PRECINCTS MUST BE FIXED THIS MONTH

ATTORNEY GENERAL SO ADVISES IN OPINION
 Secretary of State Olcott Fears Many County Courts May Overlook Necessity of Making Needed Preparation for Next Year.

Salem, Or., Nov. 2.—Following publication several weeks ago of the possibility of county courts this November forgetting their duties of setting out election precincts for next year, many county clerks have been writing Secretary of State Olcott about this duty. Secretary Olcott thinks if the election precincts are not set off in November as prescribed by law it may be impossible so to fix them at any later date.

In handing down an opinion on this question, explaining why for the first time in this state the election precincts must be fixed more than a year before the general elections, Attorney General Crawford says in part:

"The establishing of such election precincts is incident to the holding of elections, and, therefore, comes within the provisions of paragraph A of said section of the nominating law as so amended in 1909. Prior to that it appeared as section 2762 of Bellinger and Cotton's code, and required the establishment of election precincts at the regular term of the county court in November preceding a general election, and was especially made applicable to primary nominating elections by section 3 of said nominating election law.

"In 1908, the general election was changed from June to November by the amendment of section 14 of article II of the constitution. Therefore, when said paragraph A of section 2 of the nominating law requires that all things incident and pertaining to the holding of the regular biennial nominating election shall be enforced and effected the same number of days before the first Monday in June that they were under the said nominating election law immediately before the change in the date of the regular election from the first Monday in June until the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, in my opinion, it requires the election precincts to be set off and established at the time provided in section 2762, that is during the month of November preceding the next regular election.

"It will be remembered that the next regular biennial election will occur in November, 1912. Therefore, the November before such regular election will be November, 1911."

The room was upset, furniture broken and the young woman's hair torn down, giving evidence of a struggle.

There were no wounds on the body. Both doors and windows of the room were locked.
