Newsy Notes of Pendleton

John Kearney Is Back.

John Kearney, night police officer, who has been spending a week in Portland, returned to Pendleton yesterday evening and is back on the job again.

Hayes Out on Bonds.

Ed Hayes, the young man who was arrested Thursday night charged with robbing the Pendleton Ice & Cold Storage company of several hundred dollars, succeeded in raising his bonds of $500 yesterday and is now at liberty for the present. Herman Peters was one of his bondsmen.

Gets License for a Day.

Glen Surdivant enjoys the distinction of being the last hunter to secure a 1911 license in this county and it will give him the privilege of hunting unmolested by game wardens only one day, as it expires Sunday night at 12 o'clock.

New Year's Hunters Guilty.

Nimrods who have planned to invade the feeding grounds of the wild fowl on New Year's day can not help but violate the game laws, according to the opinion of C. K. Cranston, chairman of the state fish and game commission. Their 1911 licenses will expire at midnight Sunday and as they cannot secure 1912 licenses in 1911 and cannot secure them Monday because it is a non-judicial day, they must either forego the pleasure of killing the feathered denizens of the marsh land or violate the game laws.

Former Resident Dies.

Word has been received here of the death of Frank J. Murphy, for many years a resident of this city, in a Walla Walla hospital on Christmas day. Death was due to complications incident to old age. Since leaving Pendleton, Mr. Murphy had been making his home near Ritzville, Washington. His son, Frank Murphy, jr., is still living in this city. Col. J. H. Raley is now engaged in the settlement of the estate.

Two Marriage Licenses.

Marriage licenses were issued today to John H. C. Behrens and Sophia Emma Muller, a Helix couple, and to Willard Forth and Naomi Johnson, seventeen year old daughter of W. M. Johnson of this city. The wedding of the latter couple was performed by Rev. Evans in the Methodist parsonage at high noon in the presence of relatives.

Sunday School Elects Officers.

At the annual Sunday school election of the Methodist Episcopal church Thursday evening the following officers were chosen: Superintendent, A. J. Owen; assistant superintendent, Mrs. S. J. Jinks; secretary, Alfred Christiansen; grading secretary, Mrs. S. A. Lowell; treasurer, D. B. Waffle; librarian, Grace Oliver; chorister, Doris Gregory; pianist, Audrey Hunter; primary superintendent, Mrs. N. Evans; cradle roll superintendent, Mrs. A. J. Owens; home department superintendent, B. E. Coon.

FREDERICKS WILL APPEAR BEFORE INDIANAPOLIS JURY

Los Angeles, Dec. 30.—Carrying with him the original confession of Ortle McManigal, in which the names of twenty labor leaders are said to be mentioned in connection with the dynamiting, District Attorney Fredericks left today to testify before the grand jury at Indianapolis. Special Attorney Lawler announced today that the local jury would not return indictments until January 8. Indications are that Tietmoe's office is under fire. He, with other labor leaders, has been held here two weeks but never called before the grand jury. Meanwhile he has been ordered to report daily, while his employes and others have been examined.

DR. SUN WILL BE INAUGURATED SOON

Shanghai, Dec. 30.—Dr. Sun, president of the republic of China, within a few days will be formally inaugurated at Nanking, which will be chosen as the capital. He says he believes there is no doubt but that the republican form of government will be chosen in preference to a constitutional monarchy, by provincial delegates now assembled at Nanking.

There Are Two Sides

to every question, but there can be only one opinion of our Cleaning and pressing. It is commended in the highest terms by those who have favored us with their patronage in the past. We have the most up-to-date methods and can do work quicker and better than our rivals, because we are better equipped to do the work. And we charge very moderately for our services too.

NO MORE HIKING FOR RAMROD BOB

WALKS 300 MILES IN LESS THAN 120 HOURS

Treads Way to Spokane and Returns to Pendleton by Same Method—Stepped Off Forty-seven Miles One Day, Forty-two Another.

"Never again," said "Ramrod Bob" when, footsore and weary, he walked into the office of Chief of Police Gurdane yesterday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock, having completed his hike to Spokane and return, a distance of 500 miles, in the remarkable time of 120 hours. This he accomplished in the dead of winter under circumstances of exceeding difficulty but he declares that he will never more essay to establish a record under conditions which he encountered on his recent jaunt.

And now let it be said that "Ramrod Bob" is none other than Robert Carlin, well known in this city which he has made his headquarters for the past nine years. Yesterday on his return, true to his promise, he revealed his identity which before his start he had disclosed to but a few of his friends. Carlin is just a plain farm hand and makes no pretensions of being anything else unless it is an Odd Fellow for he sports the three links on his coat lapel and acknowledges connection with the Freewater branch of the lodge.

Makes Record Trip.

Carlin, or "Ramrod Bob" as he chose to be called, left Pendleton on the morning of December 15 at 7 o'clock and by the terms of his agreement was to walk to Spokane and back by December 30, and was to spend two days in the northern city. This he accomplished in record time, his uptrip requiring 65 hours of actual walking time, while his homecoming journey was made in ten hours less. Thus the lanky pedestrian made an average of over four miles an hour and this too under the handicap of walking 70 miles through the snow and 170 miles over a loose ballasted railroad track. The entire journey was made on the tracks of the O-W, R. & N. line, which fact, the hiker says, was responsible for a few additional hours of time.

On leaving Pendleton he was supplied with credentials by the chief of police and by means of affidavits from affidavits from police officers in different cities regarding his arriving and departing time, his account of his travel is verified in part.

Had Little Money.

He left Pendleton with but $1.55 in his pocket and by his agreement was not to beg, borrow, steal or work for money, but was to subsist on his original capital and such supplementary funds as were tendered to him voluntarily. In consequence of this agreement, he declares he was forced to keep up walking steam on a very meager diet on the up-trip. In fact the total contributions made to him while en route to Spokane amounted to only $1.20 and he declares he walked 28 miles one day with but one meal and a box of graham crackers in his stomach. On the back stretch, however, people were more generous and he received $2.70 in cash and a Christmas dinner, the latter blessing bestowed upon him by a St. Johns editor.

To Walla Walla in a Day.

The longest distance he traveled in one day was 47 miles when on his initial lap he walked from this city to Walla Walla. On the other day he declares he made 42 miles in 9 1-2 hours.

"Ramrod" Bob recounts no stirring adventures of his stroll beyond encountering an evil looking hobo in the dusk one evening who made several threatening advances but was finally intimidated when the hiker cleared his combination ramrod and badge for action. This was the only weapon he carried through the entire journey, and since his return, he has bestowed it upon Chief Gurdane.

Wins no Money.

Carlin emerges from his jaunt no richer than when he began it for his hike was not the result of a wager or any agreement by which he was to profit. He undertook it for his own satisfaction, but declares hereafter, if ever he is tempted to grid up his loins for a walk, he will choose some season to which zero weather is foreign. He is considering a trip to Portland now and thinks he might make it in the future some time.
