

CATTLE SHORTAGE NOW IMPENDING

KILLERS LESS INDEPENDENT AND CRY FOR OFFERINGS

Prices Still Going Up at North Portland Yards—Hogs Holding Their Own While Sheep Are Not in Sight—Wheat Price is Bearish.

(From Thursday's Journal.) The extent of the firmness in the cattle situation is easily shown by the way killers are beating around after supplies. Butchers who were so full of cattle a short time ago that they cried for relief but none came until they began to severely cut prices, are now clamoring loudly for offerings. There were only small supplies in the yards today, a total of 170 head being received compared with just eight head last Thursday. A sale of one load was made at $6.15, weighed off the cars, which really means $6 on the fill, or the same price as yesterday.

The cattle were produced by S. & S. at $6.15 but were immediately resold to the Union Meat company at $6.25. This really means an advance of 10c above the high point of yesterday and sets an entirely new record for the present season.

Cattlemen Holding Back. Intent upon getting back some of the money they lost during the recent pressure and downfall in cattle prices shippers are holding back their supplies and are giving butchers a taste of their own strong medicine. While cattle could scarcely be given away a short time ago, they are so scarce at this time that killers are compelled to bow every time they see a shipper. The firmness in the situation here is however, but a reflection of what is expected to happen all over the country in the immediate future. Already an improved tone is beginning to show at some of the eastern centers and this causes shippers to hold aloft more than ever. It is the custom for shippers to hold back cattle when they are wanted and ship whenever the wants of killers were fully supplied.

Hogs Are Merely Holding. There was no change in the hog situation at North Portland today. Only a handful of swine arrived, there not being a sufficient amount to test the trade. Best sold at $6.50 and heavier stuff at $5.50.

The absence of a big supply of hogs here is expected to force killers to rely more and more upon shipments from the Missouri river section. On the basis of what these swine are costing killers to land on the Pacific coast the local market should be at least 50c higher. It cost $7.25 to land the outside hogs here while the best price obtainable for selected local production recently has been $6.70.

SMALL POX SCARE IS OVER. Light Form of Disease in Corvallis Under Entire Control—Very Few Cases.

Corvallis, Ore.—"The rumor that Corvallis might be quarantined on account of small pox is nothing but ridiculous gossip," said Dr. H. S. Perrot, city health officer, this morning. "We have not had thirty cases all together, and they were carefully quarantined and every precaution taken against the spread of the disease. The main means of contagion was the city public schools, and since the vaccination of the school children the disease has been well under control."

"At the college there have been but five students affected by the disease, and they were quarantined at once in town, and their residence and class rooms thoroughly fumigated, that others might not be endangered."

"People coming to the college for the short course will be running no more risk of exposure than they would if they stayed at home," said Dr. William T. Johnson of the Corvallis hospital. "There is no more small pox here than in other towns in the valley; not so much, in fact, as in a number of others."

The cases have been so extremely light that for some time it was doubted whether it was really small pox and not some lesser epidemic, as chickenpox.
