MODESTY WAVE HITS ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 21.—Little Old St. Louis today is engulfed to the neck in a wave of modesty. Ordered to display no paintings, pictures or statues in the nude, proprietors and managers of cafes and restaurants have dressed them, and wiser sights meet the eye of the patrons of these places.

In one downtown cafe Venus wears a pair of diaphanous trousers, and the Lady with the Goose is garbed in a silk skirt, the silk extending perilously close to the Lady's neck. In another cafe where the proprietor boasted a really handsome group depicting Pan piping to a bevy of "altogether" woodland nymphs, Pan has been forced to don a specially made pair of overhauls and the girls are dressed up in pajamas, nighties and mother Hubbard's. "The Sleeping Beauty," who has for years reposefully slumbered on a slab in another cafe unclothed, now wears a made-to-order policeman's uniform. The proprietor said he could think of no more fitting garb for a sleeping figure.

Still another cafe manager in whose place was a bronze figure taken from the now famous "September Morn," has dressed the figure up in a short white linen garment that comes in pairs. A statue of Bachante, the original of which was refused by the Puritanically inclined of Boston, and now sports herself in the Metropolitan of New York, now wears a complete motoring outfit including goggles and veil. The infant she holds in her arms wears the one garment which has come to be a badge of babyhood.

GOT TIP FROM WAY HE WORE HIS HAT

BELGRADE, Aug. 21.—Perhaps the best story of the second Balkan war, wherein humor was scarce, is being told here today about a young clerk who was discharged from the Serbian war office for unconsciously giving out information to correspondents.

The clerk was accused of indiscretion in giving out war news and when he demanded an explanation, was told that he was "indiscreet with his hat." The more acute the angle at which the Serbian wears his hat, the greater is supposed to be his exhilaration and this young man, though as silent as the grave, could not, on hearing of every fresh victory before it was publicly known, resist putting his hat on jauntily awry.

Reporters, when they could get no news from headquarters, watched the young clerk as he left the war office to go out for his lunch. When the hat was worn rakishly on one side, the reporters would return to their offices and write fiery stories of victorious that had come to the Serbian army.

LEWISTON FEARS HOPPERS, Farmers Prepare to Meet Threatened Invasion.

LEWISTON, Idaho, Aug. 21.—There is widespread fear in this vicinity that grasshoppers, which have damaged orchards in the Lower Snake river valley, will attack the rich orchards and grain lands near here. Some of the insects have appeared in nearby orchards.

The pests practically have mowed down vast alfalfa tracts, orchards and grain fields in the Lapwai section, according to reports. The damage to the grain field of D. J. Wyatt, south of this place is estimated at $1000. Many small orchards in that vicinity are reported to have been attacked.

Growers are taking measures to combat the insects if they begin to feed on the ripened fruits and grain. Some farmers have taken steps to kill them in such numbers as to render the hoppers a merchantable article for poultry food.

1,000,000 Bibles for Chinese.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—One million bibles have been sent into China in the last six months, according to a report made today by the China agency of the American Bible company. Arrangements have been made to send another million to the newest republic before the end of the year.

Woman and Her Varied Interests

Modes in Brief.
The soft brim hat of stitched silk or linen is popular for motoring or tramping.

A conceit of the season is to have a design on the coat wrought out in heavy self-covered cording.

Colored edging is a finish to some of the net ruffles which mark the new lingerie.

Shirtwaists of pique are worn with skirts of ratine or sponge. Of course, the new pique is much more supple than the material of the same name so popular several years ago.

Plaits, it is said, will be seen in coats as well as skirts the coming winter, while smashes will be more popular than ever.

Velvet waistcoats complete many of the early fall costumes.

Among the fall colors is a curious shade of green known as Bakst green. Copper, brick, silver and violet in exquisite tones are among the colors of beautiful new fabrics.

Scald the Wool.

Before mending stockings with ordinary darning yarn, it is a good plan to scald the skein or card over the spout of a kettle of boiling water, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. By this means the steam effectually shrinks the wool and when the stocking is sent to the wash there will be no thought of the mended portion shrinking away or tearing the surrounding part.

Cooking Dishes.

Instead of using scouring agencies to keep your tins and pots spotless you should simply wash them in hot clean suds and dry well before putting them away. For baking tins such as cake and bread tins, just heat and wipe them with a damp cloth, says the Los Angeles Express. If food has burned on, set your dish aside with a little warm water and sal soda in it. Then wash in the usual way. Food will never stick or burn on to cooking dishes treated in this way.

Keep Airtight.

Many housekeepers have trouble with keeping airtight anything that is put up in jars. If, however, after a bottle or jar is corked it is sealed with a mixture of beeswax and rosin there is no danger of air getting at it. To make this sealing mixture put two ounces of yellow beeswax and four ounces of rosin in a small tin can which is then set in a larger pan of hot water. Stir constantly until the wax and rosin are well blended. Apply while still liquid to the outside of the corked jar or bottle.—Louisville Herald.

