A HINT!

Find out the fads of your friends. Give them what they care most about.

Once there was a woman whose hobby was bird cages. She was always happy when her friends brought her one of the queer old things.

And once there was a rolling stone of a man who gathered nothing but nutcrackers wherever he went—nutcrackers with faces of beauties and men carved on them; nutcrackers that looked like anything except what they were. His friends always knew what to give him on birthdays and Christmas.

EVERYBODY HAS A FAD OF SOME SORT.

The fad of the 2-year-old may be steam engines, and the fad of his mother may be shoes.

The whole secret of Christmas is TO FIND THE FAD. After that the store will help.
