INSURANCE STOCK SALES COVERED BY NEW LAW

Salem, Ore., June 17.—The blue sky law covers insurance companies, as well as any other corporation, when they desire to sell stock or any other kind of securities, according to an opinion rendered by Attorney General Crawford to Corporation Commission Watson.

The question came up on an inquiry from the Union Pacific Life Insurance company as to whether it would have to comply with the blue sky law before it could sell about $20,000 worth of capital stock of which it wished to dispose.

Attorney General Crawford held that while the regulation of the insurance business itself came under the state insurance department, the matter of stock selling was subject to the regulation of the blue sky law. In the same opinion he held that the new law does not apply to banks in selling their own stock, but will apply to any of them that make a business of negotiating securities, whether of their own or other corporations.

The first permanent permit to be issued to a new stock selling corporation applying for a license under the new blue sky law was issued today by the Humphrey Memorial Methodist Episcopal church of Eugene. This corporation desires to sell $25,000 worth of bonds for the purpose of erecting a church edifice.

The second permit was issued to the Hot Lake Springs company, for which articles of incorporation were filed several days ago and later a statement giving the information required under the blue sky law. J. P. O'Brien is president and A. C. Spencer is secretary of the company, which virtually is considered a holding company for the O-W, R. & N. company in taking over the Hot Lake sanitarium in Union county. The capitalization is $20,000.

BOOK AND NEWSPAPER.

In a recent address before the Philadelphia Booksellers association, a society of a type that is multiplying now that book vendors are becoming democratic like other merchants, it was argued by a local author of some note that the newspaper is dependent on the book. "Does not the newspaper in the end get its bottom ideas and abiding principles of civilization from books?" asked the speaker. If by a book is meant a critique of government like that of Montesquieu or of the authors of The Federalist, or any classic, then the greatest of daily chroniclers of present-day history would admit that he needed them to give depth, range and insight to his comment. But if it is meant that for success in journalism today, even in conformity to the highest ideals of the calling, it is necessary for the writer to know the inside of any considerable number of the books issuing from the press, the statement is questionable.

Thinkers of a nation now find ways of getting publicity prior to book publication. All this is grist to those journalists who can count on adequate reporting of the innumerable speeches and addresses given from one year's end to another in large centers of population. Combining this expression of opinion by experts with the journalist comes to his own decision. It is not denied that often he would write more weightily if he knew the contents of books written by experts. It is not denied that a newspaper writer conversant with standard works of history, biography and belles-lettres and able to quote aptly and effectively is a useful member of a staff. The only point now being stressed is this, that neither book publishers nor authors should flatter themselves that the world of journalism is dependent on the world of literature. The bottom ideas of a civilization at any stage of a race's or a nation's existence are derived from social experience and from individual insight. In these days they often find expression and world publicity through the daily press long before they get the more formal record of the book—Christian Science Monitor.

ASKING TOO MUCH.

"Young man," said the fond father, "in giving you my daughter I have entrusted you with the dearest treasure of my life."

The young man was duly impressed. Then during the few moments of impressive silence that followed he heard the patter, patter of rain against the window pane.

"Gracious me!" he exclaimed, "it's raining and I haven't my umbrella. May I borrow yours to get to the station?"

"Young man," said the fond parent, "I wouldn't trust anybody on earth with my umbrella."—Birmingham News.

SPORTS

RECORDS BROKEN AT PORTLAND MEET

Portland, June 17.—Five conference records were broken yesterday in the annual championship track and field meet of the Pacific Northwest association of the Multnomah amateur Athletic club won after a hard fight with the Seattle Athletic club.

The final score was: Multnomah, 48 points; Seattle, 37; University of Oregon, 27; Oregon agricultural college, 20; Vancouver Athletic club, 12; St. Johns high school, (Portland), 2; Vancouver Olympic Athletic club and Corvallis Commercial club, one each.

The records which went by the board were the pole vault, in which Sam Bellah, M. A. C., cleared the bar at 12 feet, 1 inch, adding 9 inches to the record; the 16 pound hammer throw which C. Walsh, S. A. A., hurled 160 feet, 7 inches in a successful try for the record which stood at 155 feet 10 inches; the javelin, which Neill of Oregon University sent 161 feet 9 1-2 inches, beating the former record of 145 feet six inches held by himself; the 46 pound hammer also broken by Walsh who sent it 35 feet 5 1-2 inches besting the conference record of 34 feet, 10 1-2 inches and the five mile run, which was negotiated by W. Chandler, V. A. C., in 26 minutes 2 1-2 seconds breaking his own record of 26 minutes 26 1-5 seconds.

