FULL HOUSE HEARS
EVANGELIST HOLMES
The Holy Spirit in Regeneration Discussed Last Night.
The church going public turned out in large numbers for Pendleton to hear Evangelist Holmes in his sermon on "The Holy Spirit in Regeneration."

Mr. Holmes has been using a large chart from night to night to show the personality of the holy spirit and his relation to God and Jesus and his message last night was an effort to show the work of the Holy Spirit in man's conversation.
The speaker pointed out and gave proof texts to show that "regeneration" is a counterpart or copy of "generation," that the "physical is a picture of the spiritual." In this process of turning to God Mr. Holmes pointed out how that the spirit had a part in every step of the journey, and how that he used the word of God to accomplish his purpose. In speaking of baptism, he pointed out again how the physical was a picture of the spiritual, when the physical man is buried in the physical element (water), it is a picture of the burial, the overshadowing, the overwhelming, the immersing of the spirit or soul of man in the Spirit of God. This constitutes Christian baptism when the act is preceded by obedience to the other requirements of the scriptures. This "double element" in baptism corresponds to the two-fold nature of man, and there is no baptism in water separate and apart from a baptism in the holy spirit, nor no baptism in the holy spirit separate and apart from water, otherwise Paul would be contradicted when he states positively, "there is one baptism." In Christian baptism is found the "new birth" of which Jesus spoke, but life is said to begin immediately upon the "belief" of the word; John says, "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ, is begotten of God"—not "hegetting" comes development in repentance and confession of Christ and birth in Christian baptism. This is the process of regeneration sometimes called conversion.
The evangelist closed his sermon by showing that God had done His part and that all now depended upon us accepting His invitation and yielding obedience to His laws.
There will be services tonight Sunday to be "Mothers' Day" and a big rally will be held in all departments of the work in her honor.
