

NEW HOME OF THE OREGON JOURNAL

JOURNAL WILL HAVE FINE NEW BUILDING

ELEVEN STORY STRUCTURE FOR C. S. JACKSON'S PAPER

To Be Erected at Corner of Seventh and Yamhill Streets at Cost of $250,000—Will Provide Thoroughly Up-to-Date Newspaper Home.

Pendleton people who have followed with interest the fortunes of C. S. Jackson and the Journal will be interested in the announcement just made that the Journal is to erect a splendid eleven story building at the corner of Seventh and Yamhill streets in Portland. The building is to cost $250,000 and when completed will give the Journal one of the most modern and best equipped newspaper homes in the country.

The Journal's new home is to be eleven-story, steel frame, fireproof structure, surmounted by a clock and chime tower, and will cost approximately $250,000 or more. The perspective on this page shows how the building will appear when completed.

That portion of the building to be occupied by The Journal exclusively is the basement, ground floor, mezzanine floor and second floor, covering a ground area of 100 feet. Above the third floor the building will be 50 feet square, and will constitute a distinct, high class office building, with elevator service direct to the main lobby.

The presses, together with the stereotyping department, mailing room, storage room and mechanical auxiliary, will be located in the basement. The ground floor will be taken up by The Journal's business office, comprising the advertising, circulation, bookkeeping and managerial departments.

The mezzanine floor will contain the editorial department of the paper. Here will be located the office of the managing editor and those of his assistants. On this floor also will be the offices of the news editor, city editor, a large news room for the reporterial force, separate department for the telegraph service of the paper, library and filing room.

The engraving department, art rooms, composing and moulding room will occupy the entire second floor.

Office Rooms Provided.

Each of the floors from the third to the ninth, inclusive, will contain sixteen offices, all with outside light. The tenth and eleventh floors will contain eight offices each, and in the tower will be located the clock, chimes and elevator machinery.

An interesting feature of the office portion of the structure is the fact that each floor will be so arranged that it can be rented entire by a corporation, firm or individual, thereby giving to one tenant the complete control of all of one floor.

The big presses which will be located in the basement, and of which there are three, will be so placed that they can be seen direct from the sidewalk on Yamhill street.

Special attention has been paid by the architects of the building, Reed Bros., of Portland and San Francisco, to the lighting and ventilating system of the structure. The floors occupied by The Journal will have windows on three sides, while every room in the office portion of the structure will have an outside exposure.

Oregon Stone Used.

The ventilating system will be modern and up to date, the entire building being supplied with fresh air by means of fans located in the basement.

Native Oregon materials will enter largely into the trimming of the building. The stone used in the exterior walls and trim of the first three floors will be Oregon stone, and the marble wainscoting in the lobby and corridors will also be quarried in this state. The exterior walls of the upper stories will be either terra cotta or pressed brick, or a combination of the two.

There will be a main lobby to the building proper, and a large public lobby in connection with the business office.

The building is designed to be the most up to date and complete home occupied by a newspaper on the Pacific coast. It is located in the very heart of the city and will contain besides The Journal quarters 128 offices for outside tenancy.

SPORTS

Winning Score Not Legal.

New York, Oct. 26.—The run credited to Captain Larry Doyle in the tenth inning of yesterday's game which gave the New York Giants their second victory over the Philadelphia Athletics in the world series was not legally scored, according to a statement made after the game by Umpire William J. Klem of the National league, who was officially behind the plate as the umpire in chief.

Doyle did not touch the plate, according to Klem, and if the Athletic club had made an appeal the umpire said he would have declared Doyle out and the inning would have ended in a tie score. As it was getting dark, the game could not have gone much farther.

WOLGAST AND WELSH BATTLE IS CERTAIN

Los Angeles, Oct. 26.—Rumors that there was a possibility of the Wolgast-Welsh scrap, scheduled for hanksgiving day, being called off, were effectively disposed of when Promoter Thomas J. McCarrey received word from Wolgast that the lightweight champion would leave for Los Angeles about November 1.

Freddie Welsh has $1000 forfeit up, and Wolgast wired McCarrey that if he was getting the least bit nervous his forfeit money would be forwarded at once.

Baron Long, Welsh's representative, has promised McCarrey to have his man in Los Angeles before November 15.

JUDGE BANISHES PAT CROWE.

North Side Is Closed Territory to Man Often in Court.

Chicago, Ill.—Pat Crowe, one-time gambler, kidnaper of Edward Cuddey's son, and for a few brief moments an evangelist, has been banished from his haunts on the north side. The sentence, in lieu of a fine of $200, was passed yesterday by Municipal Judge Caverly. Crowe was arrested for the second time in a week. "Something gets the best of me on the North Side, judge," Crowe said. "I'm always getting in bad, and I can't help myself."

"Well, if you will promise to leave the North Side," said Judge Caverly. "I will permit you to go. If we find you here again I will send you to the bridewell on a $200 fine." Crowe promised to go to his sister's farm in South Dakota.

HERMIT WHO BEGGED DIES LEAVING $50,000

Bank Book Found in Bed of Dead Recluse, Who Had Lived on Charity.

San Francisco, Calif.—Begging his meals from neighbors for years, Michael F. Sullivan, aged eighty-six, who lived the life of a hermit in a shack at 2511 Jones street, was found dead in his bed, and under the mattress were bank books showing that he had approximately $50,000 to his credit in banks of the city.

Sullivan's will was found with the bank book, dated June 23, 1909, and he leaves his fortune to his sister, Mary A. Sullivan of Utica, N. Y. She is to get $5,000 in cash at once and the San Francisco Savings Union is ordered to hold the balance in trust for her and give her the interest semi-annually.

The will provides that the estate shall be divided, according to the laws of California, after her death, among her heirs. The will says that the fortune is left to the sister on account of her care for their mother.

Sullivan had not been seen for three days. The neighbors who had cared for him asked the police to investigate. They broke in the door of the shack, finding the body.

The coroner's officials discovered the bank books. One issued by the Hibernian Bank shows that he has a balance there of $18,172; in the San Francisco Savings Union he has $26,700; in the German Bank $1,170; in the Mutual $4,000, in the People's Home Savings Union $4,000, and smaller amounts in other banks. But little is known of Sullivan's history.

Victim of Train is Named Allen.

Choballs, Wash.—From a letter on the body of the man found near Ventress station it was learned that his name was Francis E. Wilson and that he had evidently been a coal miner. The letter was from his sister and was signed "Maud." It was addressed to Wilson at Ruskin, B. C. care Western Canada Power company, the postmark on the envelope being 19 Lodge Gate, Donholme.
