WARNS OF LIQUID EVIDENCE.

Judge Admonishes Jurors Not to "Consider" It Too Freely.

Atlanta, Ga.—Moderation in the consideration and likewise in the consumption of liquid evidence, was preached to the jurors of Georgia in a decision handed down by the court of appeals in the case of J. Morse, charged with keeping liquor on hand for sale and with the sale of it.

The decision of the lower court was reversed on the ground that the defendant should not have been charged with two offenses in the same indictment.

The high court severely admonished the jurors against "consuming too much of the evidence," and said that while liquor may be introduced that the jurors may taste, smell and thereby see that it is the genuine stuff, it is unseemly that they consume enough of it to warp their decisions in passing on the case.
