AT THE PICTURE SHOWS

The Orpheum.
A swell program for Tuesday's change:
1. The Clown and His Best Performance. Vitagraph. Little Paul Linton thought he had entered Fairyland when he attended the show. He was fascinated by the clown who always stopped before the child and gave a few extra touches to his act in acknowledgement of the boy's appreciation.
2. Townhall, Tonight! Essanay. The funniest of the Essanay, Snakeville comedy. Two wandering Theatians give a show and the cowboy audience leaves in disgust. They are caught stealing pies and one is locked up. The other makes up as an old lady and believing it the prisoner's mother she releases the boy and starts a subscription to send the couple back east.
3. What Will Be Will Be. Lubin. Here's a love story that ends up with a tripple wedding. Widow Hopkins and her daughter Daisy, lived next door to Widower Morgan and his son Jack. A quarrel, a conciliation and finally the whole sale wedding.

4. A Convict's Heart. Pathe. A convict escapes and is found by a little boy who takes him home, feeds him, gives him a new suit of clothes and helps file the shackles off his feet. There is a $500 reward offered for his recapture. The boy goes with the convict into the woods and there tells him the story of the mortgaged home and the hardened criminal, knowing that the human bloodhounds are on his trail, compels the boy to deliver him into the sheriff's hands at the point of the gun, which the convict himself supplies to get the reward and pay the mortgage.

The Pastime.
If you see it at the Pastime it is the best. Tuesday's change of program includes the feature film: "Maud Muller." Selig. Pictured from Ulric B. Collins dramatization of Whittier's poem. He pictures to us a midsummer day's meeting between Maud Muller and the Judge. The Judge tarries by Maud's hayfield longer than necessary. They separate and each become conscious of a longing in their hearts. Maud marries a man, unlearned and poor, the Judge weds a woman who lives for fashion. And still in the heart of both the Judge and the lass there lingers that aching void.

"Dr. Bill's Patient." Essanay. This is a decidedly charming comedy, with many good hearty laughs. It is love at first sight with Dr. Bill and Cynthia. Cynthia's charms win him over and a rapid-transit love play comes to a delicious close.
"Tommy's Rocking Horse." Melies. Little Tommy was a favorite with the X. Y. outfit. He was left in their charge for a day and the boys gave him a candy pull which made him sick. Nothing would brace Tommy up save the rocking horse which he had long wanted.
"The Liar." Pathe. A romance of the olden time when men were condemned to death for stealing.
"The Magnet." Pathe. This film is a real treat.

The Cosy.
For Monday and Tuesday, four of the finest pictures you ever saw. Every one is a top-notch:
"Faith." Rex. A wonderfully beautiful story told in the matchless Rex way. The Rev. Barton lost faith in the gospel and resigned. Leaving a note for his wife and child he went west in search of gold. After five years he was successful. One night he took refuge in a miner's hut but was distrustful of the family till he heard the child saying her evening prayer. Fear vanished and the old faith in God returned. Next day he started home to find his loved ones, and finding them thanked God for faith.

The Hold-Up. Solax. A strong military picture. Drake, a mine owner, in love with the colonel's daughter, overheard Lieutenant Harris arrange a fake hold-up. Wishing to ruin his rival, Drake told the colonel the hold-up was genuine and soldiers were dispatched with orders to shoot to kill. But the girl found out and riding like a whirlwind saved the lieutenant by explaining the matter. The fake bandits were reprimanded and let go.

Count Ivan and the Waitress. Thanhouser. The count, accused of conspiracy by the czar, fled from Russia, landing in America penniless. He earned a meagre living by music, but troubles came fast and he was soon destitute. A waitress feeling pity for the aged man, took care of him. Later a pardon came and wealth. He bought the restaurant for the girl and left a fortune in the cash register before sailing for Russia.
Mutt and Jeff at the Fortune Tellers. Nestor. Take the best comedy that ever happened, boil it down till only laughs remain—then you have an idea of what this Mutt & Jeff comedy is like. She was a fortune teller and she told Mutt his fortune for $2.00. In trying to avoid the awful things she predicted, Mutt got in a terrible mess eggs-actly.

AT THE OREGON THEATRE

If there is any truth in the saying, "The better the day the better the deed," the fact that Charles Major wrote "When Knighthood Was in Flower" on Sunday may account for the excellence of the book. But the adage does not apply to the presentation of the dramatization as it will be produced at the Oregon theatre tonight by Miss Anna Day and her excellent company "Mary Tudor," the heroine described in the book as "a person of womanly perfection, with skin like velvet with a voice soft and full, and except when angry, which alas was not infrequent, had a low cooing note that made it irresistible. An adult pleader, knowing her power full well, she did not always plead, having the Tudor temper and preferring to command." Miss Anna Day is the personification of that description—a real "Mary Tudor." She more than gratifies the wish of Charles Major, the author, that he might see his heroine in the flesh, for that no more perfect impersonation of Mary could be given than Miss Day's
