TRIED RECIPES.

Stuffed Cabbage.
Cut out the stalk end of a head of cabbage, leaving a hollow shell. Grind two pounds, uncooked round steak with a slice of bacon and an onion. Add one cup bread crumbs, soaked and wrung dry, one beaten egg, salt, paprika and mace. Shape into balls, arrange in the cabbage and steam until cabbage is tender. Serve with tomato sauce.

Salmon Timbales.
One pound canned salmon, one-half cup soft bread crumbs, one tablespoon melted lemon juice, four eggs, paprika. Remove the bones and skin and bread the salmon into small pieces. Mix together all the ingredients and pack closely in small buttered timbale tins or cups. Set them in a pan of hot water and bake until firm. Turn out and serve with a sauce.

Cocoanut Soup.
Three cups veal stock, two tablespoons cornstarch, celery, salt, nutmeg, one cup cream, salt, paprika, one-half cup grated cocoanut. Blend cornstarch with a small amount of cold water. Add veal stock, salt, paprika, a few grains of nutmeg, and one-third teaspoon of celery salt. Cook until the mixture thickens. Add cream and cocoanut. Reheat and serve with dots of whipped cream.

Rosbury Cakes.
One quarter cup butter, two eggs, one half cup sour milk, one teaspoonful cinnamon, one half cup raisins, one half cup sugar, one half cup molasses, one half cup flour, one teaspoon soda, one half cup English walnut meats. Cream butter, add sugar and beaten yolks of eggs. Mix and sift ingredients and add to first mixture alternately with molasses and sour milk. Add whites of eggs, beaten dry, chopped raisins and nuts. Bake in gem pans, cover with moca frosting. This should make 18 to 20 cakes.

Ginger Ice Cream.
One pint cream, yolks of three eggs, one third jar (small size) preserved ginger. Scald the cream and pour it gradually over the beaten yolks. Return to double boiler and cook until thick. Chop the ginger fine. Add it and a third of the syrup to the custard. Freeze the mixture, using three parts ice and one part salt.

Oatmeal Macaroons.
One tablespoon butter, one half cup sugar, one egg well beaten, one fourth teaspoon salt, one and one half cups rolled oats, one half teaspoon baking powder. Combine the mixture. Do not add water. Drop from spoon on to greased pans. Bake in hot oven until brown.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Loose Coat.

The loose or "sport" coat is in great demand this season and is so practical and useful as well as attractive that it has assumed popularity. The illustration shows it at its best. In one view, the fronts are cutaway and there is a belt and, in the other, the fronts are straight and the belt is omitted, and the two treatments are equally good.

Nothing could be better for motor-ing, for traveling and for general utility wear, and there are a great many appropriate materials. Wool serge and cheviot are excellent, but the model is good for the duster as well as the coat of warmth, and pongee, mohair and linen all can be made in this way.

There are just front and back portions and there are darts from the shoulder edges of the fronts that achieve all necessary fitting. The sleeves are the regulation two-piece sort with rolled over cuffs.

For the medium size, the coat will require 6 yards of material 27, 4 1-2 yards 36 or 3 yards 44 inches wide, with 5-8 yard 27 inches wide for the collar and cuffs.

Sallow complexion comes from bilious impurities in the blood and the fault lies with the liver and bowels—they are torpid. The medicine that gives results in such cases is HERBINE. It is a fine liver stimulant and bowel regulator. Price 50c. Sold by all dealers.—Adv.

OLD OAK TREE WAS 326 YEARS OF AGE

MONMOUTH, Ore., Aug. 6.—In 1587, when the English people were making attempts at colonization in America, one of the largest and oldest oak trees in Polk county started to grow. This big giant oak has just been sawed down on the edge of the Whiteaker farm, two miles north of this city, because its massive form shaded nearby fruit trees and kept them from growing. A careful count of the rings on the stump after the tree had fallen showed its age to be 326 years. The axmen found the circumference 18 feet 6 inches and the diameter about 6 feet. Over 22 ricks of stove wood were obtained from the tree. The oak was believed to be second largest in the county. About one mile from where it stands the oak tree which is considered by ranch folk for miles around as the largest in the county. Its circumference is 24 feet 7 inches and the diameter nearly 8 feet.

GEN. WOOD SAYS TEA IS BETTER THAN WHISKEY

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 6.—"It would be a good thing for the country at large and the army in particular if the bill prohibiting the manufacture of alcohol were to be made law," declared Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the United States army, while in Portland Sunday.

"I do not believe, however, that the bill will pass. There will be too much opposition to it. But really about the only way to reduce alcoholism is to make it as hard to get as any other poison. Either that or take from it the mystery with which it is surrounded."

"In this country we find drunkenness because the source of alcohol and its effects are kept a mystery. But travel in some of the countries on the continent where wine is cheap enough to bathe in and you'll never see a case of drunkenness. Our boys ought to see some of those foreign vineyards. They ought to find out that alcohol is merely the result of a natural process; that it isn't nectar, but has a very bad taste; that it isn't the stuff dreams are made of, but the stuff drunks are made of. Then we'd have less intoxication."

