

A WOMAN'S PROBLEM

In the looking-glass a woman often sees wrinkles, hollow circles under eyes, "crow's feet," all because she did not turn to the right remedy when worn down with those troubles which are distinctly feminine. Backache, headache, pains, lassitude, nervousness and drains upon vitality—bring untold suffering to womanhood and the face shows it. The nervous system and the entire womanly make-up feels the tonic effect of

DANIELS IN OREGON AS STUDENT

PROMISES COAST A SQUARE DEAL

HE WILL NOT FORGET THIS STATE

PORTLAND, Ore., July 29.—After an adventurous night, circling a burned bridge and riding via two special trains to avoid a 24-hour delay in reaching Portland, Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, accompanied by Mrs. Daniels, Governor Oswald West and his aide, Lieutenant Palmer, arrived in Portland yesterday morning, entirely happy and glad to be in Oregon.

"It was adventurous and exciting," he admitted, while talking about the bridge that burned at Isadore.

"Yes, but we didn't mind it very much," commented Mrs. Daniels, whose face wore a smile as bright as the morning.

"You should have seen Mrs. Daniels descending the canyon wall," interrupted Governor West. "There were torches to show how far she must leap. She descended the sheer face of the rock several places where it was higher than a tall man, yet she never lost her courage once."

Secretary Here to Learn.

"I am on a student's trip," said Secretary Daniels, in an interview. "I am here to learn what are the problems of the Pacific coast and how they may be best solved."

"What do you consider are the problems of the coast?" he was asked.

"As soon as the Panama canal is opened," he responded, "this coast will immensely increase in commercial importance. This, so far as the navy is concerned, will make necessary more dry docks and stations."

"After the Panama canal is opened the fleet will be as much on the Pacific coast as on the Atlantic coast."

"No longer will the Atlantic be known as the 'home of the fleet.' Both coasts will be treated impartially."

The secretary of the navy asked to be excused from discussing the Mexican situation and the suggestion of war with Japan.

"Just say that both coasts will be given equal treatment, so far as the navy is concerned," he requested.

Will Not Forget Oregon.

"I am immensely pleased with my trip to the Pacific coast. It has opened my eyes to the potential development so that I am amazed. I am glad to be in Oregon and you may rest assured that I shall lose no opportunity to learn all that I can about this state and the port. Oregon will not be forgotten, but will be constantly remembered in my plans and policies. I am glad that the schedule of my journey was changed so that I could take the journey to the mouth of the river."

Secretary Daniels was scheduled to arrive at 7:40 a. m. Then came the word that the bridge at Isadore had burned and that two special trains with a display of resourcefulness in which Governor West prominently figured had been necessary to get here at 8:50 a. m.

Most of the credit for getting Secretary Daniels' train past the burning bridge and enabling him to arrive in Portland approximately on time was given Assistant Superintendent May of the S. P. at Roseburg.

Members of the committee of the Commercial club came early. C. S. Jackson, vice president of the Commercial club, accompanied by Mrs. Jackson, came some minutes before the special train of two coaches pulled into the union depot. First on hand was Judge T. C. Burke, collector of customs.

Praises Woman Suffrage.

Others in the committee of reception were M. A. Miller of Lebanon, C. C. Chapman, A. L. Fish, Postmaster F. S. Meyers and Alex. Sweek.

Secretary Daniels had a word to say about suffrage in Oregon. He said he was a believer in woman's suffrage and that he believed Oregon has taken a great step in advance in giving women the ballot. "Oregon is a splendid and progressive state," said he.

Although Secretary of the Navy Daniels is a believer in equal suffrage, his wife takes the privilege of differing from him. She is a North Carolinian, as is her husband, and few southern women believe in equal suffrage.

"I do not believe women should vote," she said as she was being whisked in Mr. Jackson's big automobile from the depot to the Multnomah hotel, where breakfast was served in the "royal suite."

"I suppose it is heredity or training," she explained, "but I cannot believe women can serve in politics so well as in the sphere they were created for. In this view I differ from Mr. Daniels. I usually refrain from talking to a newspaperman on this subject, however."

At the station the combined police and fire band was waiting the arrival of the party. It splendidly serenaded the secretary of the navy at the station and again at the Multnomah hotel, where Mr. and Mrs. Daniels, Governor West and Lieutenant Palmer were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Jackson at breakfast.

Surprising Cure of Stomach Trouble.

When you have trouble with your stomach or chronic constipation don't imagine that your case is beyond help just because your doctor fails to give you relief. Mrs. G. Stengle, Plainfield, N. J., writes, "For over a month past I have been troubled with my stomach. Everything I ate upset it terribly. One of Chamberlain's advertising booklets came to me. After reading a few of the letters from people who had been cured by Chamberlain's Tablets, I decided to try them. I have taken nearly three fourths of a package of them and can now eat almost everything that I want." For sale by all dealers.—Adv.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF POSTMASTERS IN SESSION

DENVER, Colo., July 29.—The parcel post and how it has worked out was the chief topic discussed today when the annual convention of the National Association of First Class Postmasters convened here. Nearly every city of the first class in the country was represented. Owing to the change in the national administration there were many new faces here today, there being very few who attended the convention at Atlantic City last year.

