MAIL TRAIN DERAILED BY KINK IN A RAIL

T. F. O'Brien, Pendleton agent for the O. W. R. & N., has just received the following copy of the report of the report of the recent derailment of Mail train No. 10 near Quinton station. Quinton, Ore., Jan. 22, 1912. Report of Board of Inquiry Derailment of Mail Train 10 1-4 Mile East Mile Post 130, 10:22 p. m., January 21, 1912. Mail train No. 10, engine No. 98, Conductor Wm. Dunn, Engineer H. Jones, derailed engine and two mail cars at Mile Post 130 1-4; no personal injuries. This derailment was caused by short kinks inwards of 4" in the south rail at a distance of 30" from the joint. Kink was caused by rock, 9x5 1-2x8 1-2 striking rail, rock breaking loose from top of bluff 800 feet in height and about 2000 feet long from south side of the track. From testimony of engine crew and watchman we are satisfied that watchman had very recently passed over this portion of the track on the return trip had reached Mile Post 131 and heard the rocks falling and immediately started back for the purpose of flagging train No. 10, but was unable to reach the point of the accident in time to flag train. Engine 98 is equipped with electric headlight, which was burning brightly at the time. Kink being short, we are satisfied that engineer could not see same. This accident happened on tangent. Speed of train 30 miles per hour. From testimony of witnesses examined and from evidence secured at the scene of the accident the board is of the opinion the accident was unavoidable and that proper precautions were taken and track properly patrolled. WORLD'S GIRL WANDERER, Little One Aged Nine, But Has Traveled Thousands of Miles. Leavenworth.—The United States army can now probably claim the world's juvenile traveling record by virtue of the globe-trotting of little Miss Julia D. Kitts, daughter of Lieutenant William P. Kitts, Twenty-first United States Infantry. The child was born at Fort Lincoln, N. D., April 19, 1904, and was the first baby born at that post. Within three weeks she had traveled 452 miles; within two months, 1250 miles; within six months, 3750 miles, and within a year 13,300 miles. In this short time the baby had traveled from North Dakota to Minnesota, to the Atlantic coast, to San Francisco and thence to the Philippines. It took her only two years more to add 17,000 miles to her record, making the total distance covered in three years 32,000 miles, on an average more than 10,000 miles a year. She has kept on going and at present has more than 46,000 miles to her credit. This does not include the distance traveled in commissary wagons and on Moro ponies.

HANDICAP ON WEALTHY MEN'S SONS WHO WORK

Associates Won't Take Them Seriously, Kruttschnitt's Hardworking Son Declares. San Francisco.—T. E. Kruttschnitt, assistant superintendent of the Tucson division of the Southern Pacific and son of Julius Kruttschnitt, director of maintenance of way of the Harriman system, who is here for a brief stay, said: "The average wealthy man's son who starts out in the world to make his own living without the aid of influence higher up has a pretty hard row of stumps to hoe. His father's wealth and commercial prestige are drawbacks. They handicap him just as much as a poor man's son believes the lack of money handicaps him. People refuse to take me seriously when I say this, but it is true. "The rich man's son who starts out in an humble position as I did is not accepted seriously by his fellow workers. They believe he has been put there as the result of some whim or hobby. They refuse to believe that he is in earnest, sincere. They will not accept him as such. And the only thing he can do is to go on with the work he has chosen, secure in the knowledge that he is true to himself and his own convictions. "I believe my father realizes this. He never wanted any of his children to enter the service of any company with which he was connected for the reason that he knew the other men would think the son got there through a pull. That is one reason why I didn't let father know when I entered the employ of the southern Pacific three years ago. Not until four months afterward did he know what I was doing. "Young Mr. Kruttschnitt came here from Bowie, Arizona, where only a short time ago, when the shopmen struck, he set an example for the remaining employes by donning overalls and turning to as an engine wiper. He is barely in his thirties. HUNGER AND COLD KILL A WEALTHY INVENTOR. G. Alonzo Wilson, 'Perpetual Motion King,' Is Found Dead in His Hermit's Home. South Norwalk, Conn.—In a wretchedly furnished little home at Rowayton, without even a stove or a morsel of food, G. Alonzo Wilson, known for years as the "king of perpetual motion," was found dead and within a few miles of the dead man's home in various banks, are several hundred thousand dollars to his credit. Lack of food and the bitter cold killed Wilson, the coroner says. Wilson was an inventor. Thirty years ago his devices caused a sensation. Some of his ideas it is said, are now used on sewing machines and the wireless. He turned hermit and went to live in the lonely little house at Rowayton. At first his neighbors visited him and tried to include him in the social life of the town, but he discouraged these calls and showed plainly that he preferred the companionship of his reflections to any other. The hospitable neighbors finally let him alone. For days at a time he would not be seen except by tradesmen from whom he bought scant supplies. No one had the temerity to introduce on the hermit. It was seldom that a light was seen in the house at night. Not even a dog or a cat shared the old man's loneliness. A tradesman went to the house thinking Wilson might want to order some food. Repeated knocks on the door brought no response. The only sound was the beating of a blind against a broken window, through which the biting wind whistled. As the shade was blown back the tradesman looked into the house and saw Wilson lying on his couch. He was dressed. The tradesman told the authorities who immediately went to the house. Wilson was sixty years of age. His nearest relative is M. C. Ogden, who will inherit the fortune.