"I am growing to believe in tea as a beverage for army use. It stimulates without disturbing the circulation. Both whiskey and coffee seriously disturb the circulation, send the blood to the surface and produce an unnatural condition."

"You'll find that whatever has a push has a kick back. So stimulants that have their reaction every time are harmful. Our experience in the Philippines showed that tea didn't have such reaction and the men got to like it better than coffee."

General Leonard Wood accompanied Secretary of War Garrison to Portland and with him inspected the jetty at the mouth of the river and the Vancouver barracks.

ADVICE FOR EXHIBITORS

They Can Exhibit Chickens at the State Fair This Fall—Rules Given by Expert.

Boys and girls, would you like to know how to get your chickens ready for the school fairs this fall so that if they are really the best they will get the prize? No, you mustn't think that the best ones will always get the prize. They must look the best. This is what Professor Alfred Lunn tells us and though only recently a boy himself he is now a very skillful poultryman in the Oregon Agricultural college. And you know yourselves that if the feathers are dirty and scraggly, the chicken looks drooping and discouraged and cannot be expected to win a prize, no matter how fine a chicken it really is.

The first thing to do, Professor Lunn tells us, is to send to your county school superintendent or the secretary of the fair for a premium list. Then you decide just what prizes you are going to try for, not too many, then try for them hard.

Next you must select the best chickens you have in your class. The ones that are nearest just fully grown, "just coming of age, you know," are likely to be the best. They must be healthy, plump, in good flesh and their legs smooth and free from disease. Those that are not afraid of you, that stand up well and move about gracefully, are to be chosen if they are as good in other ways.

Now you are to get them ready for shipping. About four days before you are to send them to the fair you are to give them a good bath. Get three tubs or large pans and put warm water in the first, water a little cooler in the second, and water with just the chill removed in the third. Take your chickens one at a time and soak them in the first tub until their feathers are wet through. You may put the head under just a moment even if they do squirm. Then place them on a bench or table and go over with a good soap, rubbing it down well into the feathers. Wash them in the second tub, brushing gently in the direction the feathers go. Then rinse them in the third tub. Gently lift the feathers with the hand and stroke them until they are about dry.

Now you are to train them to coop and to handling and have a chance to show just how skillful you are. Get a coop for each "rooster" and one for every two or three pullets or hens. The coops are to be a little taller than the bird when it stretches itself so that it can't bruise its comb on the top. For a very tall bird thirty inches is right, but for your tiniest bantams 12 inches is enough. Put three or four inches of dry chaff in the bottom of each coop.

You still have three days to train them in and this is the best fun of all. Take them gently, speak kindly to them and stroke their feathers softly with your hands until they like it and lift their heads in approval. You see, the judge may wish to take them up, and if they pose well then it is a big point in their favor. While training, feed them grain in the coop and place water just outside where they can reach it.

Now comes the day for taking them or sending them to the fair. Put plenty of grain in the coop to last them until they are fed again, but no water. Instead, put some vegetables or apples in the coop, which will take the place of water very well.

If you have really good chickens and follow the above simple directions you will be sure to make a very creditable showing whether you take a prize or not.

In case you fail to put your best foot forward when you have a chance you may feel like using it to kick yourself forward to.—Philadelphia Record.

COMMISSION SETS WORKING SCHEDULE FOR YOUNG GIRLS

Minimum Wage to Be $1 Per Day—Telephone Company Claims It Will Be Hard Hit.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 6.—The Oregon industrial commission made a ruling today which affects wages and working hours of women. Under the ruling, which becomes effective in 60 days, all girls under 18 may work but eight hours and 20 minutes a day or 50 hours per week. They may not work after 6 p. m. and all girls between the ages of 16 and 18 must receive a minimum of $1 a day except where arrangements have been made with the commission for apprentices or learners. The law will affect girls employed in department stores, telephone exchanges, telegraph offices, hotels, restaurants, laundries, mechanical establishments and other retail business of like character. Male minors are not affected.

The ruling was made after a public hearing at the commission's headquarters in the Commercial block, at which were present representatives of department stores and telephone and telegraph companies.

W. P. Olds, representing department stores, asked that the minimum of eight hours be increased to eight and one-quarter hours, in order that the service in the middle of the day during lunch time might be maintained at a standard that would be fair to the public.

On motion of Amadee Smith, this change was made. F. H. Shea, representing the Pacific Telephone company, indicated that the new ruling would hit the telephone service severely, as one third of its girls were under 18. He implied that as a result of the ruling his company would refuse to employ girls under 18. He pointed out that it was a much harder problem for the telephone company to adjust than for the department stores as they had to take into consideration the night shifts and Sunday work.

Just what the department stores will do in reference to Saturday closing is to be determined. In many of the stores the percentage of employees under 18 is large and the observance of the law would practically be an order for Saturday closing.

LACK OF HOUSEWORK CAUSES WOMEN TO BECOME ANEMIC AND SAD

DENVER, Aug. 6.—Is the female sex in America becoming a race of flat-chested and anemic women, due to the tendencies away from housework and toward idleness?

