LOCAL MEN AID LOS ANGELES.

A handsome financial consideration being involved, both Railey and Gwinn declare they refused to have anything to do with the undertaking until given positive assurance that no effort would be made to enroach upon the territory tributary to the Round-up or to rob the Pendleton institution of its prestige.

Both declare they have just as much pride and interest in the local show as they have ever had and will be boosters for it as strong as they have been heretofore. When asked if he would retain the secretaryship of the Round-Up, Mr. Gwinn stated that insofar as he was personally concerned he saw no reason to resign his position, his stipulations with the new company protecting the local institution in its reliance upon his services. He stated that he had made provisions so that his full time and attention can be devoted to the Round-Up at least thirty days prior to the next exhibition.

Much Criticism Locally.
There has been much comment over the action of the two men who have been so instrumental in making the Round-Up a success and much criticism is being directed toward them, both by members of the Round-Up directorate and by citizens of Pendleton and the county. Many accuse the men of assisting in bringing about what the association and city have fought to prevent, namely a duplication of the local show and they charge the men with allowing their commercial instincts to stifle their patriotic pride.

Justify Themselves.
When informed of the hostile sentiment their announcement had aroused, both men declared they have weighed the matter more thoroughly than their critics could possibly have done and are satisfied they are doing nothing disloyal to their home city and institution. They pointed out that Los Angeles is far removed from the zone from which the Round-Up draws its patronage and that their connection with the new company will serve as a safeguard to the local show. Indeed, they declare the original intention of the company was to put on the show in Portland and that they refused to have any connection with it if it persisted in this purpose. They also call attention to the fact that they informed the directors of the Round-Up of the proposition made to them and that no objection was made by any one of the board.

Dr. Carlissell is past seventy but is still very active and incidentally, is a arduous advocate of Roosevelt's reelection.

Five Years of Severe Rheumatism

Mr. Goldstein says: "I suffered from rheumatism five years. It kept me from business and caused excruciating pain. My knees would become as stiff as steel. I tried many medicines without relief, then took Hood's Sarsaparilla, soon felt much better, and now consider myself entirely cured. I recommend Hood's." Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolate tablets called Sarsatabs.

FIRST PRAYER BOOK COPY.

Interesting Relic Is Unearthed in Society Liberty, New York.
New York—A copy of the first English prayerbook printed in this city was unearthed a few days ago in the Society Library, 109 University place, when a copy of the laws of the colony of New York, printed in 1713 by William Bradford, New York's first printer, was being prepared for binding.

Only one perfect copy of this book is known, and the Historical Society of Pennsylvania is its proud owner. An imperfect copy was in the Brinley sale, and brought $350. There is no copy in the Hoe collection. This was the first issue of the English prayerbook before the revolution, and the only issue except for a corrected edition which was printed shortly after.

Bradford, who was a vestryman of Trinity church from 1703 to 1710, was induced by his fellow vestrymen to undertake its publication. The church records for August 23, 1704, read: "Ordered, that the church wardens do lend Mr. Bradford 30 or 40 pounds for six months, on security without interest, for purchasing paper to print common prayer books." Rev. John Sharp, chaplain of the queen's forces at the fort and the founder of the first public library in New York, became his security.

The book is as small quarto of 322 pages, the last seventy-nine pages containing Tate and Brady's version of the Psalms. In the first issue Psalm xii. to xvii were omitted. The second issue contained these and a new title page.

Apparently Bradford lost money on the edition, as the records of Trinity church, April 26, 1711, state that: "In consideration of the great loss he has sustained in printing the common prayer and new versions of the Psalms, ordered, that the church wardens deliver to Mr. Bradford his said bond."

"WORKING GIRLS WILL EMANCIPATE THE SEX"

Mrs. Belmont, Flaying "Injustice to Labor," Says Wage Earners Lead Suffrage Fight.

New York.—Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who attended the Triangle fire trial with her son, Harold Vanderbilt, denounced the jury's verdict of not guilty as a great injustice to labor. She declared that the working girls would free their sex by leading the fight for the ballot.

"As long as the working girl has no vote," said Mrs. Belmont, "she will get no justice if such justice is to conflict with any man's interest. It has always been so and the verdict rendered by the jury today proves that conditions have not changed."

"The majority of women are asleep," continued Mrs. Belmont. "The working women, however, are waking up to suffrage. The society women—the old sleeping beauties—are very slow in waking up to the injustice being done their wage-earning sisters and to themselves as well in being deprived of a voice in the government."

"But it is the wage-earning women who will lead the suffrage battle to victory. The working people have always led all reforms. It was the influential men in power who crucified Christ. We must look to the working classes to bring about the emancipation of women."

BERLIN FOR CROWN PRINCE.

Ill on Account of Climate of Danzig Where He Is Situated.

Berlin, Germany.—The possibility that Crown Prince Frederick William who was prevented by a catarrhal cold from coming to Berlin from Danzig to be present when the Crown Princess Cecile gave birth to her fourth son on December 19, and also at Christmas, will abandon Danzig as a residence during the winter, is being discussed in court circles. The climate of Danzig, where the crown prince is serving in the army as colonel in command of the Death-head Hussars, is, owing to its proximity to the Baltic sea, unsuitable in