HARVEST BEGINS IN POLK GRAIN FIELDS

MONMOUTH, Ore., July 29.—Work began on the grain fields surrounding this city with the binders, and the harvesting of the crops will be rushed from this time on. There is a large acreage of oats, and considerable of vetch which was not cut for hay, but owing to the extraordinary heavy clover crop it is believed the threshing time will be done with as soon as possible in order to later clear up the clover hulling before the fall rains arrive. All the hay is now under cover and the farmers' attention is centered upon the grain.

EDUCATION PUTS A KINK IN POOR OLD WALL STREET

The Public Is Wise to the Operations and Has Begun to Lose Much Interest.

(By Carlton Ten Eyck, Written for the United Press.)

Wall street once had some little lambs.

Their fleece with gold was spun, To shingle off that golden fleece For Wall street was such fun.

But now the brokers have no lambs—No lambs with fleeces of gold; No longer are they lambs at all, But sheep both wise and old.

They know the bull, they know the bear, And so they gamble not, A educated sheep about The market's gone to pot.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Wall street is sick—sick unto death. The stock exchange is suffering from a pronounced attack of incurable anemia, and the contributing cause, according to the diagnosis of old timers, is education.

The public is wise to Wall street. There's the rub. The stock exchange is still at Broad and Wall, and trading opens at 9 a. m. and stops at 3 p. m. Railroad, steamships and manufacturing shares and bonds change hands daily as in former times but the public does not care. Prices fluctuate and the ticker whirs out its song of profit and loss as of yore, but the public is not interested. Desperate bear baiting and equally desperate bull fighting occurs on the street as in former times but the public takes no interest in the game. The public has learned that the doings of Wall street should not concern the public. The lamb has learned at last that the path of speculation leads to the shambles sooner or later.

The money made on Wall street is made by the holders of stocks and bonds, not by the gamblers. It dawned on the lamb some time ago that every dollar made by anybody on the street is lost by some other body, and that the public was always that some other body.

Education is responsible for the present stagnation of Wall street. Congressional investigations of the money trust, the adverse railroad legislation and a lot of other things are blamed for the decline of the street, but the fact is that the public, through the newspapers and magazines, saw what made Wall street's wheels go around, learned what made Wall street tick, and the public promptly lost interest. There is nothing so deadly to a pastime or amusement such as Wall street furnished as a thorough understanding of it.

"And you wouldn't know the old place now," might be sung with unctious by the brokers today. The crooked little street with a cemetery at one end and the river at the other hardly knows itself in these troublous times. An old-time broker who has made and lost several fortunes in the street was heard to hum thusly:

"I feel like one who reads alone some banquet hall deserted, whose lights are fled, and garlands dead and all but him departed." Some of the wise ones profess to believe that Wall street will never "come back" while others just as well versed in its ways, predict confidently that the present othargy, the wide berth that the public is just now giving the exchange and bucket shops is just a temporary thing, soon to pass away. These points hopefully to 1907-08 as an example of temporary depression. But there is no analogy. In those years there was panic. Today there is nothing of the kind. Wall street is doing a healthy, legitimate business. Shares are changing hands normally. What is missing is speculation. The public is not playing the game, not because of hard times, but because the public knowing it is bound to lose at the game, does not want to.

Five hundred Wall street clerks have been discharged, and all the survivors have stood for hugs cuts in salary. Telegraph operators who used to enjoy "tims" on "good things" and make "a nice piece of change" no longer receive those favors. Messenger boys who used to get $5 bills gratuitously, now jump at dimes. The brokers gather around the ticker with a semblance of their old vigor, but they are watching the baseball scores. Floor men spend their time figuring the cost of summer vacations.

A singing evangelist the other day tried to start a street meeting near the curb market and was told curtly to "go and save 'em up in Central Park." A newly discovered tenor who says he outsings Caruso, went down the street the other day to sing in an effort to attract a rich banker, a thing not uncommon in the old days, and was promptly arrested.

Whatever the answer, things are not the same down in the financial district, and there are those who believe that Wall street as an institution will soon become a tradition.

CLOUDBURST NEAR JOHN DAY

Rocks Are Washed Onto Farm Land; Miles of County Road Gullied.

JOHN DAY, Ore., July 29.—The heaviest cloudburst experienced in this country for many years occurred Thursday evening a few miles below John Day. The county road along the John Day river was washed out for a distance of several miles. Two bridges together with a considerable amount of fencing were carried away. Hundreds of tons of earth and rock were washed from the hillside onto the flats below. Rocks weighing up to more than a ton were washed down into the road and onto adjoining farm land. A portion of one hay field was covered to a depth of several inches with earth and rocks from the hills above. The loss, including the damage done the county road, will probably exceed a thousand dollars. So far as ascertained no one was hurt.