FAN FODDER

Pendleton opens at La Grande today, Walla Walla at Baker and North Yakima at Boise.

Pendleton and Yakima ended their first series still tied for third place.

Reports from Walla Walla have it that Tiny Leonard, Bobby Davis and Dry Martini will graduate into higher class baseball next season. Overtures have already been made by Coast league clubs, it is said. All three are going fine for the Bears and should be able to make good in faster company.

Augustus, who has been out of the game for two weeks with a bad ankle, went over to La Grande with the team this morning. Though still lame his presence will strengthen the crippled Buckaroos.

"Dad" Glimlin, who resigned as manager of the Boise club because directors of that association were crabbing at him, is now talked of as manager at Ogden.

There has been another change in the Baker management. Coach Johnny Bender of the Washington State college team, has been signed by the Baker management and has taken charge of the club. Bender, who has had some Northwestern experience, succeeds Harrod, third baseman, and player manager, who, in turn, had succeeded Con Harlow. Bender will catch for the Baker club.

It is strongly rumored that Jack Case, center fielder for the Boise club, is to draw his release. Case is a Boise boy and has played professional baseball off and on for some years. Manager Fred Clarke, who succeeded Glimlin, is said to be taking hold of the team in satisfactory style.

MEN BETTING ON BALL GAMES ARE DENIED ADMISSION

New York, June 17.—A large number of men who the management alleges have been laying odds on the baseball games at the Polo grounds were denied admission to the baseball park for the New York-Detroit American league game yesterday. It is estimated that 150 of them were not permitted to pass the turnstiles and that fifty others who had evaded the watchfulness of detectives at the gates later were ordered from the grand stand.

It is said that recently the baseball authorities have had detectives circulating in the stands to watch for betters and that the debarkments and evictions were due to their work.

UNIONISTS URGED TO A CAMPAIGN FOR PROTECTION

London.—F. E. Smith, M. P., writing in the May number of Our Flag, the official organ of the Conservative and Unionist party, declares that the troubles of the party, such as they were, have passed away, and that the party is now firmly united on the basis of the Edinburgh speech. The next step, in his opinion, is to translate that declaration into the firm basis of agreement into an active political program.

There never was a time, Mr. Smith continues, when the idea of a general tariff for the protection of British manufacturers had gained a stronger hold on the imagination of the industrial democracy. The tariff must be, in the nature of things, an integral portion of the creed of unionism because it was the application of that creed to one of the greatest of our national problems.

The idea underlying that creed was of a kingdom united in itself under a strong central government, and using the concentrated forces of the nationalists thus united to develop its own internal resources of men and material to the utmost, and to protect that development against external aggression. The menace of home rule was that it struck at this conception of unity, and would strike it at the heart. The danger of free trade was that even if union were secured, still it was impossible, without tariff, to secure the greatest development of their own internal resources in the face of foreign competition.

SCOTCH MINISTERS REQUESTED TO AID IMMIGRANTS

Edinburgh, Scotland.—In view of the enormous emigration that its at present taking place, a circular, signed by the convenors of the home mission committee and the colonial committee, has been sent to every minister of the Church of Scotland emphasizing the necessity of seeing that all emigrants are supplied with information regarding their reception at the port of landing.

The committee are satisfied that, so far as Canada and the United States are concerned, adequate measures for the protection and assistance of emigrants are provided. There is, however, a large volume of emigration from Scotland to Australia and New Zealand, and as the ports of departure for these colonies are principally London and Liverpool, the committee, in conjunction with the United Free church of Scotland and the Presbyterian church of England, are endeavoring to arrange for suitable supervision of these ports, so that emigrants may be given all necessary information.

The director of the Salvation Army emigration department reports, in regard to the emigration boom, that the bookings are considerably on the increase this season. British Columbia continues to be the Canadian province most favored by Scottish emigrants, while there is an increasing number of inquiries in regard to Australia.

ANOTHER BUSY OREGON HEN.

Lays 99 Eggs in 100 Days, Vacation One Day for College Commencement, Lays Again.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Ore., June 17.—(Special).—A record of 99 eggs in 100 days has just been made by a cross-bred hen, part Barred Rock and part White Leghorn, at the Oregon Agricultural College experiment station. The 99th egg was laid June 8, and the next day being commencement at the college, Biddy took a vacation. She began again June 10, and has been laying steadily ever since. She was a persistent layer all winter, and her performance is considered an example of what may be accomplished in increasing egg yield by proper selective breeding. She has several generations of good layers behind her.
