ONTARIO, ORE., MAN SHOT BY MISTAKE

Thomas Harris, to whose home Frank Weaver went, takes him for a burglar.

Ontario, Ore.—Frank Weaver, a prominent young man of this vicinity, was shot in the back by Thomas Harris at the latter's home in Ontario, where Weaver had gone to get Lee Bing, a young man who was keeping company with Harris' stepdaughter.

Bing was working for young Weaver's father and both had come to town together to visit young women friends. After waiting some time for Bing, Weaver went to the Harris place for him. It appears that Bing was not there and Harris claims he thought Weaver was a burglar and shot him.

Weaver is at the hospital and the attending physicians believe he will recover. The affair appears to have been a case of mistaken identity.

Orpheum.

An extra good program for Tuesday's change. Four full reels of the best American pictures.

1. "Doctor Laffeur's Theory." Vitagraph. There seems no escape from it. The theory of Dr. Laffeur pur in practice enables two young people to free themselves from crime and begin life anew. Mr. Maurice plays the role of Dr. Laffeur.

2. "Treasure Island." Edison. Famous the world over, this is a wonderfully picturesque tale of adventure. It is taken in Bermuda, the scenery of which furnishes an appropriate background.

3. "An Unexpected Reception." American Pathe. Two old maids are invited to dine at a friend's house on the birthday of one of them. While they are at the hostesses' house the son of the family is sent to the old maids' house with a gift as a surprise to them when they return. When he arrives at his destination he climbs into the window and is given a warm reception by two bulldogs, with screamingly funny results.

4. "Little Boy Blue." Lubin. The Star baseball team, composed of small boys, are playing in a vacant lot. Harold bats his ball through a window of a small cottage. He quickly reverts to apologize and is kindly received by the old couple. While the ball is waiting for his ball the landlord comes in and demands his rent. Harold tells his teammates and proposes a scheme to give a Mother Hubbard bazaar for the benefit of the old couple, Harold playing Little Boy Blue.

The Pastime.

The home of good pictures. Friday's change of program:

No. 1. "Love in the Ghetto." Vitagraph. This story is certainly interesting, dealing with ghetto life, its problems and customs. It illustrates the work of the matrimonial broker, the schachten. The triumphant culmination of a romantic love affair between two young people of the second generation is extremely interesting and amusing, introducing many of the manners and customs as practiced by these wonderful people. This character study has been chosen on the especially selected list to be shown at "The Pastime" Friday and Saturday.

No. 2. "The Bank President's Son." Edison. This dramatic story depicts how a horse carried his fair driver across the tape on the frozen river far ahead of the others. Her winning purse enabled her to engage a lawyer who exonerated her lover from supposed guilt and fixed the crime upon the real criminal. Mr. Geo. Looney plays the president's son, his sweetheart is played by Miss Miriam Nesbitt.

No. 3. "Max Is Convalescent." C. G. P. C. A first class comedy with a very humorous dog in it, and a very amusing trick pony.

No. 4. "The Harvest in Sicily." Interesting views in Sicily when the crops are gathered and everyone joins the harvest feast of hilarious mirth.

No. 5. "Orphans of the Plains." American Pathe. A good specimen of the typical western cowboy and Indian picture. There is plenty of wild

ONE OF THE REAL COWGIRLS WITH THE 101 RANCH WILD WEST, WHICH EXHIBITS IN PENDLETON TOMORROW.

The 101 Ranch Wild West will arrive in Pendleton tomorrow morning, prepared, it is said, to give the most typical show of its kind ever presented here by a traveling exhibition. Naturally, there will be the usual army of small boys on hand to watch the unloading of the trains and to see the paraphernalia transferred to the show grounds at Round-Up Park. The fact that it will be the second show within a week will accentuate the interest of the curious crowds.

As rapidly as possible the impediments of the show, the steers, the buffaloes and the long string of horses will be transferred to the show grounds; the necessary tents erected, breakfast served and preparations completed for the parade, which will be the first big event of the day. The procession will leave the show grounds about 1 o'clock. It will be a mile in length, and cover the usual downtown route.

Many novel features are promised for the parade. The old life on the plains will be typified by a caravan of prairie schooners, drawn by long-horned Texas steers, by an old stage coach drawn by army mules and driven by Rocky Mountain Hank, one of the last of the old overland drivers, and by floats depicting scenes in the Old West. In the line will also be scores of cowboys, cowgirls, Indian braves with their squaws, mounted on ponies, with the papposes drawn in the genuine Indian "traveaux." Mexican vaqueros, Cossacks and other interesting people, bucking bronchos, Indian mustangs, wild steers and a herd of buffalo.

The initial performance of the big show will take place at 3 p. m. and the final one at 8:15. Each, it is announced, will be complete in every particular. Doors will be opened an hour prior to each performance to permit visitors an opportunity to inspect the horses and the Indian village. The diversified performance promises plenty of thrills, with a vein of comedy that furnishes many a good laugh. The cowboy clowns, headed by Dan Dix, accredited with being more than worth while as fun producers. The cowboys give exhibitions of roping, the cowgirls vie with them in riding "outlaw" horses, the Indians give picturesque exhibitions of old-time border warfare, the Mexicans show how the stage coach was held up by bandits in the old days, Rocky Mountain Hank drives a prairie schooner, just as he did in the early seventies, there is a quadrille on horseback, a horsethief is captured and punished, Edith Tantlinger, an Oklahoma Indian girl, gives remarkable exhibitions of clay-pigeon shooting on the ground, and Wenona, a Sioux girl, shoots glass balls from the back of a swiftly moving pony, and there are a hundred and one other novel things to keep the audience "going."

Seats will be on sale downtown tomorrow at the Pendleton Drug Co.

riding, and a great battle takes place between the Indians and the cowpunchers.

Cosy.

Wednesday and Thursday's program abounds in life, thrills and laughter. "The Girl of the Grove." Thalhouser, A Florida picture taken amid the orange groves. The girl is boss of the grove and met a stranger and they fell in love. She later found the man was married and was able to save the wife from killing herself.

"When the Heart Calls." Reliance. An odd story which is extremely interesting. The young man, disappointed in love, became a hermit. Years later he met the daughter of his old sweetheart badly injured and cared for her. With the return of her memory, she heard a silent call from the man and went to him.

"An Italian Romance." Champion. A very exciting story in which a girl fights a duel and bests a villain. It is the story of sweatshop love, and shows the conditions that abound in these places. Throughout the entire story runs a romance of love, jealousy and final victory.

"Lonesome Miss Wiggs." Imp. A laughable attempt of a very plain old maid to get a husband via the advertisement method and the results, Mr. Cumpson, the comedian, is seen at his best in this.

"Scenic Wonders of Yellowstone Park." Imp. Short scenic of this beauty spot abounding in scenes of grandeur.

Coming, Friday and Saturday, "The Deserter," a two-reel 101 Bison feature.
