Orpheum.
A feature of features for Tuesday's change. Foul Play, by Charles Reade, in three reels. A film which marks an epoch in silent drama. The complete novel is clearly told.
1. "Foul Play." Part 1. Edison. Arthur Wardlaw, the son of a London merchant, graduates from Oxford heavily in debt from gambling. Under a plea of lending Robert Penfold money, he forges his father's name, getting Robert to cash it and give him the amount above the loan. Robert is sentenced to exile. Arthur is engaged to marry Helen Rolleston, the daughter of General Rolleston.
2. "Foul Play." Part 2. Robert Penfold, under another name, is a convict on parole in Australia. Arthur Wardlaw, who has involved the firm of Wardlaw & Son, arranges to have a ship belonging to the firm scuttled for the insurance. Helen, Arthur's fiancee, sails on this very ship and Robert saves her. They are cast on an uninhabited island.
3. "Foul Play." Part 3. General Rolleston arriving in London finds his daughter has been wrecked at sea. He starts to search for her. Meantime Robert and Helen are living happily on their island. Robert has dispatched a number of wild ducks with messages attached giving their location. In the closing scene Arthur is confronted with his double villainy and Robert Penfold comes into his own.
4. "Wife's New Hat." Lubin. She got a hat and put it in the safe removing $50,000 worth of bills to make room. Burglars cracked the safe but overlooked the drawer where she had put the valuables. Hubby was so pleased that he said she should have twenty hats if she wanted them.
5. "The New Creator." Lubin. A barrel of fun in this one, picturing the troubles and experiences of Sam Lawson, who starts out to take moving pictures.
The Pastime.
A swell program for Tuesday's change. Big extra in three reels, Bouleau's masterpiece:
"The Colleen Bawn. Kalem. Every scene in this powerful Irish drama was made in Ireland.
Reel No. 1, 1900 feet. Hardress Cregan meets "The Colleen Bawn" and they are secretly married at her mother's grave. His mother desires that he take to wife his cousin.
Reel No. 2, 1900 feet. Danny Mann. A simple minded youth seeks to relieve his master of the low-born wife and decays the colleen out to the rock in the lake and attempts to drown her. He is mistaken for an otter and shot by Myles Na Coppaleen. When attempting to retrieve his game, Myles rescues the colleen.

Reel No. 3, 1900 feet. Danny Mann escapes death and confesses to drowning the colleen. This confession leads to an attempt to arrest Hardress Cregan just as he is about to be married to Anne Chute. But in the confusion, Father Tom, to whom the confession was made, Myles and the colleen enter and the affair is cleared up.
"How She Got the Money." Essanay. This is a bright little comedy. It is amusing.
"And the Cat Came Back." Essanay. This is a slight anecdote picture.
Usual price: Adults, 10c; children 5 cents.
The Copy.
For Monday and Tuesday. "The Godfather." Reliance. Powerful dramatic play with a cast of over fifty. A disappointed lover became godfather of his former sweetheart's baby and after depositing $5,000 to the baby's credit, went west. On his 21st birthday he received the money and lost it gambling. He went west and in a card game shot his godfather, who saved him from being lynched. A ring revealed the boy's identity and they both went back east to mother.
"A Western Tramp." Bison. The tramp, made the butt of the cowboys' jokes, was befriended by Joe. He learned that Smith and a dancehall girl were in a plot to break up Joe's home and forced the girl to confess, while he run Smith out of town.
"Lost Illusions." Rex. Grace, a mountain girl met an artist from the east. She loved him, but she only amused him. After he left she married Bill, a mountain boy, and they went east, where she met the artist. Her husband, finding them embracing, left her all his money and went back home. Next day she found the artist was married and started back to her true mountain lover and happiness.
"Mutt and Jeff Spend a Quiet Day in the Country." Nestor. Mutt and Jeff, while fishing, were set upon by two convicts and relieved of their clothes. They had some trying experiences while wearing the convict suits. Mutt decided a barrel would be better and after stealing a night gown for Jeff they started home.
"The Meddling Parson." Nestor. He thought a poker game was on and told the chief of police. A bum heard him and held up the players, but found his big haul was only stage money.
If going east, or west or south, have tickets routed Northern Pacific Ry. Close connections at Pasco with all through trains. W. Adams, agent, Pendleton.

