WASHINGTON SNUB MADE BACON RESIGN

Mystery of Sudden Return of Ambassador to France Is Solved at Last.

Washington.—It became known the real reason for Robert Bacon's resignation as ambassador to France was his resentment at the state department for its humiliating interference with the affairs of the embassy of which he was the head.

The facts in the case, which have, of course, been known to the state department since Bacon's sudden resignation, have been successfully kept secret up to this time.

Members of the senate committee on foreign affairs had an inkling of the unpleasantness, but never were able to learn the whole story.

Bacon had determined on the retention of Secretary of the Legation Bailey Blanchard, who had been in the diplomatic service in Paris for many years and was invaluable to the ambassador.

Despite his expressed wish that Blanchard be continued as one of his aides, Huntington Wilson, acting Secretary of State, decided to transfer Blanchard to Tokio.

When Bacon found that, despite his wishes, Blanchard was to be taken from Paris, he protested first to the state department, of which he was formerly assistant secretary, and next to his friend, Senator Lodge.

Lodge took the matter up with the senate committee on foreign relations and the committee called for an explanation. Meantime, the committee held up confirmation of the change.

Wilson's reply was that the rearrangemene was for the good of the service and that it would stand.

Bacon's wrath was in no way appeased. He felt chagrined and humiliated at being overridden. His anger was aroused especially by the fact that his office and authority had been interfered with by a man holding the same position he had held and his immediate successor.

He made further protest to Lodge, who got Senator Cullom, chairman of the foreign relations committee, to write a personal letter to Secretary Knox, asking that Blanchard be kept in Paris.

Knox replied that, as the change had already been made and he was powerless to do anything.

With the news of the final failure to have his authority recognized, Bacon cabled his resignation, which came as a staggering surprise to the president.

FATE OF MULE HANGS ON AUTO RUN TO WEST

La Crosse, Wis.—Upon the outcome of an auto run from Washington, D. C., to the United States mail camp at Sparta, Wis., the fate of the army mule is said to hang.

The run under charge of Captain Alexander Williams of the regular army, is being made to test a new truck.

If the auto trucks used complete the run to Sparta in good shape, the truck will, it is said, be considered as having demonstrated its superiority to the mule as a means of army transportation.

The party left Washington February 8 and is coming west by a circuitous route.

When a medicine must be given to young children it should be pleasant to take. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is made from loaf sugar and the roots used in its preparation give it a flavor similar to maple syrup, making it pleasant to take. It has no superior for colds, croup and whooping cough. For sale by all dealers.

TONGUE CUT OUT BUT TALKS.

Cincinnati Man Astounds Doctors by Speaking With His Larynx.

Cincinnati.—Joseph Monague, 48 years old, whose tongue was amputated for cancer several days ago, surprised the nurses and internes at the city hospital by suddenly regaining the power of speech after the doctors had told him he would be bereft of his voice.

Physicians explain that the vocal cords are still intact and by concentrating all his energy in the effort of making these cords and the mouth perform the functions of the tongue Monague is able to articulate.

In this he is being aided by the nurses, literally being taught to talk all over again.
