

Men Who Manage Round-Up Get No Pay For Services; They Are Amateurs And They Work for Pendleton

President is Sheriff of Umatilla County; Directorate Comprises Men From All Walks of Life; What They Do in Private Life

The Round-up Directors: Who They Are in Everyday Life.

Tillman D. Taylor, president of the Round-up, holds the position of sheriff of Umatilla county. For six terms he has occupied that office and will probably be sheriff for twice six terms more, if he so wills, for he is recognized as one of the most efficient criminal catchers in the state and his popularity with the voters of

T. D. Taylor
President of the Round-Up

Umatilla county is such that it has grown customary for all parties to nominate him. He registers democrat. Taylor has served on the Round-up directorate for four years, the first two as director of livestock and the last two as president.

Roy W. Ritner, vice president and business manager, has also served four years on the board, having been treasurer two years and vice president two. In everyday life he is a farmer by vocation and secretary of the Pendleton Commercial association by choice. Also he has been the guiding spirit of the Pendleton baseball club of the Western Tri-state league during the season just closed.

Charles H. Marsh, secretary of the Round-up, seems to like secretary jobs, for in private life he is secretary of the Hartman Abstract Co. This is his first year of service as a director but in previous years he has assisted on the accommodation committee.

William C. McKinney treasurer of the association, is accustomed to handling the coin of the realm for in ordinary life he holds down the position of exchange teller at the American National Bank. He also is serving his first year on the Round-up board.

Mark Moorhouse, director of competitive events, deals in real estate, insurance and loans when he is not doing Round-up, being manager of the Mark Moorhouse Co. He has been a director since the inception of the show, having been exhibition manager for the first two years.

Roy T. Bishop, director of Indians, came in first contact with the red people as a manufacturer of the famous Pendleton Indian robe, he being one of the two Bishop Bros., managers of the Pendleton Woolen Mills. He has held his present position since the Round-up was organized.

Fred Earle, in the course of routine life, is a merchant, being financially and otherwise interested in the Peoples Warehouse, one of Pendleton's leading mercantile establishments. He has seen three years of Round-up service, the second year as director of non-competitive events and the past two as director of parade.

FRED EARLE
Director of Parade

Lawrence G. Frazier, director of grounds, is another merchant. He is the owner and manager of the Frazier Book Store and he has had charge of the grounds and park during the entire four years.

Henry W. Collins, director of non-competitive events, is a grainman in everyday life. He is the local agent of the Balfour-Guthrie Co., and in addition owns a string of warehouses or his own. He has served two years as director of special features.

Sam R. Thompson director of livestock wins his daily bread by tilling the soil, having a large farm near Eastland. This is his first year as a member of the Round-up board.

Dean Tatom, director of accommodations, is the manager of the Columbia Produce Co. He, too, is acting as a director for the first time.

The Old Directors.
J. Roy Raley, president of the Round-up for the first two years, is a student of musty law books, being associated with his father in the legal firm of Raley & Raley.

James H. Gwinn, secretary for the first two years, is the president of the Pendleton Abstract Co.

Wilson E. Brook, director of finances for the initial exhibition and business manager the second year, is the manager of the Taylor Hardware Co.

Frederick Steiner, director of competitive events for the first two years, is the district attorney for the district comprising Umatilla and Morrow counties.

ROY T. BISHOP
Director of Indians

Lee D. Drake, director of publicity for the first two years, is advertising manager of the East Oregonian.

George A. Hartman, treasurer of the association for 1911 and 1912, is assistant cashier of the First National Bank.

Dan P. Smythe director of accommodations for the second year of the Round-up, is a member of the law firm of Carter & Smythe and also a member of the woolgrowing firm of Smythe Bros.

Paul Sperry, director of parade the first two years and director of accommodations last year, was formerly a sheepman and at present is working in the interests of the O.-W. R.

ROY W. RITNER
Vice-President and Director

& N. tax department
Harry Gray, director of transportation the first two years, is a member of the firm of Gray Bros. grocers.

James H. Sturgis, director of livestock last year, is a member of the firm of E. L. Smith & Co., agents for eastern Oregon and eastern Washington for the Holt Combined Harvester.

J. E. Keefe, Jr., secretary of the Round-up last year, was also secretary of the Pendleton Commercial association and is now in vaudiville.

Charles Ferguson, director of non-competitive events the first year, is an attorney and is now located in Klamath Falls.

Ben Hill, director of music in 1910, was a lumberman and is present in the undertaking business at Walla Walla.

William Ingram, business manager for the original year, was a groceryman and is now living in Portland.

During the first year of the Round-up there were fifteen directors but that number has been cut to eleven. The president has been given the position of exhibition manager, the offices of treasurer and finance director have been combined, the secretary has been given the duties of director of publicity and transportation, and the director of non-competitive events has been given charge of the music. The vice-president has been made business manager. In the initial year, the Pendleton Commercial association had charge of the accommodation bureau but since that time there has been a director in charge.

"Jim."
Say there! P'raps
Some on you chaps
Might know Jim Wild?
Well,—no offense;
Thar aint no sense
In gettin' riled!

Jim was my chum
Up on the Bar;
Thats why I come
Down from up yar,
Lookin' for Jim.
Thank ye, sir! You
Aint of the crew—
Blest if you are!
Money? Not much;
That aint my kind;

Dead!
Poor—little—Jim!
Why, thar was me,
Jones, and Bob Lee,
Harry and Ben,—
No-account men;
Then to take him!

Well, thar—Good-by—
No more, sir—I—
Eh?
Whats that you say?
Why, dern it!—sho—
No? Yes! By jove!
Sold!
Sold! W'y, you limb,
You ornery,
Derned old
Long-legged Jim.

Pendleton's Paved Streets.
For a city the size of Pendleton there is probably nowhere so many excellent streets. A total of 69 blocks already are paved. Within the last year 47 blocks have been paved and at the present time 10 more blocks are under way of being improved and 21 petitions have been presented to the city council for paving. This is a record of which Pendleton has just cause to be proud.

"Oh, Jack!" exclaimed the fair young thing, who was attending the Round-up for the first time, as the bulldogger held his steer, "see that man kissing the cow."