WHOOPIING COUGH PARTY IN CHICAGO

"It Was So Lonesome to Whoop Alone," Said Miss Whose Father's Auto Brought Guests. Chicago.—A novel social diversion was a whooping cough party given by Katherine Gloor to an even dozen of "whoopers," Miss Gloor is twelve years old. Four of her young friends were "whoopers," and she discovered seven others, six girls and a boy, all of them poor. She sent out her father's limousine with two trained nurses, and the even dozen were taken to her big home at 5724 Kenmore avenue. "It was so lonesome to whoop alone," she said, "and I thought how nice it would be to have a whooping party." The poor children were wrapped in warm blankets and shawls. Freddie Hegenisch, the only boy, brought along Bowser, his dog. Bowser whooped and coughed too. Little Miss Gloor gave her guests a big dinner, with favors for all. Then there were dancing and games. No one could sing because of the whoops. Bowser found difficulty in expressing his gratification, in something between a whoop and a bark.

SKETCH OF GOLDEN GATE GAINS HIM HIS FREEDOM

Drunkard Saves Fine of $5 by Picture of Entrance to San Francisco Bay. Fargo, N. D.—A man giving the name of Clarence B. Boyd and claiming to be a brother of a former mayor of Seattle satisfied a fine of $5 in police court here by drawing a charcoal sketch of the Golden Gate at San Francisco. "Guilty," said Boyd in answer to the charge of intoxication. "I've been this way for years and I've had a good time, but it don't get you anything. I have been around some, but I haven't any money, judge. I am something of an artist, though." He then, with the end of a stick charred in the jail furnace, drew a sketch of the entrance to San Francisco bay. "Better hang it over the jail door," observed the court. "It might brighten things up a bit. Boyd, you are not a bad sort of fellow and I guess you have paid your fine."

New York.—When Henry Opperman of Baldwin, Long Island, a railroad passenger agent, greeted an incoming friend with a cordial handshake, his hand was so squeezed so hard that his ring nearly cut into his flesh. In adjusting the ring a minute later he noticed that it lacked its diamond, valued at $400. Despite a diligent search made for its recovery, the diamond was not found.

WILL FACE DEATH AFTER BEING GRADUATED

Tufts College Student Going Back to Russia to Resume Making Trouble for the Czar. Cambridge, Mass.—Few men would care to return to their native country with a probable sentence of death or life imprisonment awaiting them, especially if they had already succeeded in avoiding such dreary prospects. But not so with Jacob Sanerib, a Russian student at Tufts college. The young man is only awaiting the day that will give him his degree so that he may return to his home in Russia and resume his work which in 1906 brought on him the displeasure of the czar and the Russian police and forced him to leave the country to escape being shot or sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor in Siberia. In 1905 Sanerib, who was a student in Galdigen, interested himself in the social democratic party, which organization stands for the establishment of a republican form of government in Russia.