Dr. Olive Lynn of Colorado Springs, one of the visiting women attending the convention of osteopaths now being held here, thinks so. She backs up her assertion with statistics to prove that women today possess weaker spines and are more frequently sufferers from spinal lesions and lung trouble than formerly.

"If the woman of today wants to be beautiful, its back to the old days of the freezing cold bedroom, the chilly sheets and the warming pan," she says. "Its back to the broom and the rolling pin and the bread board; if she wants firm, round, white arms; to wash tub and the mop and the task of making beds, if she wants small waist and hips; to the clothes line and the cookstove for a full chest and gracefully rounded shoulders; to washing windows and weeding the garden for grace and freedom of movement."

"I have recently noticed the large proportion of flat-chested women. It is the custom to laud the women of the present day as ideal; but the simple facts are that the women of the present generation are more flat-chested and bloodless than our mothers and grandmothers were. This is because they do less housework."

But the figure of women has changed tremendously in the last decade or two, and that for the better, was found to be the prevailing tone of aposium gleaned from the physicians attending the osteopathic convention. It was thought that tennis, golf, rowing, swimming, walking, riding, have entirely remodeled the feminine figure and altered the masculine ideal of what constitutes womanly beauty. One doctor said:

"I firmly believe in corsets as an asset to the healthy woman. The corset of the present day leaves the waist and bust free, and supports the abdomen, tending to greater erectness and freedom of carriage. We are getting back to the Venus of Milo proportions—the twenty-eight inch waist. The figure of the wasp waist and large hips and drooping shoulders was an artificial figure. Now we are getting back to the natural lines of the body."

AMUSEMENTS

The Orpheum.

For Tuesday's change a splendid two reel Kalem feature. With Carlisle Blackwell and Marian Sals taking the leads.

"The Fight at Grizzly Gulch." Kalem. Two reels. Wentworth, a white trader interferes when the chief's daughter, Starlight, is dying under the care of the medicine man. The tribes doctor is infuriated and the superstitious Indians make Wentworth prisoner. Starlight recovers and liberates him. They flee and go to his wife and child and meet a party of settlers. They are attacked by the howling savages, but are saved by the strategy of the Indian girl. Finally the Indians are destroyed by the American troops, and with no home and no people Starlight sadly goes back to the fort and begs the Wentworths to make her their servant.

"The Moulding." Vita. Featuring Anita Stewart and E. K. Lincoln. The artist falls in love with the beautiful but untutored country girl. He brings her home to his parents but is ashamed of her ignorance of society. Seeing this a friend takes her to Paris and cultivates her. When she again meets her husband his love is reawakened and he has learned a lesson that brings happiness to them both.

"Entertaining Uncle." Kalem. Featuring John Brengan and Ruth Roland. Uncle Amos who is thought to be very sedate and pious comes to pay a visit to George and Helen. They remove all signs of worldliness and Uncle who really came for a good time, soon tires of the "model household." He meets the stenographer and makes a date with her. The next morning George receives a telegram to ship a suitcase to a certain couple who have eloped.

"Cosmopolitan New York." Kalem. An interesting educational film.

Pastime.
For Tuesday's change the Pastime presents "The Diamond Mystery." Vitagraph special feature picture in two parts. The fine quality of the photography is the first thing that will be noticed in this offering. The acting of the play is thus given a perfect medium and both reels are filled with many admirable things, bits of character drawing, flashes of insight with the intelligent setting forth of situations that make a story creditable. The average spectator will like it very much; because there is no dragging in it; it is full of life from beginning to end. Charles Kent's facial expression is wonderful. Mary Maurice plays the wife. Leah Baird plays a charming girl with creditable smoothness. Coutsenay Foote fills with dignity a conventional part, the detective. The others, Earl Williams, E. K. Lincoln, Charles Edwards, Joseph Baker, Roger Lytton and Frank Mason, deserve most favorable mention.

"His Mother-in-Law's Visit." Edison. Brandon's exacting young wife with her strict house rules and unattractive dress, drives him to his club. He has never seen her mamma and nearly dies when he hears that she is coming for a visit. But her good sense proves the making of her happiness.

"On Her Wedding Day." Lubin. In this excellent photoplay the fierce disposition of a woman madly in love gives way to quick realization of her better self just in time to save a worthy life.

Cosy.
For Wednesday and Thursday: "War." Three reels. 101 Bison. There is probably not a moving picture film in existence which covers the subject of warfare more thoroughly than this three reel offering. It is a complete exposition of the actual fighting, the movement of troops and all the attendant features of warfare. As a big, sweeping incarnation of "war's rude alarms" this offering is worthy of the highest commendation.

"Cooking for Trouble." Solax. Hubby tried to prepare the evening meal with wonderful results, including a flooded kitchen. His attempts at the culinary art will cause shouts of laughter.

Coming Friday—A most sensational three reel Gaumont, "The Tomb of Flame."

Constipation is the starting point for many serious diseases. To be healthy keep the bowels active and regular. HERBINE will remove all accumulations in the bowels and put the system in prime condition. Price 50c. Sold by all dealers.—Adv.
