SCHOOL LANDS ARE SOLD AT A LOSS

MILLIONS ARE SACRIFICED IN DISPOSING OF PROPERTY

Worthless Acres are Being Held by the State and Valuable Tracts are Disposed of Through Unfamiliarity of State Boards.

Salem, Ore., March 12.—"The school fund of the state of Oregon has been beaten out of millions of dollars simply because the state land boards have not had data as to the value of school lands that have been sold," is the surprising statement made by State Land Agent T. A. Rinehart.

"Speaking in round numbers, we have $6,000,000 in the school fund, and we ought to have $20,000,000. Nearly all the school land in western Oregon has been sold—at some price. We have about 500,000 acres of school land left, most of which is in the eastern part of the state. An appraisal of the land has never been made.

"When a man comes to the state land board and wants to buy school land, he offers a price and we have no information by which we can tell whether he is offering to pay full value for the land or only a third of its value. And you may depend on it that the offer is usually much less than the true value.

"We have a minimum price fixed of $7.50 an acre. School land that is worth more than that price has been readily sold, while the real $7.50 land and poorer quality has been left on the state's hands."

This matter came before the state land board in a proposition State Land Agent Rinehart made to undertake the appraisal of all the school land left to the state. He is urging the board to permit him to begin on the task in May, after the weather is settled. His plan is to take wagon and team and make a personal inspection of every section belonging to the state. He says the work will take two or three summers to accomplish, but that the data secured will be the means of saving to the school fund large sums.

Just now the land board is negotiating with the federal government in an effort to get the government to send a special agent here to clear up the state title to certain swamp lands within the state. If the agent is sent and the work is done the coming summer it will likely interfere with State Land Agent Rinehart undertaking the appraisal of the school lands until next year.

University of Oregon.—The coming of spring has brought out the golf enthusiasts at the University of Oregon. The golf craze seems to have struck the co-eds as well as the men. Every bright day sees an enthusiastic crowd driving the little white ball over hill and dale. As a result of this display of interest, one of the Eugene jewelers has offered a cup to the champion of the links. Brooke Dickson of Pendleton has already shown his skill by qualifying for the finale. Inasmuch as he has had considerable experience in golfing, he stands a good chance of pulling down the trophy.
