BONDS NOT GOING OUT OF BUSINESS

No, Clementine, Bond Bros. are not going out of business, all reports and indications to the contrary notwithstanding. Anyway this is the declaration, made with the positiveness of conviction, by the two Bonds themselves, and that ought to be sufficient bonds for the truth of the statement. They are just conducting a "stupendous, colossal, price-butchering" sale, in the words of J. C. Adams of Chicago, a professional sale conductor, who is here to assist the well known haberdashers in reducing their stock to make room for a big shipment of new merchandise.

"This sale is going to be a history maker in Pendleton," said Mr. Adams this afternoon. "We are going to show the public what a real sale is. Every article in the store, from collar buttons to suits, will be marked down to a price that will make people blink with amazement. We are not superstitious and are going to hand some knockout drops to the theory that 13 is an unlucky number by conducting our sale for thirteen consecutive days, commencing tomorrow."

In preparation for the opening of their sale, Bond Bros. have closed their doors to the public until tomorrow morning. Inside is a busy scene with a small army of clerks preparing for the expected rush for bargains.
