ASKS SETTLERS TO WRITE CRITICISMS

Portland, Ore., April 30.—What is the settlers' side of the controversy which has arisen over the settlement of government lands?

The Oregon Conservation commission would like to know. Charges have been made that settlement on agricultural lands within the forest reserve is discouraged, that hardships and sometimes injustices are sometimes worked on settlers in the matter of locating mining claims, grazing, cutting timber, sales of timber and so on down a long list.

In an open letter to the newspapers of Oregon and Washington, Joseph N. Teal, chairman of the conservation commission, invites a recital of actual experiences, and will welcome direct information from any source. The letter follows:

"Considerable dissatisfaction and complaint has been voiced in the public press from time to time with reference to the settlement of public lands under the three year homestead law of 1912, and with reference to the administrative policy of the forest service. These criticisms have been directed at both the existing law and its interpretation by the department of the interior and charging that lands included in the national forests, which should be accessible, are not now open to entry; that settlement is discouraged on lands open to settlement within the national forests; that regulations relating to sales of timber, locating and working mining claims, grazing, cutting timber, etc., are unreasonable and impracticable.

"In view of these complaints, the Oregon Conservation commission, with the purpose of endeavoring to modify these evils, if such exist, proposes to make as thorough an investigation as possible of the actual difficulties with which the settler must now contend before obtaining his patent. Whatever problems arise in connection with the use and operation of the lands within the forest reserves, in the process of settling lands under the existing law and conditions, whether of establishing residence, cultivation of the reforested area, compliance with rules of the land office, necessity of cutting roads, distance and difficulty of market, scarcity of water, want of land classification, obtaining an official survey or permits of absence in which to obtain funds, or of whatever nature the commission is desirous of obtaining all direct information available concerning such complaints. It, therefore, earnestly requests that any one knowing the facts concerning these problems or desiring to make suggestions or to ask any questions should report their complaints relative to the same freely and fully by letter addressed to Kingman Brewster, assistant secretary, Oregon Conservation commission, 402-408 Falling building, Portland, Ore. All such communications will be given immediate and considerate attention by this commission. It is earnestly hoped that not only the other papers of this state (and especially those in localities in which public lands are reclaimed) but also those of the state of Washington, will extend this request to the public through their columns.

"JOSEPH N. TEAL, Chairman Oregon Conservation Commission."

PREMIUM LIST TO BE $10,000

North Portland, Ore., April 30.—O. M. Plummer, general manager Pacific International Livestock Exposition, to be held at Union Stock Yards, North Portland, December 8-13, 1913, advises that the advance sheets of the preliminary classification are about ready for the printer. The premium list will cover over $10,000 and will include beef and dairy types of pure bred cattle, also pure bred hogs, sheep and goats, as well as fat classes of cattle, sheep and hogs, both in car lots and as individuals.

Mr. J. W. Clise of Seattle, the famous Ayrshire breeder, who was at the head of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Livestock department and who was the first to suggest the consolidation of the dairy and fat stock show in the present organization, will serve as president for this year.

The vice-presidents, are Wm. M.

Ladd of Portland, whose influence along the pure bred line in the state of Oregon, is well known, H. A. Jastro, president American National Livestock association, Bakersfield, California, Frank J. Hagenbarth, president National Wool Growers' association, Spencer, Idaho, Wm. Hanley, president Central Oregon Development League, Burns, Oregon, Howard Elliott, president Northern Pacific Railway company, St. Paul, Minn., Carl R. Gray, president Great Northern Railroad company, St. Paul, Minn., J. H. Young, president S. P. & S. Ry. company and J. D. Farrel, president O. W. R. & N. company, Portland. These men are all widely known for their intense interest in agricultural and livestock production and their connection with the Pacific International Livestock exposition into that association a continued and a more successful existence.

N. C. Maris, many years a member of the State Board of Agriculture, and at present one of the Industrial Extension workers under the superintendence of public instruction and the Agricultural college is secretary, L. R. McGee, the efficient office manager with the Stock Yards company, has been elected treasurer, John L. Smith, the famous Holstein breeder of Spokane will again act as assistant general manager. Among the directors and advisory committee, are the directors and presidents of pure bred associations and heads of breed organizations all over the Pacific slope, as well as representatives of commercial interests of the entire United States

Among the local members of the board of directors are Wm. H. Daughtrey, president Portland Union Stock Yards company, C. C. Colt, president Union Meat company, W. P. Dickey, president Portland Cattle Loan company, J. W. Creath, president Portland Live Stock exchange, J. L. Sterret of Sterrett & Oberle and M. J. Gill.

O. M. Plummer, secretary and treasurer of Portland Union Stock Yards company, will again have active management for the coming year and any inquiries addressed to him at Union Stock Yards, North Portland, Oregon, will receive immediate attention. It is the intention of the management to make the International Livestock Exposition stand in the same relation to the Pacific Coast as does the International of Chicago to the Middle West.

