Forty Negroes Dine in THE FAMOUS ARLINGTON

Washington Hotel Manager Says it Was Mistake—J. P. Morgan One of Patrons.

Washington.—The Arlington Hotel once the most exclusive hostelry in this city, entertained forty negroes at dinner, Representative Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, leader of the house democrats, lives at the Arlington.

The directors of the Jeans School fund, a colored organization, held their annual meeting in this city and following it they held a banquet. Booker T. Washington is one of the leading members of the organization, and Assistant Attorney General Lewis, the Boston negro whom President Taft appointed, is another.

The banquet was held in the annex of the hotel. The management attempted to conceal the fact that they were entertaining negroes and the attendants were ordered not to give out any information.

Peter Taylor, Jr., manager of the hotel said that the banquet was a mistake. He said that when Lewis made arrangements for the spread he gave him the impression that there were to be only a few colored men and the remainder of the guests were to be white.

The Arlington annex is an old fashioned red brick mansion close to the hotel proper.

The annex is one of the most historic houses in Washington. Owen Meredith wrote "Lucille" in the house. Charles Sumner lived there after the war. Cornelius N. Bliss occupied the house as his residence while he was secretary of the interior, and former Postmaster General Henry C. Payne lived there while he was a member of the McKinley cabinet.

Hires Train to See HOW IT IS TO BE RICH

Wilkes-Barre Humorist to Come Here for a Day Just as If He Were Wealthy.

Wilkes-Barre.—Desiring for once to experience the sensation of being rich, John J. McDevitt, a humorist, who recently made $2000 by withdrawing as the democratic candidate for county treasurer, after being unexpectedly nominated at the primaries, arranged to engage a special train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad to go to New York for one day's experience. McDevitt said:

"You see I have no particular reason for going to New York. But I feel that as the well to do take trips to the metropolis it is up to me to get in the swim.

"I will take a special train from here some day during the holiday season. The train will have three coaches and full equipment. It will go right on to New York. There I will have a taxicab waiting for me. I will go to the Waldorf-Astoria for lunch and then take in one of the popular shows. Then I will return to my home and feel that I have done my duty to the town its people and myself."

The old objection to woman suffrage that few except the notoriously bad women would vote, is seldom heard any more.
