SEES PASSING OF THE MARRIAGE CEREMONY

New York.—In the most remarkable and radical discussion of the women movement yet put forth, Karin Michaelis—whose "Dangerous Age," published two years ago, set the "old fashioned folk" in quite a panic by its views on life—declares that in the day to be for women, any unmarried woman who wishes for motherhood can "fulfill her destiny" with the approval of the world.

Miss Michaelis in private life is the wife of Charles Emil Etrangeland, who is secretary of the United States legation in Bolivia. She is a daughter of Baron and Baroness Joost Dabner, who are living now in this country. She was born in Denmark and counts among her friends the late Henrik Ibsen and Ellen Key of Norway.

"The time will come," she said, "when women have finally reached the ultimate solution of their position in the world under its fast progressing evolution, when any child that is here will take the name of the mother instead of the father, as they now do. Then, too, the time will come when all women, regardless of whether they are legally married, will take on the matron's title of 'Mrs.' on reaching a marriageable age, and only young girls will be called 'Miss.'"

"There is the entire matter in a nutshell. There can be no illegitimate children; that is, people will not know as they do now, whether a woman has been married or not and naturally if the mother goes by Mrs. and the child bears her name, who will know and who will care whether she is married to the father?"

"Today the opprobrium falls on the child. It is there the harm is done, and in our crude way of reckoning the child born out of wedlock must live the life of one in shame—a pariah a social outcast. How very wrong—how uncivilized."

"A human life is too precious, too wonderful a thing ever to be received as a sin or a stain on mother or fatherhood. But not until woman is awakened, not until the development of a broader culture that bringing woman into her present and increasing sex dominance was any means evolved to overcome this cruel blight on humanity. The day will come when an 'Aurora Leigh' and a 'Scarlet Letter' could not be written—the provocation will not be there."

Miss Michaelis also believes the day is approaching when women shall not have to wait for man to propose. "She will seek her own husband," she declares, "and propose to him. Why should a woman have to wait until she is asked to marry? Why shouldn't she have the right to ask a man to marry her?"

"Frudery is the cause of much of the ill-health, the discomfort of the woman of today. She pretends a modesty that is nothing short of barbarous as it acts upon her."

GIRL GIVES BLOOD TO SAVE BROTHER'S LIFE

New York.—Nineteen-year-old Emily Lang returned triumphantly to her home at 1616 Glover street, the Bronx, after having sacrificed more than a pint of her blood to save the life of her brother Frederick, Jr., 16 years old, who has been a patient in the Fordham hospital for two months.

The family is very poor and lives in a cottage. The father is a mechanic, has had more than his share of misfortune the last year. Six months ago he lost his wife and one daughter from typhoid.

Three months ago his only boy, and for the time being the only bread earner of the family, fell and broke several small bones in the right leg. Osteomyelitic, or bone disease, set in and blood poisoning followed.

The father told his daughter that unless she could find somebody who would sacrifice his blood for Fred he was doomed.

To his surprise Emily insisted on offering herself to the surgeons saying she would gladly give half her blood to save her brother. That evening the girl sped off to the hospital and asked Dr. David Carey, the house surgeon, to make a test of her blood. This was done and it was found to be in a perfectly healthy condition.

The transfusion was accomplished, the girl going through the ordeal with great bravery, laughing and joking the greater part of the time.

REMEMBERS HE HAS LIVED FOUR LIVES

Illinois Occultist Knows All About His Reincarnations, Even the Kettle and Tree.

Chicago.—William Mendenhall of Kokomo, Ill., an occultist, is certain he has lived four lives. He is engaged as a contractor in this, his fourth "little course below," to use his own words. Mendenhall is a thorough believer in reincarnation.

He has lived on the mountains, on the prairies and in the sunny south's he states. He has been six feet high, five feet high, and medium in stature, according to the occult view he takes of life. He has married the same woman in every life, and says he can recall odd things distinctly, such as a huge iron kettle and an elm tree in the front yard when he lived in the south.

"Most of us only know they have lived before when death comes upon them," he said. "Then all the panorama of the past lives comes in a wonderful vision."

"I am exceptional and am probably the only person in America who has accomplished four incarnations in so brief a time."

He says he is no professional occultist and knows about his lives because he has proved them to his own satisfaction.