Old Panama Hat May Be Renewed

A business girl gives this method of renewing a panama hat: With a clean vegetable brush remove all dust and loose dirt from the hat. Then place it on a wash board or some other flat surface from which the damp straw will absorb no color. Beginning with the top of the crown scrub a small portion of the hat a time with cold water into which peroxide has been diluted and if necessary use a naphtha soap of some reliable make. Rub as near dry as you can with a fresh towel each portion as it is scrubbed. Dry in a dark room or shade, where the sun cannot reach it.

To re-block the hat while it is quite damp take a pudding pan the shape and size you want the crown. Mold the crown over this pan. You can get most any shape or size pudding pan at the 5 and -0 cent store. Be sure to get a pan without a handle of any kind unless the pan is deep enough so that the handle will not come in contact with the rim of the hat. If the rim is too broad, while it is yet damp fold back like you would the hem of a garment and stick it around by hand. When it is damp you can press the edge of the rim together so it will not be necessary to fold or gather. When the hat is about dry press the rim with a moderately hot iron, being careful not to scorch. If when the hat is perfectly dry the rim droops, take a strong white thread and stitch around the outer edge of the rim, drawing the thread just a little as you stitch. If you run a strong white thread around the crown at the base close to the rim, it will hold it firm.

I reblocked my panama of four seasons in this way after one of the wholesale houses told me it was too small in the head size for any block they had. It is easier to reblock a hat than it is to clean one.

Negligee Has Advantages.

The natural and rational solution of the clothes problem in hot weather is the negligee, or rest robe. If the American woman could be made to realize the practical advantages of the rest robe she would give it the same prominent place in her wardrobe that it occupies with the French woman. The latter appears at her best in the gowns she wears at home; the prettiest and most becoming styles are selected for these intimate costumes, writes a New York Tribune contributor.

Certainly there is no more appropriate apparel for a hot summer morning than a loose boudoir suit of dotted swiss or flowered dimity. The little jacket may be trimmed with lace or frills of the material, and the skirt should carry out the same idea. The fundamental of such a costume is simplicity, and the trimming should not be so elaborate that the garments cannot make frequent trips to the tub.

Some women prefer the one-piece garment to the skirt and jacket and these rest robes can be developed quite as successfully from the dotted swisses, the flowered organdies and lawns, figured batistes and soft mulls. In trimming them the same care should be taken to avoid anything which will make them difficult to launder. White materials return from the administrations of the laundress in a more satisfactory condition than the colored goods, and on this account are preferred by many women.

Usefulness may give way to beauty when it comes to choosing the rest robe for afternoon tea or the informal dinner at home. These more costly gowns may be quite as thin and as cool looking as the simple little garments worn in the morning. Surely there is nothing more diaphanous than chiffon or tulle, and the majority of tea gowns are mere wisps of these gossamer-like stuffs arranged to fall in long, free, graceful folds. In one rose pink chiffon gown the pale rose veiling is mounted over a lining of chiffon in a deeper shade. Folds of the latter are brought to the front, under the bust line, and tied in a large drooping bow with pointed ends which reach almost to the floor.

The overdress consists of two straight pieces of chiffon, gathered on the shoulders, and allowed to fall in long points forming sleeves. Double ruffles of lace soften the edges of the overdress. The color scheme is appealing to the eye, and is generally becoming both to blondes and brunettes.

Another tea gown presents an inviting study in pale green and creamy shadow lace. The foundation of the gown is a soft china silk and the angel sleeves are of the lace set into very deep, elongated armseyes. The V-shaped neck would make any gown cool and comfortable, yet within the confines of her home there is no reason why the most fastidious woman should hesitate to enjoy it. Very full ruffles of narrow lace outline the front of the gown which opens over a petticoat of lace. Tiny chiffon rose buds, in various soft colors, peep out from the lacy frills.

PENNANT FIGHT WAGES IN WEST

Denver Seems Like Winner—Not All Interest is Centered About Big Leagues.

(By Hal Sheridan.)
NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Taking it for granted that some millions of people throughout this August ridden land have picked the pennant winners in the American and National leagues, and are beginning to figure on the batteries in the first of the World's series games, we believe it safe once more to turn our attention away from this struggle to the struggling minors. Therefore jumping blithely from Broadway to the snow-capped mountains of Colorado we find Denver the pick and choice in the scramble for the Western league pennant. Some say it isn't a scramble. Denver was the winner last year and so far as can be seen from this distance, there isn't anything in the league that will stop a repetition this year. Under the leadership of Jack Hendricks, a former big leaguer, Western fans believe the Denver aggregation is one of the fastest in minor league land. Except for a couple of men, Hendricks has a team of youngsters, willing and apt scholars for all the tricks he shakes from his leaves. In the last three years, Denver has turned out Buck O'Brien, one of the Red Sox pitchers in the last world's series, Dutch Leonard, a pitcher also with Boston, and Johnny Beal who figured in the deal between the White Sox and Milwaukee which sent Larry Chappelle into fast company. Hendrix has two promising youngsters this year in Johnny King, a pitcher, and Lester Channell, an outfielder. Channell is a slugger and has fairly knocked the hide off the ball during the season. King played with the Sacred Heart College team in Denver last year. Charley Doolin, of the Philadelphia Nationals signed him but he never played for the Phillies and Denver got him.

