Latest Fashion in Shoes.
 Shoes are now more elaborate than ever. High shoes are worn in the morning only, with the tailor-made costumes and for traveling or for sport. The shoes are of an infinite variety. The vamps are shorter than ever. The uppers are made of stuff to match the dress or in leather of the same shade. The newest fastening is arranged with small interlaced straps, buttoning on each side with flat buttons.

Tan shoes are having an aftermath of success, and they harmonize very happily with the dull tints of the satins and furs worn by the smart woman.

New Species of Roses.
 The Fire-flame is the new rose this year, says the New York Times. The few florists who have this beautiful flower are enthusiastic over it, saying it is the most exquisite rose for Lenten table decoration ever brought to this country. It is lovely, too, for corsage bouquets to be worn with subdued shades of heliotrope or with black.

The Fire-flame is a product of Ireland, grown near Belfast by one of the famous rose growers of that section of the Emerald Isle. It was raised from a field of rose, and only after years of experiment was it brought to its present perfection.

The Fire-flame was put on the New York market by a Fifth avenue florist a few weeks ago, and within that short time the demand for this new rose has made it one of the fads of the season. In color it is just what its name implies; a radiant yellow. A bunch of the new Irish roses in full bloom and in the bud, looks like tongues and bursts of flame coming up from a verdant field. A New York grower who had seen the Fire-flame roses near Belfast ordered 20,000 plants sent to his place.

From the Killarney rose, also an Irish product, two hybrids have been put on the market by a Pennsylvania grower. One of these hybrids called the Killarney Queen, is considered one of the most perfect white roses ever produced. The other, which is new this season, is a beautiful soft red and is known as the Red Killarney.

Veils Now Often Discarded.
 Veils are very much less worn than they used to be in past seasons. They are less easy to wear with very small hats, for the simple reason that they may easily touch the eyes or at least the eyelashes; but, since the extremely small hat is specially reserved for the very young woman, she may well permit herself to meet the full glare of daylight in the street without any softening veil. Besides this, some hygienic people pretend that the veil is harmful both to the complexion and the sight, and while it is also true that the contrary opinion is held the devotee of fashion will follow her own personal opinion without bothering her head about any other.—Paris Edition of New York Herald.

COTTON CREPE FROCK.
 The drawing above shows a charming frock of white cotton crepe, cluny lace and striped pongee. The upper collar is of the striped material, the square tab inserted on bodice and skirt is of the lace and the sleeve is banded with the same. The skirt is close-fitting, with two bands of the trimming at the bottom and separated by a band of the pongee, the same finishing the bottom. This is a most effective little frock, easily made and inexpensive. The hat worn with it was a white chip with red aigrette.

AMUSEMENTS
"HARMLESS" TWENTY-TWO RIFLE ENDANGERS LIFE
Chieftain of Materials Used in Making Cartridges is the Cause of Danger.
 Walla Walla, Wash., March 21.—That the eyesight and even the life of every Walla Walla boy who owns a .22 rifle is in imminent danger, was the statement of a Walla Walla dealer in sporting goods who has had a lifetime of experience with all calibers of firearms.

"The .22 is really a useful little gun," he said, "and it is possible to buy a rifle with all safety devices found on any model. The danger lies, not in the rifle, but in the cartridge. There is no gun made in which a cheaply constructed cartridge may be constructed with safety to the shooter."

"Because the .22 is a small caliber and therefore considered unimportant from a sporting standpoint, manufacturers must turn them out cheaply. The copper shells, rimfire, such as are commonly used, are of the cheapest material, as bullets. Usually a good grade of powder is used. When exploding in the chamber, oftentimes small bits of the soft copper shells are sent through channels in the rifle and one of the best shots in the United States lost the sight of one eye, recently through such an occurrence. The expert in question used the best make of gun—how much more, then, is the danger to the boys who are compelled to use an unreliable and cheap make?"

"While the .22 is considered the safer gun because of its shorter range, I would much rather see the boys use the next larger caliber, the .32, in hunting squirrels and in target practice."

GETTING GRAY? USE SAGE TEA TO RESTORE NATURAL COLOR OF HAIR
 Says Sage and Sulphur Darkens Hair Beautifully and Ends Dandruff.
 Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless is caused by lack of sulphur in the hair, says a well-known local pharmacist. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful and even today this simple preparation has no equal. Millions of women and men too, who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive use only Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Nowadays we are not bothered with the task of gathering the sage leaves and the mussy mixing at home. Simply ask at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of the ready to use preparation.

called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Customers like this best because it darkens so naturally; so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it contains ingredients which take off dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. No, it isn't a dye or even like it. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color.

What delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that besides beautifully darkening the hair they say it brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it the appearance of abundance.
