ROSE O' SPRINGTIME.

I. The daisied-day, with a spring-breeze in it, And you feel like dancing every minute! Joy in the world, and you're here to win it, And you'll reap the rose in the morning. II. That breeze so sweet—oh, it comes from over Violet-vales and a bed of clover; Vales where Love is a glad, gay rover, And you'll reap the rose in the morning. III. Winter gray, 'tis the time to sever, Come you back to the glad land—never! Life's a dream, and we'll dream forever And reap the rose in the morning. —Frank L. Stanton.

COLLIERS' FOR WILSON.

Colliers Weekly is an able advocate of the progressive cause and it is worthy of note that it is upholding the candidacy of Woodrow Wilson for the democratic nomination for president. In the issue of February 3 Colliers defends Wilson against the fulminations of Watterson et al, and in tracing the rise of the New Jersey man said:

"The development of Governor Wilson in the arena of actual contemporary conflict grew out of his experiences at Princeton. He learned that the university was to a large extent a rich man's club. It is located about halfway between Broad Street and Wall Street. Its Board of Trustees contain some very fine men, but a majority of one on critical measures voted for what the governor deemed special privilege. His struggle to make the university more democratic led President Wilson to a sharper realization of the forces that control so much of life. He passed on to the seat of power in New Jersey, and the struggle with the machine there brought out the same principles. He sees his former friends of the wealthy class turning one by one against him, and using their adroitness to misinterpret his every act. The republicans have a number of strong possible candidates. Mr. Hughes has made a statement so definite that it probably will stop all consideration of his name, in spite of the fact that he would make a tremendously strong run and a sound and powerful president. Colonel Roosevelt and Senator La Follette have behind them long records of tested courage, wisdom, and usefulness. Senator Cummins, is an able man, and there are other republicans who might be successful dark horses. In the democratic party the situation is altogether different. There the whole fight is centered on Governor Wilson. He is the one candidate of whom the special interests are afraid, because they think he may be both nominated and elected. What they may later do among the other candidates is uncertain. Their first business is to kill Wilson. They are out to kill Wilson alright and the reactionary press has done its utmost along that line. But it is entirely possible that the fight the interests have made on the governor has aided his candidacy. In the minds of many well informed men

No Excuse Now for Greasy Doughnuts

A lady in Greenville, S. C., recently wrote a friend as follows: "For years, after preparing doughnuts with the utmost care, I was disappointed to see them come out greasy and unwholesome looking. However, with my first use of Cottolene for frying them, I was delighted, as they were brown, crisp and delicious. "For making doughnuts, pastry, light bread and flaky biscuits, I prefer Cottolene to any other shortening on the market. We even carry a pail of it on our annual camping trips through the mountains. Cottolene—the perfect shortening—is made from vegetable-oil; it contains no hog fat—no indigestion.

the fact that Wall street influences oppose him is a great asset for Wilson. They are boosting him up the stairway of popularity, not downwards though they mean to do the latter.

HANDS OFF!

There are indications that a certain corporation which collects a large sum of money from the people of this city each month is anxious to have a hand in the Commercial club election tonight. It should be needless to remark that the Commercial association of the city of Pendleton is not designed as an adjunct to any public service corporation and that many people may look upon that concern's activity as an exhibition of what may be termed nerve. It would be better for that corporation to confine its energies to improving its local equipment and the service it renders the people of Pendleton.

BEWARE THE COLONEL.

If La Follette should be forced to withdraw from the race because of broken health the Taft managers will have to look out or the Roosevelt forces will take the ship. Until now the Taftites have had rather smooth sailing with the field against the man in the white house hopelessly divided. If it should turn into a contest between Taft and Roosevelt the latter will have the delegations from states where the presidential preference primary law is in force. Taft would then have to rely upon his southern delegates and upon the support of states that are machine ridden. He would probably be able to get away with the nomination with the aid of such forces but it would be no certainty.

King George has returned to England after a three months' absence in India. Apparently his subjects got along quite well during his absence and it is doubtful if his return will have any marked effect upon the political and economic life of Great Britain.

IN SELECTING PAUL SPERRY FOR A PLACE UPON THE ROUND-UP BOARD THE DIRECTORS DID NOT GO WRONG.

The man who pulled off the "Westward Ho" parades during the past two years has going qualities that are still needed. When Joe Bailey of Texas assailed Bryan for being in politics for money the wrong man did the speaking.

Most people would rather test the ice some place other than above Niagara falls.

Why does not the price of wheat soar while the grain is still in the hands of the growers?

The birds seem to have confidence in the Ground hog's theory.

THE TRAVELING MAN.

First in the crowded car is he to offer— This traveling man, unhonored and unsung— The seat he paid for to some woman, young Or old and wrinkled; first is he to proffer Something, a trifle from his samples, maybe, To please the fancy of a crying baby.

Well versed is he in all those ways conducive To comfort, where least comfort can be found; He turns the seat unasked, yet unobtrusive; His little deeds of thoughtfulness abound; Is glad to please or have you please him, Yet takes it very calmly if you freeze him.

The sorrows of the moving world distress him He never fails to lend what aid he can, A thousand hearts have cause this day to bless him— This much abused, misused commercial man. I do not strive to cast a halo round him, But speak of him exactly as I found him. —Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

TOO MUCH FOR HIM.

One day a teacher of mathematics went shopping with his wife, says the Washington Star. He tagged along listlessly from counter to counter until they came to the dress trimmings department, and there he found something in his line. Said his wife to the saleswoman: "How wide is that gold-spangled black crepe?" "Three eighths of a yard," said the girl. "How much is it a yard?" "Three dollars." "Well," said the professor's wife, "how much of three eighths wide material will it take to put four six-inch strips around a two and three-quarter-yard skirt, and how much will it cost?" At the first mention of those figures the professor's head began to reel, and it reeled still more when his wife and the girl got out pencils and paper and began to do their sum. Presently his wife said: "Here, dear, you know all about mathematics. Help us solve this problem, won't you?" But the professor said: "Excuse me. I feel faint. I must get a little fresh air," and ignominiously fled.

His wife came home with exactly the amount of material required, and the professor took her word for it that she didn't pay a cent too much.

NOTHING THE MATTER.

Canvasser—Are you single? Man at the Door—Yes. "Why, the people next door told me you were married." "So I am." "You told me just now you were single." "Yes; so I did." "Well, what is the matter with you?" "Nothing, sir. My name is Single, and I'm married. Good day, sir."

THE NEW FACILITY.

The player seized the ball as it rolled away from the halfback and started down the field with it. Just as he crossed the goal line he stumbled and fell and broke his neck. "What was the cause of death?" they asked the coroner. "An accident?" "A fluke," replied the official as he made a note of it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

What He Wanted to Know.

She—My father made his fortune when he was a young man. Would you know how he did it? He—Not particularly; but I would like to know if he still has it.—London Opinion.