AT THE OREGON THEATRE

"The Rich Mr. Hogenheimer."
That inimitable and perpetually popular German comedian, Max Dill, and his big company of merry makers, will appear at the Oregon theatre on Wednesday, November 22, and will present that highly amusing and melodious musical comedy "The Rich Mr. Hogenheimer." This piece ran an entire year in New York city. The lyrics are by Harry B. Smith, music by Ludwig Englander. The star and his delightful unctuous manner are too well known for comment and that he will be greeted with a large and enthusiastic audience in his appearance goes without saying. Never before has the Tuetician fun-maker been surrounded with such a capable company as now, and he has been singularly fortunate in securing as his leading man Melvin Stokes, a young San Francisco tenor, who has covered himself with glory recently as the principal support of Frank Daniels and Lulu Glaser in two of the Shuberts' greatest successes. In addition to having a splendid and well cultivated voice, Stokes is one of the rarest of individuals, being a good actor as well as a tenor.
Another well known member Mr. Alf, Goulding, conceded to be the best character comedian in this country, has been especially engaged to play the part of Percy Vere. In the company will be Miss Lillian Coleman the favorite prima donna, who was with the Rogers Brothers in their successful productions in New York.
Thirty of the prettiest, liveliest and best voiced girls obtainable will constitute the feminine vortion of Dill's chorus, and the costumes and accessories of "The Rich Mr. Hogenheimer" will be perfect in every particular. Seals will be ready at the Pendleton Drug Store Tuesday at 10 a. m.

ATTACKED BY WOLVES HUNTER KILLS 6-FOOT BEAST

Hibbing, Minn.—Frank O'Rourke killed a wolf measuring over six feet from tip to tip in a swamp near Sting Lake.
O'Rourke was hunting, when he became lost in the swamp. A pack of about sixty wolves scented him and coming up, began circling about him. O'Rourke's gun was loaded with buckshot and he fired into the pack. He dropped four but three of the animals got up and ran away. The fourth was lamed and the hunter put another shot through its throat, killing it.
O'Rourke soon afterward found his way out of the swamp, dragging the wolf's carcass after him.
Wolves are thick this winter and many fresh deer bones found along the water courses show that they are playing havoc with the deer.

Put a porous plaster on the chest and take a good cough syrup internally if you would treat a severe case of sore lungs properly. Get the dollar size BALLARD'S HOREHOUND SYRUP. With each bottle there is a free HERRICK'S RED PEPPER POROUS PLASTER for the chest. Sold by A. C. Koepfen & Bros.

Lad Goes to Manila Alone.
Wallace, Idaho.—To meet his mother in Manila little 11-year-old Boutwell left Wallace to travel across the Pacific ocean alone. To Spokane and then to Seattle the child will be under the care of his grandmother. At Seattle he will be entrusted to the care of the boat's officers. The captain of an ocean-going vessel has agreed to look after him.

LONG DARNING NEEDLE DIET.
Man Who Swallowed Three Inch Steel as a Boy Freed of It.
Chester, Pa.—A darning needle, almost three inches long, which had was taken from the back of Edward Morris, a resident of Marcus Hook.

The needle was swallowed by Morris about fifteen years ago, but had never given him any trouble until a few days ago when he felt a soreness in his back between the shoulder blades.
In a short time the sore spot developed into a good sized "boll" and several poultices were placed on his back.
This morning a small speck appeared and a physician, whom Morris consulted, used a lance, bringing to the surface the needle, which was as bright as the day Morris swallowed it.
OLYMPIC-HAWK COLLISION BRINGS DOUBLE COURT CLASH
British Government Seeks Damages for Injuries to Warship While Americans Claim English Were to Blame.
London.—The British government and the United States had a double clash before the admiralty court when the cross-suits for damages in connection with the recent collision of the White Star steamship Olympic with the cruiser Hawke came to trial.
The owners of the Olympic asks big damages on the ground that the Hawke wantonly stove a hole in the side of the Olympic. The British government charges that the American vessel was to blame and also asks heavy damages. Sir Samuel Adams, president of the court, is presiding at the trials, both of which are proceeding simultaneously.

JOKE TURNED ON ACTORS.

