QUEER VOICES OF NATURE.

Sands of the Sea and the Desert Are Musical at Strange Times.

New York.—The most notable of those curious freaks of nature, "singing sands," are those of the Island of Kauai. When a small quantity of these is clapped between the hands it is said to give forth a sound so shrill as to resemble a hoot. Put into a bag and violently shaken, these sands emit a noise strangely like the bark of a dog.

On the beach at Manchester, Mass., are the so-called "singing sands," says Harper's Weekly, "but these are outdone by the Hawaiian sands mentioned. Similar sands also occur in the Colorado desert, where also are to be found those furious shifting sands that continually travel hither and thither over the vast plain of clay. Their movements are, of course, induced by the winds and when a strong breeze is blowing, the silicious particles of which they are composed give out an audible humming or singing. Under the microscope these sands show an almost perfectly spherical form, so that they roll upon each other at the slightest impulse, a circumstance that also accounts for the rapidity with which the sands travel over the desert.

One theory advanced with respect to the "singing" of these sands is that it is due to an exceedingly thin film of gas that covers the grains. Gathered and removed from the desert, it is said these sands lose their vocal propensities.

The Cosy. For Wednesday and Thursday a fine educational picture, two thrilling western dramas, and two bright comedies.

"How Poor Babies Are Reared in Paris." Eclair. A splendid educational picture, showing in an attractive way the manner in which children are cared for in the "Baby House," which is the finest institution of its kind in the world. We see the bath and toilet of the little ones, daily weighing, how babies learn to walk, and the "Five O'clock Recreation Dance."

"Range Justice." Bison. Some sensational justice is shown in this exciting western story. The renegade in revenge pursued Ethel and snatching her from a galloping horse, gave her to the Indians. Her father saw the act through field glasses and notified the soldiers. The Indians too, their canoes but the soldiers swam their horses into the stream and after a battle in the water, saved the girl.

"The Horse Thief." Powers. A half breed held up the sheriff and wife and took their horses but was captured by cowboys. The sheriff wishing to give the half breed another chance, told the boys he lost his horse in a card game. The freed man, ashamed of his conduct, vows to live right and tearing a playing card in half gave the sheriff one part, keeping the other himself. By a strange turn of fate he was able to save the sheriff in after years and thus paid his debt of gratitude.

"How Teddy Lost His Bet." Eclair. A cripple challenged Teddy the champion cyclist, to a race and in fun Teddy accepts, giving the cripple a start of 500 yards. The cyclist met with many obstacles on his way, which did not trouble his rival. Bruised and battered Teddy came in last, for the cripple knew the road best.

"Foolishhead a Model Guest." Itala. The funny comedian, Mr. Foolishhead, entertains us with another of his laughable adventures. His many mistakes will amuse anyone.

SAVED A DOLLAR, BUT LOST HIS $700-A-YEAR OFFICE Postmaster Failed to Make $999 a Thousand and Post-Office Must Go Back Into Fourth Class.

Washington.—The postmaster at East Berlin, Conn., reports that his receipts in the last year were $999.

If he had spent a dollar for stamps, his receipts would have been $1000 the minimum allowable if his office was to continue in the third class.

But the dollar was not spent for stamps and so the postmaster-general under the law, must, he said today, put East Berlin back into the fourth class.

That cuts off the annual allowance of $700 for rent, fuel and clerk hire.

Orpheum.

Don't miss Friday's program. 1. "Answer of the Roses." Vitagraph. The poets have written and minstrels have sung about love and the roses, but never have they depicted this theme as it is shown in this Italian life portrayed, with all the touches of reality and the expression of delicate sentiments and emotions by the persons. Be sure to see this picture, there is something about it that appeals to the best that is in us.

2. "The Missing Bracelet or Jimmie Urquhart Accused." Gaumont. Jimmie was the country's footman and when the bracelet was missed they thought he took it, but it was left in the motor.

3. "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Esbany. A dissipated husband is brought back to the right path through a terrible reprimand, which will delight all who view this splendid photoplay.

4. "From the Field to the Cradle." Lubin. An educational and industrial picture displaying the most modern sanitary methods of bringing milk to consumers. It shows the modern way of milking, handling in the dairy, weighing, filtering, cleaning and sterilizing of the bottles by machinery, filling the bottles, loading the wagons, delivering to the consumers, and finally, baby at "quick lunch."

5. "Revenge is Sweet." Lubin. Deacon Detwald found two hoboes on his property and had them arrested. He overlooked Lazy Bill, and that patriot of Hoboland swore revenge. Securing a suit of the deacon's clothes and some of his cards, he called on the liquor dealers of the town and ordered cases, bottles, jugs and demijohns sent to the deacon's address.

