CROWDS HISS MRS. PANKHURST

London, Feb. 22.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant suffragette, who has declared that she was responsible for the dynamite explosion which recently wrecked the home in Surrey of David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, met with a mixed reception at a meeting held in the Chelsea town hall under the auspices of the women's social and political union.

When Mrs. Pankhurst appeared on the platform she was greeted with groans, hisses, yells and cheering and only a large force of police in the hall prevented the hostile section of the audience from attacking her. When she left the hall, Mrs. Pankhurst twitted the authorities for being afraid to take advantage of her assumption of responsibility for blowing up Mr. Lloyd-George's house and send her to jail. She declared that short of taking human life, the militant suffragettes intended to do everything possible to settle once and for all the political status of the women of the country.

ALL READY FOR INAUGURATION

Washington, Feb. 22.—A coat of white paint applied to the square reading desk from which Woodrow Wilson will deliver his inaugural address March 4, constituted one of the real "finishing touches" to the great temporary structure that has gone up on the east front of the capitol in preparation for inauguration.

Across the stretch of asphalt pavement, carpenters are working on the rampart-like stand from which the battery of cameras and motion picture machines will be trained upon the inaugural scene, but the management of affairs at the capitol promises that a week before the day of action, practically every detail of the arrangements at the capitol will have been completed.

Stands Crowded Everywhere.
On every available corner of the capitol and from the top of house and senate wings of the building, supplementary stands have been reared, looking down upon the main structure and affording perches for capitol employes and others who cannot be accommodated on the main structure.

Under the leading stand at which President Wilson will stand to address the crowd after he takes the oath of office is a concealed gate that will swing open to allow him to descend to his carriage for the return to the White House without passing through the crowd in the stands.

President Taft and Present-elect Wilson will pass into the capitol up the broad steps of the senate wing and after the ceremonies will enter the senate chamber through the central door of the capitol to the inaugural stands.

PROBE OF SACK TRUST WANTED

State House, Olympia, Wash., Feb. 22.—Without a dissenting vote the senate passed a joint memorial urging congress to make a thorough probe of the alleged grain bag monopoly. The memorial asserts that prices have been unreasonably advanced by cornering the market and other artificial means and that the profits of the trust must have been at least fifty per cent. Senator Westerman of Dayton, fathered the memorial.

It took less than two minutes for the senate to pass a resolution requesting congress to pass a bill excluding oriental laborers the same as Chinese. The resolution was copied after the one which recently passed the California legislature and was fathered by Senator White, the democratic floor leader.

The flood of bills ended with all previous records in the history of the state smashed, 1094 bills having been introduced, one-fourth more than two years ago.

The coaches will be used in the Round-up parades this fall. Out at Prineville Sturgis met Roy Moss who is now living at Powell Butte. Moss captured the steer roping championship at the first Round-up and is to be here again this fall.

Candy, tobacco and soft drinks will be on sale. The parlors are steam heated and have a very excellent lighting arrangement. The best tables obtainable have been installed. The Bungalow is situated directly under the Cosy theater and is entered by a wide stairway leading directly into the parlors.

BLUSHING BRIDE OF 105 WEDS MAN, 86

Los Angeles, Feb. 22.—After sweeping aside all opposition, legal and otherwise, Mrs. Marselma Ellsada, 105 years old and Pleasanton Leon, 86, said to have been lovers for the last half century, were married in the home of the bride by a justice of the peace. Friends of the bride claim for her the distinction of being the oldest woman to enter wedlock in this country.

Mrs. Leon, however, says she is not. Despite the assertions of her daughters, grand daughters, great grand daughters and other members of her family that she is well over the century mark, the bride declared tonight that she was only 85—one year the junior of her spouse. Furthermore, she asserted that she was opposed to women marrying their juniors.

After the ceremony the bride and groom took a prominent part in the reception.

The way for the marriage was paved by a superior court order vacating the guardianship that placed the woman in the custody of her grand daughter, Mrs. Claudia Lugo. Mrs. Leon is reputed to be the owner of property worth nearly $100,000 and her relatives opposed the marriage on the ground that she would transfer the property to her husband, from whom it would pass to Leon's relatives in the event of his wife's dying first.

INDIAN GOES WRONG SOON AFTER RELEASE

Walla Walla, Wash., Feb. 22.—Released from the state penitentiary late in January after a seven year term for forgery, Harold C. Monroe, a full-blooded Indian from Oklahoma, well known as a writer for Coast periodicals among them the Sunset magazine, now faces another penitentiary sentence for the same offense.

Thursday afternoon in Portland, he pleaded guilty to forging a check in the name of W. G. MacLaren, superintendent of the Portland Commons. He asked to be sentenced by Judge Tazwell, but on hearing that this was impossible, waived examination and was held to the grand jury.

Taylor went to Portland about February 1 and invoked the aid of the Commons. Mr. MacLaren looked after him for a considerable time, only to find his confidence had been sadly misplaced. Taylor secured the cooperation of a man recently released from the rockpile for theft of a watch who had charge of the telephone at phone at the Commons. When the Chicago clothing store, Third and Burnside, Portland called up to learn if the check was good the accomplice answered in the affirmative.

Taylor served two terms for forgery here, North Yakima and Spokane being his places of operation.

Advance Notices From The Press Agent

Joe Weber's musical sensation, "Alma, Where Do You Live?" is the attraction announced to appear at the Oregon theater on next Thursday night.

Nothing so mirth provoking, nothing quite so rich in comedy and so happy in its musical setting has been seen in this country for some years, which is the reason, no doubt why its rage among the knowing ones of the east has been so pronounced and lasting as was the "Pinafore" craze that began in 1877 and lasted 10 years. Among other attractions, "Alma, Where Do You Live" contains a gem of melody that has already caused the average theater goer to forget that there ever was such a thing as the "Merry Widow" waltz.

WEST'S NAME GOES ON 7 MORE MEASURES

Salem, Ore., Feb. 22.—Six house bills and one senate bill, all of more or less importance, were signed by Governor West. Ralph Watson, secretary to the governor, declares that the senate bill is the most important one that has passed this session of the legislature. It is S. B. 131 by Calkins and fixes the salary of the governor's secretary at $3000 a year.

One of the important house bills signed is No. 433, which creates the state board of control and places all the state institutions under the supervision of this board. Other bills signed were as follows:

H. B. 253, by Hagood—Consenting to the purchase of the locks and canal at Oregon City.

H. B. 294, by Abbott—Creating a state board of accountancy. This bill was defeated once in the house, was later resurrected and passed and now becomes a law. It provides that only the public accountants who pass the examination prepared by the board can use the title "Certified public accountant."

H. B. 198, by Stranahan—Providing that the school board in any district in the state may provide for and maintain continuation of evening schools.

H. B. 150, by Bonebrake—Regulating the sale of liquor on Sunday.

H. B. 70, by Hill—Relating to mining corporations.

The self-made man never fails to worship his creator.
