WILSON WILL KEEP BACHELOR HALL FOR THE SUMMER MONTHS

Washington, June 24.—President Wilson today is preparing for his first extensive "bachelorhood" since he was married. He will be a "summer bachelor" after June 28, when Mrs. Wilson and the first daughters of the land leave for the president's summer home at Cornish, N. H.

The president may not see his summer residence until September or possibly October. He says he will not leave here until the special session of congress adjourns, and he is insisting that it stay on the job long enough to pass both the tariff and currency bills.

Several White House bachelor parties are planned by the president while he is "batching it." He has invited some Princeton professors and old college chums to visit him at the White House during the summer.

Automobile riding, golf and viewing baseball games will be the principal summer diversions of the president. He does not plan many trips away from Washington, except to the Gettysburg celebration on July 4.

MANUAL TRAINING BRANCH TO BE MADE SELF-SUPPORTING

Waukesha, Wis.—Wisconsin has been marked this spring by an unusual development of its vocational training, this time from the pupils themselves, in the inauguration of a movement to make manual training in the schools self-supporting, and a source of at least pin money for those engaged in it.

Organized by the boys themselves, officered by students and supervised in the way of consultation with a possible veto of any too elaborate idea by the superintendent of the city schools, the 16 boys in the manual training school department of the Waukesha high school have incorporated a manufacturing establishment for summer work.

The venture was their first step into the business world, but now they have the co-operative company, ready to manufacture articles usually made in manual training schools, for public sale. They will have three representatives out through the state all summer as traveling salesmen, and the boys will rent from the city the manual training department of the city schools, under supervision of the superintendent. They will provide their own materials, and the cost of rental is fixed low enough not to discourage the boys, yet enough so they realize they are operating as a business, not as a philanthropy. They will receive classroom credit for the time they will put in during the summer in the manufacture of furniture.

On June 15 the schoolroom will be converted into a commercial manufacturing plant. The 16 pupils have elected a board of directors and officers.

The boys will not only build furniture along mission lines, but are taking odd jobs as carpenters, taking contracts to build sheds, chicken coops, farm gates, and one boy has designed a special farm gate which has been patented by the company.

The boys have given their organization the name of the Waukesha High School Co-operative Manufacturing association.

LONDON POLICE COST FOR YEAR TOTALS $14,600,000

London.—Accounts were recently issued showing the receipts and expenditures in connection with the work of the Metropolitan police and police pension funds between April, 1912, and March, 1913. Receipts in respect of the work of the metropolitan police totaled 3,277,795 pounds, whilst the expenditure amounted to 2,920,730 pounds, leaving a balance of 457,065 pounds. The receipts included 231,382 pounds in respect of the services of police specially employed in the royal palaces, houses of parliament, government departments, museums and so forth; 104,900 pounds from vote of Parliament; and 44,772 pounds from fees, fines, and penalties. The sum of 1,853,271 pounds was expended in payment of inspectors, sergeants and constables, and 111,265 pounds was expended on clothing.

The receipts of the police pension fund totaled 288,142 pounds including 62,576 pounds contributed by government departments, local authorities, and private individuals; 43,226 pounds representing stoppages from the salaries and pay of the police; and 150,000 pounds the contribution under the local taxation (customs and excise) act. The expenditure in connection with the police pension fund amounted to 587,386 pounds. The balance of 299,244 pounds was made up by a transfer to that amount from the metropolitan police fund. The expenses of management amounted to 2,252 pounds and the rest of the expenditure in pensions or gratuities.

MINE EXPERT WOULD PREVENT WASTE OF GAS

Denver, Col.—In a recent address here, J. A. Holmes, director of the United States bureau of mines said: "I believe in that sort of conservation which will give to the present generation the benefits of the natural resources of the country without waste. I believe this should be done rather than fence our resources in for future generations. I have just returned from Oklahoma, where hundreds of millions of feet of natural gas are being allowed to go to waste by companies that are hunting oil. The gas occurs in large volume over the oil deposits and this the companies have been permitting to escape in order to reach the oil. It is this waste that I would stop and give the people the benefit of the gas."

Mr. Holmes also called attention to the lack of proper organization of the mining interests to look after legislation in the interest of that industry.

He also spoke of the practical side of the metalliferous mining business and said it had come down to the low-grade ore basis, which meant more economical systems of mining and refining. This it was the principal business of the mines to work out. It was organized to aid the mining industry and to experiment along lines which might be beyond the capacity of private persons or even large corporations. He urged more extensive organization to aid the bureau in solving problems.

NEW SOUTH WALES FRUIT INDUSTRY IS FLOURISHING

Sydney, N. S. W., Aus.—Some interesting particulars of the more expert production by New South Wales orchardists of fruit for export during the last 10 years, were related in Sydney recently by W. J. Allen, the state's government fruit expert, before the food supply commission.

Mr. Allen said that from reports furnished by the agricultural department's inspectors there was an increase in fruit cultivation, and the class of fruit produced was improving. The growers were now planting only the best varieties of fruit trees, and most of them were making good progress, and were satisfied with the results.

So far as the growers were concerned, Mr. Allen added, the industry was never in a better condition. There were thousands of acres in the state where the very best fruit could be grown, and which at present was not utilized for that purpose. Fruit showed the best return in cultivation, 1910-11 it averaged 11 pounds 10s. 6d. per acre, while for wheat it was about 2 pounds per acre. The demand was unlimited, and the export market was always open for good fruit.

H. M. S. CENTURION IS COMMISSIONED

London.—H. M. S. Centurion, a new battleship included in the navy estimates of 1910-11, was commissioned for service recently by Captain the Honorable H. A. L. Hood in the second battle squadron.

The Centurion is, according to Prince Louis of Battenberg's "Men of War Names," the ninth of the name in the royal navy. Among the most illustrious of these battleships was the Centurion built in 1650, which was in the squadron sent to the Mediterranean under Penn in chase of Prince Rupert. She was also in the squadron under Bourne which scored Blake against Tromp in the first battle of the First Dutch war. In the Second Dutch war she took part in the action off Lowestoft in June, 1665, and in the St. James fight in July, 1666.

But the most famous of the Centurions was the 60-gun ship in which Anson flew his broad pennant from 1740 to 1744, while on his famous voyage of circumnavigation, and which took part in the victory won by Anson over De la Janguiera in 1747.
