppose you do have headaches, backaches, lassitude, a feeling of misery at times. That's no reason to give up. Other women have suffered in the same way; but have found relief. So can you find relief—and easily, quickly, safely. Beecham's Pills are particularly adapted to the needs of women—and they will help you. If you are weak, if your nerves are on edge, if you are blue and worried, if you suffer unduly at times, don't believe there's no help for you.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

Try Beecham's Pills and see how your digestive organs will be toned, your liver helped, your bowels regulated. With these important organs in good condition all your bodily functions will be performed as Nature intended they should be. Besides you will be far more attractive when your blood is made richer and purer—when your eyes are brighter—when your complexion is clearer; when your skin, instead of being sallow, has the charming hue of health.

All druggists sell Beecham's Pills, 10c., 25c. The directions with every box are of special value to women.

hearts we blessed them for their courtesy. Either there is no such thing as road "etiquette" or the party in trouble is expected to "holier" for help if he needs it. "Sometimes a patch, a little oil, gasoline, cement or perhaps an experienced suggestion as to what the "matter" is, will save the day for some puzzled autoist and start him on his way rejoicing. Automobiles are creatures of temperament, of emotions and peculiarities, and it requires tact and understanding to keep them in a good humor." Dr. Kern to Resume Practice. Dr. Kern is remodeling his former dental office, room 15, Judd building, in which he will resume practice of dentistry on Tuesday, October 24.
