THE WONDER STORE TO CHANGE HANDS

Announcement has just been made that the Wonder store of this city is to change ownership, the old firm of Despain & Bonney retiring.

It has been rumored on the streets for several days that the present owners desired to dispose of their stock and this rumor was confirmed today by the statement that the sale had been effected with the one condition—the stock must be reduced to $15,000.

Despain & Bonney have agreed to these terms and to accomplish this gigantic undertaking are going to inaugurate a big public sale, commencing Saturday morning, April 27th, at 9 o'clock a. m.

It is clearly a case of compulsion, combined with a resolve to sacrifice regardless of cost. Mr. Bonney wishes to retire from business and the heirs of the late J. B. Despain desire to settle the estate. The stock is going to be reduced $15,000 in two short weeks in order to complete the transfer to other hands.

This is not to be a money-raising event nor a sale of old and unseasonable goods, but everything in the store including all their new spring and summer shipments are to be thrown on sale at whatever price the merchandise will bring.

WESTON COWGIRL BAND TO COME IN AUTOS

INSANE FUGITIVE HURT BY LIVE WIRE

Salem, Ore., April 24.—Thomas Condon, from Multnomah county, one of the six patients who escaped from the insane asylum by overpowering Attendant Bagley, lies suffering in the institution from a serious burn received from an electric shock, when he broke into the substation of the Oregon Electric early this morning. The discovery was made that six instead of five escaped when a count was made of the inmates. After assisting Augustus Douglas, Frank Tompkins, W. H. Jones, Frank Allen and William Collin, in overpowering the attendant, Condon seems to have separated from the others and gone in the direction of Waconda. Laboring under the delusion that he is professor of electricity, he broke into the depot of the Oregon Electric there and began manipulating the switchboard, with the result that his arm is seriously burned. Superintendent R. E. L. Steiner is unable to say whether the arm can be saved or not.

The five effected their escape from the asylum by overpowering Attendant William Bagley. It was the regular evening for the moving picture entertainment, but the five who were confined in ward 31—a semi-dangerous ward—expressed a desire not to attend and were left in charge of Bagley. Attracting his attention to a piece of cloth in the closet, they leaped upon and overpowered him, taking away his keys. Then they bound his hand and foot, and stopped his mouth with a piece of cloth. With the keys they effected an escape from the ward and into the yards, where they seemed to have separated.

WHY THEY REMAINED.

"I held the audience spellbound for more than an hour," boasted the campaign speaker. "Pshaw," replied a member of the local committee, "it wasn't your talking that made the people stay. We had advertised that Billy Smiggley would play a cornet solo after you got through, but for some reason he failed to show up."

MIGHT BE WORSE.

"It must be terrible to have to live in Iceland, where the night is six months long and winter lasts most of the year." "Oh, there are lots of things that are worse than living in Iceland. For instance, the people of Iceland have probably never heard about that 'Houn' dawg' song."

SCENE FROM "THE SQUAW MAN," AT THE OREGON THEATER, TUESDAY EVENING, APRIL 30.
