TWO TEAMS MAKING READY FOR FRAYS

HIGH SCHOOL AND COMMERCIAL CLUB FIVES PLAYING TODAY

Former Getting in Trim for Meeting With Pearson Academy Basketball Aggregation and Latter for Game With Milton Club.

To prepare both teams for their battles tomorrow night, the high school and Commercial club basketball players will meet this afternoon in a practice game. Tomorrow night the high school boys meet the Pearson's Academy aggregation in Walla Walla while the business men play the Milton Commercial athletes in the local gymnasium at the same time.

Considerable interest is being aroused over the battle of the business men to be held in the Commercial gym for the reason that some of the participants have been regarded as physical fossils and athletic antiquities for some time past and their friends are curious to see whether or not they can "come back" to the limbliness which was theirs in the palmy days of yore.

The local team will be picked from a dozen or more men who have been limbering up their limbs for the past few months in the gymnasium. These include besides Margaret Montgomery Charles Marsh, secretary of the Hartman Abstract company, whose rotundity of form makes him fast on the roll; George A. Hartman, Jr., cashier of the First National Bank whose speed is as conspicuous as his Van Dyke; Lee D. Drake, advertising manager of the East Oregonian who follows the ball faster than he does a merchant with a clearance sale on; George Strand and A. C. Funk, both deputy sheriffs whose experience in chasing criminals makes them especially good following their men; Aubrey Graham, of the furniture firm of Graham & Son, the two ton lightweight; Merle Farrell, bookkeeper at the American National Bank, and Merle Chessman, city editor of the East Oregonian, the spare rib twins; John T. Lambirth, another banker of humming bird proportions; R. W. Fletcher, E. O. circulation manager who circulates around the floor with considerable velocity and a number of other near-athletes of varied qualities and attainments.