The Pastime. Always the best in motion pictures. Friday's program:

"For the Flag." (Kalem). A good story is told in this film and a brave girl is given an opportunity to display her patriotism. There is a capture of a French fort by English soldiers, its recapture by the French and Indians, a near execution by the Indians, prevented only by the locket worn by the young man, given him by the girl who befriended an Indian.

Vitagraph Monthly of Current Events." This film gives us the greatest happenings and doings of the day—things we read about and very seldom. First a collision of two locomotives going 60 miles an hour; national aviation flights; an actual fire scene; and the Marathon race at Coney Island, also many other items of interest.

"The Deacon's Reward." (Essany). The deacon is a kind hearted old man and his nephew is the kind that will scrape and bow to a rich man, but be as mean as dirt to anyone poor and in trouble. The story of how the old man took care of a man and his family who were most unjustly treated by the nephew, and how this man saved him from robbery and possible death at the hands of his nephew.

"Jimmie's Midnight Flight." (Kosmik). A comedy drama.

"Ajaccio, the Birthplace of Napoleon." (Kosmik). Very interesting.

SUED, HE SIMULATES HOBO.

Scranton, Pa.—When Jacob Suravitz a wealthy business man of Olympia appeared in the United States court here to defend the suit for breach of promise brought by Kate Pristaz, he was apparently the most poverty-stricken man within the confines of Lackawanna county.

His clothes were old and torn and he appeared minus collar and tie, and with a week's growth of beard on his face. Usually he is a natty dresser and the change in his appearance was so apparently a dodge to gain sympathy that attorneys for the prosecution called the attention of the court to the fact.

Suravitz is said to be worth $160,000, and the young woman asks $25,000 for the damage her heart suffered when he asked her to become his second wife, and later repudiated his proposal.

Dear Sirs: I heard of PARISIAN SAGE and as my head would itch a good deal, I thought I would try it. I never used any remedies before and was bald on top of my head.

I am using the third bottle and have a lot of hair where I was bald. I would like you to see the new hair sprouting from my head. The itching in my scalp quickly disappeared. I am 65 years old and have been at the Bazaar 51 years.

BIG DOG WITH GREAT MEMORY

Newfoundland Killed to Save Life of Dog Catcher He Hated.

Bloomfield, N. J.—A St. Bernard dog with a memory for foes had to be killed to save a man the animal hated. Three weeks ago Dog Warden Henry Forbell seized the St. Bernard because it had no license tag and took it to the pound. William Fitchus, the dog's owner, released it by getting a license and paying costs.

When Forbell was passing the Fitchus house the other day the St. Bernard, which had never attacked anyone, plainly recognized its enemy and sprang at the dogcatcher. He seized the animal's throat and struggled to his feet. He is stockily built and powerful, but his strength was put to the test. He had a knife in his hip pocket, but feared to loosen the grip of either hand on the dog to reach for the weapon.

The St. Bernard broke away and sprang at Forbell's throat. He met it with a heavy blow. The beast jumped at him again. Forbell grappled it. Man and dog fell. Several men had run up, but they feared to interfere. Forbell and the St. Bernard rolled over and over in the street. At last the man got a good hold on the dog's throat. He held it until the animal grew weak. Then, pulling off his knife and opening it with his teeth, Forbell cut the St. Bernard's throat. He never relaxed his grip until the dog collapsed, dead.

Forbell had many wounds. His clothes were torn to tatters. After the bites and scratches had been cauterized he removed the dead dog in his wagon.

PARK HAS ARISTOCRATIC APE.

Charming Blue Monkey from Amazon Establishes a Court.

New York.—The latest society news from the Bronx Zoological Gardens deals with the arrival of Humboldt, the most aristocratic simian ever seen in the town.

Refined to the point of exclusiveness, says the Herald, this charming ape refuses to occupy the quarters in the monkey-house and has established himself in a section of the reptile house. Thus he escapes the constant chattering and grinning of the other monkeys, who have been kept in a constant state of excitement through the championship ball games and the fall in common steel. Humboldt, who never takes "flyers" because he can get almost anywhere by swinging from his tail, hates the stock market talk that is so prevalent in monkey cages and other thought centers of similar caliber. But he finds the snakes and turtles interesting and companionable and never wearsies of their society.

His keepers expect to provide him with a suitable mate, but he has already intimated to them that money is no object in the matter of selection. In this respect, as in others, he sets a good example to many of our visitors from abroad.