It may be taken from Hendricks that King is one of the best pitchers the Western league has had in years. Channell has been in fast company once. He was with the Cubs, but was sent to Louisville, in the American Association and then drifted westward. With Fisher, a first baseman, Denver fans believe the majors would be overlooking world beaters if King and Channell are not nabbed off before another year rolls around. But Denver isn't the entire league. The season started with a rush, Denver winning twelve out of the first thirteen games, and Omaha going great guns. Then Omaha blew up and fizzled very much a la Brooklyn in the National league. As these things were going on there was considerable activity elsewhere and otherwise.

They have the single upmire system in the Western league and the fans went after President Tip O'Neill with much gusto on the question, after umpire, players, owners, managers and spectators had mixed severally. Jimmy McGill, brother of Pittsburgh Phil, the famous race track plunger, owns the Denver club and along in the season, Umpire Sigler walloped McGill on the nose as a result of some argument. There were recent reports that McGill wanted to sell his club to get rid of the worry. But to follow the peregrinations of Umpire Sigler. Along in June Sigler forfeited a game to Denver because he said the Omaha players stalled. Bill Rourke, known as "Pa," is owner of the Omaha club. After the game he and Sigler met in the grand stand. There were words and Sigler increased his club owner batting average to 1,000 by cracking Rourke on the jaw and putting him down for the count. And inasmuch as Sigler weighs about 135 and Rourke weighs 200 all will agree that the umpire established somewhat of a batting average even if he was fired three days later by President O'Neill.

Among the teams perking up while the heat is sizzling, Des Moines is going the fastest. After a bad start the Boosters began to get under way and the prospects are they will finish second. Des Moines is strong in the box with Lafferty, Rogge and Faber. Rogge has turned the trick of winning ten straight games. Some time ago Faber and Johnny King of Denver engaged in an 18-inning battle, Faber winning. A week later, Faber pitched a sixteen inning game and allowed only six hits in that time. During the stove-league season St. Joseph was doped to give Denver a hot race this year but the major leagues raided the club and they fell back. Cincinnati took Johnson, the Indian pitcher. Gossett, now with the New York Yankees, came from the "Josies" and they also lost "Tex" Jones and first baseman Borton. The latter figured in the famous deal in which Hal Chase went from New York to the White Sox. Des Moines profited by the major raid, the White Sox turning over Jones to them.

One of the claims to fame, more or less, that the Lincoln club had up until late in July was that Paul Cobb, a brother of Ty, Detroit outfielder and temperamentalist, was tending one of its outer gardens. Cobb's name, however, attracted more attention than his outfielding and he was given his unconditional release.

Topeka has a slugging first baseman named Raup and the majors are expected to grab him after he has shown a little more, according to the team started poorly but is now going strong. Sioux City has not shown much class in the pennant race, and Wichita is doing a New York Yankee stunt at the end of the percentage column. There now seems little chance that Wichita will could be drawn from the cellar by the end of the season even if all the king's horses and all the king's men were given the job.

Remarkable Cure of Dysentery.
"I was attacked with dysentery about July 15th, and used the doctor's medicine and other remedies with no relief, only getting worse all the time. I was unable to do anything and my weight dropped from 145 to 125 pounds. I suffered for about two months when I was advised to use Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I used two bottles of it and it gave me permanent relief," writes B. W. Hill of Snow Hill, N. C. For sale by all dealers.—Adv.

MISSOURI GOVERNOR SOLVES SERVANT PROBLEM

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Aug. 21.—Governor Major believes he has solved the servant problem. Two weeks ago the Missouri chief executive learned it was customary to give the servants at the executive mansion two weeks vacation every year. He didn't like the idea of living without servants so he and his family moved to a hotel. The vacations ended today and the governor moved back to the executive mansion.

"ORIGINAL CAVALRY TROOP" HOLDS REUNION

MONESON, Pa., Aug. 21.—Battle-scarred veterans of the famous Ringgold Battalion, the Twenty-second Pennsylvania Cavalry, gathered here with a host of friends today for the annual reunion. The Ringgold Battalion participated in fifty-eight engagements during the civil war. It was the first cavalry organization to be recruited and enter active service. It captured the first Confederate flag and was actively engaged at Gettysburg and in the series of conflicts in the Shenandoah Valley.