The O. W. R. & N. company, through their general passenger agent Mr. Wm. McMurray, have already offered a handsome silver trophy cup for the Grand Champion Hereford bull of the show, while W. D. Skinner, traffic manager of the S. P. & S. company has offered a splendid cup for the Grand Champion Short-Horn bull, and the other trans-continental lines in this territory have signified their intention of donating cups for different breeds. Similar cups given by railroads last year were much admired by the people and highly prized by the winners.

The East Oregonian will buy your old rags. Must be large and clean. Bring or send them to this office at your earliest convenience.

GRAND OPERA FOR THE PARKS

NEW YORK HAS A NEW SCHEME TO GIVE MUSIC

First Class Singers Will Be Furnished to Render the Best That Is Possible in High Class Opera—Movable Stage Will Be Feature of Entertainments in Metropolis.

(By Carlton Ten Eyck.)

New York, April 30.—Real grand opera in the parks, with first class singers, chorus and orchestra, and free admission to everyone able to get within vocal and aural range of the performers is the latest scheme of the New York park commissioners for the entertainment of the masses this summer. They say it is a logical evolution of the park band concerts which are held during the summer in every city of size in the country. According to William J. Lee, supervisor of recreation parks and playgrounds, the father of the movement, the plan has matured to the point where all that remains is the engaging and rehearsing of the company.

"It is the greatest innovation in recreational enterprises that the city has ever known," declared Lee. "It is something absolutely new and it is just what the people have wanted and needed for many years. At last every working man and woman will be able to see and hear the greatest operatic works performed by a first class company, with all the accessories of necessary scenery and costume."

And right here is where the greatest feature of the enterprise comes in. The performances are to be given on a new sort of movable stage with special acoustic properties, the invention of one A. Floryn. This stage, which looks something like the band stand shells, can be moved easily from one park to another if necessary, and it is so constructed as to carry the voices of the singers and the orchestral music far out over the heads of a great open-air crowd. The stage is fully equipped with scenic apparatus and is hooked up, of course, with the city's electric lighting system.

"We expect to give operas in six different recreation centers in Manhattan," said Lee. "The operas will be in English and Italian. The crowded parks last summer on the nights of the band and orchestral concerts proved how working people are, as a whole, devoted to good music when they have a chance to hear it. It is planned to have an orchestra of thirty pieces; two dramatic, one lyric, one coloratura and two compressorio sopranos; three contraltos; four tenors; three baritones; three basses; a chorus of forty and a ballet of twenty. Later we hope to induce some of the world's greatest singers to give their services once in a while for the especial delight of the great outdoor audiences."

The repertoire prepared for this season includes "Aida," "Faust," "Carmen," "Rigoletto," "Lucia di Lamermoor," "La Favorita," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Pagliacci," "Mignon," "Il Trovatore" and "Tales of Hoffman."

Interesting Stories from Various Cities

Vallejo, Cal.—Preliminary work on the U. S. gunboats Palos and Monocacy begun at the Mare Island navy yards. The gunboats will cost $242,000 each and are destined for the China service. They must be finished by September and the yard is after a record for speedy construction.

San Francisco.—To construct four municipally owned crosstown trolley lines and to pave the way for city ownership of the entire trolley system, the public utilities committee of the board of supervisors has recommended a bond issue for $3,500,000. The committee desires to have the new lines in operation for the Panama-Pacific exposition.

Los Angeles.—A sacred Indian bull valued at $3,000 is dead and keepers are searching for several animals which escaped when vandals raided the wild animal farm of a motion picture company near Los Angeles, mistreating the animals and leaving the doors of scores of cages open. The bull was found dead in his pen, his head crushed and his throat gashed. Many of the camels bore knife cuts.

Los Angeles.—Hereafter Los Angeles will have two plain clothes police women with regular beats for night duty. They will be Mrs. Alice Stebbins Wells and Mrs. Rachael Schatte. Their specific duty will be to guard young girls from the importunities of automobile flirts, and what they declare to be other night birds of prey.

Tacoma, Wash.—Richard Roediger, formerly owner of the Tacoma Tribune, has been named surveyor general for the state of Washington and his nomination will be sent to the senate this week by President Wilson. Roediger came to Tacoma in 1884. He has been interested in various newspaper enterprises here and in Alaska.

Seattle.—According to advices received here, the prospectors who participated in the gold rush to Lake Teelin district, are returning to Atlin, B. C. empty handed. They believe, however, that systematic prospecting will reveal paying ground this summer.

Aberdeen, Wash.—Giles Quimby, the deputy sheriff who shot and killed John Tarnow, the "beast man" has refused an offer of $250 a week for twenty weeks to appear in vaudeville. Quimby has stated that he intends to divide the reward he receives for killing Tarnow with the heirs of Blair and Lathrop, the two men killed by the mountaineer.