Audience Resents Jest at Expense of Countryman.
Mayfield, Ky.—A band of vaudeville actors from Mayfield came to grief at Fancy Farm, where they went to play for a crowd of country folk and were considerably bedraggled when they returned here this morning minus most of their costumes.
A joke on one of the men in the audience brought a shower of vegetables, lemons and overripe eggs. The audience then demanded that the box office receipts be returned. The actors refused and the crowd started to take "it out of their hides."
The actors were compelled to go through various stunts and to kneel and pray for mercy. They were finally started on foot toward Mayfield about midnight.

DOG SAVES MASTER'S LIFE.

Discovers Fire and Scrapes Way One to Warn Sleepers.
Columbia, Mo.—A small terrier dog saved the lives of his master and mistress. He warned Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ramey of the burning of their home.
Jack, the dog, was sleeping in the kitchen. About 3 o'clock in the morning he was disturbed by smoke and the burning roof. The little animal became frantic. He barked, scratched and finally fought his way from the building.
Dashing from the kitchen, Jack entered the bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. Ramey, who were asleep. The noise of the dog and the smoke aroused them and they fled. The house was destroyed.
Stop coughing! You rack the lungs and worry the body. BALLARD'S HOREHOUND SYRUP checks irritation, heals the lungs and restores comfortable breathing. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by A. C. Koepfen & Bros.

TURKEY TROT SCORED; SOCIETY GIRLS SHAKE

Recent Dances in San Rafael Cause Protest to Board of Trustees.
San Rafael, Calif.—The "Texas Tommy" and the "Turkey Trot" have taken official Marin by the ears, Dr. W. J. Wickman, president of the local board of education, appeared before the city trustees and asked that a law be passed prohibiting these dances from being indulged in within the corporate limits. He said:

"It's a public disgrace to allow these obscene and demoralizing dances. Both here and in neighboring towns, within a few weeks, respectable young folks have indulged in these affairs. In several cases when a rag "moonlight" dance came the lights were put out. Something must be done, and I ask the board to act."
City Attorney E. I. Butler was called on for his opinion, and said: "An ordinance is unnecessary. The state law is broad and if these dances are indecent those participating can be arrested."
Butler's opinion has caused a sensation and it is said that more than one daughter of an aristocratic house will, for weeks, be able to pass a policeman only with fear and trembling.

FAMOUS TENOR WAS SUFFERING FROM COLD

NEVERTHELESS "LOVE TALES OF HOFFMAN" WAS PLEASING

Barcarole Delighted Music Lovers Who Gathered at Local Theatre Last Night to Hear Fantastic Opera.

For those who love fine music there was much in store at the Oregon theatre last evening where the Sheehan grand opera company gave Offenbach's fantastic opera "The Love Tales of Hoffman." Because of a cold, for which he made due apology during an early curtain call, Sheehan was unable to sing at his best and his affliction was a cause of much regret. Sheehan could make good use of a substitute and that he has no one to relieve him seems remarkable.

In making his explanation the famous tenor declared that though he himself could not sing as he would like to do the work of others in the troupe would be sufficient to repay those present for their coming. His prediction was fulfilled for it would be difficult to improve on the troupe as a whole while the singing of such members as Aaabel Tarlton, the Julietta, Gladys Caldwell as Antonia, and Marion Walker who was Niclausse and also the Voice was delightful. Much might also be said for Charles Swickard who acted Coppehlus in the first act, Dappertute in the second and Dr. Miracle in the third. His voice especially pleased in the second act when he sang the gem song.

To far the greater number of those present last night the second act was the bright and redeeming feature of the opera and the Barcarole was the song they loved. The stage setting for the scene in Venice was beautiful and those who came to hear the famous song were not disappointed. The Barcarole was the only encore of the evening.

In the story Hoffman is a dissipated German poet and the scene of the prologue is a German drinking place. The first act is in Italy where Hoffman is made the victim of a joke and falls in love with a doll which is finally destroyed before his eyes. The Venetian scene of the second act has already been referred to and in this Hoffman becomes the victim of the wiles of Julietta and for her he kills Schlemihl in a duel only to see his loved one float away in a gondola with her arms about the neck of Pittichinaccio. The third act is located in Munich and the loved one is Antonia who is forbidden to sing for fear that vocal efforts would cause her death from consumption. Miss Caldwell as Antonia is a lovely singer but would appear to finer advantage in a brighter role.

The prologue takes the audience back to the German tavern and Hoffman falls intoxicated across a table while the Muse of Poetry appears and bids him henceforth devote his time to becoming a great poet.