SUMMER HINTS TO MOTHERS WHO CARE

Seasonable Advice on the Health of Children in Hot Weather.

It is well that mothers be advised not to over-feed the children during the hot months. No one requires as much food in summer as in winter. Feed the children lighter and more easily digested foods. See that the milk is cool and kept away from flies. Be careful that the fruit is ripe, and if the child begins to scratch the skin, indicating too much acid in the blood, deprive it of fruit for several days.

It is quite natural that under these conditions there will be some digestive disturbance, such as constipation, indigestion or summer diarrhoea. It may be accompanied by a cold or by eruptions of the skin. The timely remedy, and one which you can rely on for results, is a small dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin on retiring, and by morning the bowels will move and the trouble will vanish. The exceptional tonic ingredients in this remedy will tone the stomach and enrich the blood, and the child will feel its usual self again.

Many families like that of Mr. William Weber, 29 Edwin Place, Buffalo, N. Y., who uses it for foul breath and constipation, and Mrs. John Wallace, Scottsville, Ky., who finds it valuable to herself as well as her children, are never without it, keeping it for just such emergencies. You also can obtain a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at fifty cents or one dollar of any druggist. Families which once use this pleasant-tasting laxative for ever after discard cathartics, purgatives, salts and pills.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it, postpaid, by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 418 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

14 COUNTRIES WERE VISITED

American Commission on Agricultural Will Have Joint Meeting in Paris.

PARIS, July 29.—With sub-committees arriving from Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Norway and Sweden and the main body from Germany, the entire strength of one hundred members of the American commission of agricultural co-operation gathered here for the last week of its visit in Continental Europe. It was the first time that the entire party was together since they left the ship at Naples, May 10. At various stages of the trip sub-committees have been sent to Russia, Egypt, Switzerland, Spain and Sicily. In all, fourteen countries of the continent were visited.

The welcome to France was extended first by M. Clementel, minister of agriculture. A luncheon was served at the American embassy at which Ambassador Herrick, H. Clementel and David Lubin, American delegate to the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, made addresses. M. Poincare, president of the French republic, tendered a reception to the Americans. Officials of the Bank of France, received the commission, following the president's reception in the Elysee Palace. Thus the commission entered and left the continent with receptions from the chief magistrates of two countries. In Italy, the first country visited the commission was received by King Victor Emmanuel.

The French program opened with conferences at which leaders of agricultural affairs and of the agricultural credit movement addressed the commissioners. The principal points of study in France were the Credit Fancier, the great national land bank of France, and the Credit Agricole, or association of short time co-operative credit institutions.

In order to study at first hand operations of the credit institutions, the commissioners were taken as sub-committees through the French provinces, visiting the country about Lyons, Arles, Orleans, Pau, Bordeaux and Reims. The main body of the commission pursued its studies in Paris.

TWO FUTURIST AUNTIES.

(From Lippincott's).

Among the bewildered and in some cases indignant spectators gathered at the recent futurist exhibition in Chicago was a young man from Springfield, in charge of a cousin who is "strong for" the new movement in art.

The youth remained silent during the view and the subsequent explanations of the new idea given him by his cousin.

"Well," said the latter finally, "you don't seem particularly enthusiastic about them. What do you think?"

"Think?" growled the youth from Springfield. "Why, I've got two aunts at home that can knit better pictures than those."

MOTHERS, INVALIDS AND THE WELL Colds, Sleeplessness, Anæmia WHITBREAD

This is a simple advice, for which you would pay if you consulted the best English doctors, who recommend to those suffering from poor blood, run-down condition, sleeplessness, etc., the famous Whitbread English Ale or Whitbread Renowned Stout (Malt Extract), made from the finest barley, malt and hops to be obtained, and matured only in the bottles, by Whitbread in England and sent direct to America. Whitbread has a most wonderful effect upon the system, and for mothers, invalids and those in a run-down condition it is invaluable. It has brought comfort to thousands of suffering women. Doctors, clergymen and professional men have taken Whitbread Ale or Whitbread Stout for nervousness, due to overwork, and to build up the system. Temperate people drink Whitbread Ale because it is not only a delicious beverage, but a tonic and blood giver. A glass of Whitbread Ale or Whitbread Stout at night time and with meals will give that restful sleep.

Whitbread Ale or Stout are different from all other Ales or Stouts, being matured in bottles and contains only natural gas (not carbonated), and most easily digested—in fact a wonderful tonic for the stomach. Do not accept any substitute for Whitbread, as there are no others like it. A trial from your local dealer will convince you of the wonderful effect of Whitbread Ale or Stout.