CHILD BETRAYS DR. COOK.

Recognized in Paris, When Daughter Calls Balloon the "North Pole."

Paris.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook of North Pole fame, has been paying Paris a visit with Mrs. Cook and their daughter. They stopped at the Hotel D'Yvert.

The little girl of the Cooks was playing with a toy balloon in a park a few days ago and named the evasive bubble the "North Pole."

"That must be a child of Dr. Cook," remarked a bystander, and Dr. Cook who had gotten himself up to look as much as possible like a Parisian, blushed furiously and left the park. It is said that Cook is writing another book in which he will show how the people can be humbugged by proving first that he reached the north pole, and then that he didn't. This, it is said, will complete his literary work on the subject.

HE PAID MAYOR'S GAS BILLS.

Mix-Up in Supply Pipes Is Costly to Harness-Maker.

Woodbury, N. J.—For six years E. D. Knisell, a harness maker whose shop is under the mayor's office, has been paying the gas bill for the mayor, who also regularly placed his quarter in the prepaid meter. Knisell did not use a prepaid meter and as he used very little gas he complained about his bills just as regularly as they came. A few days ago he had the company place him a quarter meter.

The light in the mayor's office went out. The mayor dropped another quarter into his meter, but no gas came. This morning an investigation showed that the building was piped the line leading to the mayor's office was directly from the one that supplied Knisell's meter and all the gas for the mayor's office went through Knisell's meter.

For years the gas company has been getting double pay for the light used in the rooms above Knisell and is now figuring out how much money is due the harness maker.

121 LIVES LOST LAST WINTER IN SHIPWRECKS

Boston.—One hundred and twenty-one persons perished by shipwreck and 85 vessels met with disaster off the New England coast or while engaged in the New England, Canadian or Newfoundland trade during the fall and winter season of 1911-1912.

Of the 85 vessels cast ashore, sunk, burned or involved in other mishaps, seven were steamships, two were full-rigged ships, two were barks, three brigs, sixty-four schooners and seven were barges. The financial loss is estimated at more than $1,000,000. Heavy storms and gales swept the Atlantic during November. The worst disaster befell the Norwegian full-rigged ship Tritonia of Christiania, which was driven on the rocks and 15 of her crew of 1-8 perished.

G. O. P. SELECTION OF DEMO RESENTED

REPUBLICAN CONGRESSMAN ATTEMPTS TO DICTATE

Has Hearst Attack on Governor Wilson Inserted Into Congressional Record to Root Clark for Democratic Nomination.

Washington, D. C., April 11.—(Special.)—The action of Minority Leader Mann in inserting into the Congressional Record William R. Hearst's attack on Governor Woodrow Wilson, which was also a boost for Speaker Champ Clark, is resented generally by democrats. They do not take kindly to the designation and selection of their presidential candidate by any republican, much less by the leader of the republican party in congress. Democrats are not supposed to accept gifts from Greeks, and they certainly are not supposed to accept Minority Leader Mann as their oracle. The insertion of the Hearst article has aroused resentment among democrats at both ends of the capitol. If Minority Leader Mann acted with the consent of the speaker, his action was ill advised and indiscreet, to say the least. If done without his consent, it is a sincere indication of the republican choice for the democratic-presidential nomination.

Another cause of umbrage among democrats generally was the reference to Governor Wilson as "professor." Many of the best men in the history of the nation have started life as school teachers. In his assault on Governor Wilson, Mr. Hearst referred to him thirty-four times as "professor," and only once did he mention him as "Governor," and that in a disrespectful way. Former Representative Jameson, of Iowa, was the first man to make use of the term "professor," in referring to Governor Wilson. He wrote a scurrilous and scandalous article, without basis of fact, in which he used the word "professor" twenty-seven times. The only other person of responsibility who has employed this term is no less a personage than Speaker Clark. In a letter to Arkansas friends, the only reference made by Champ Clark to the distinguished governor of New Jersey was that of "professor." In this use of the title of professor intended as an epithet or is it a coincidence? What is there dishonorable in the calling of one who teaches? Does not this calling rank next to that of the mother and the minister? Speaker Clark, who surlingly refers to Governor Wilson as "professor," should not forget that he got his start in life as a school teacher.
