WHOLE NATION OF WILD MEN SHOW

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 12.—Former expositions have shown wild men and women from the Antipodes, but it has remained for the San Diego Exposition to find a whole nation of wild men within the borders of the United States, a whole vast area where nothing has progressed since before the invasion of Mexico by Cortez in 1517. This area is in northeastern Arizona, and the Santa Fe Railway will cover ten acres of ground at the exposition with as close a copy of this country as is possible to produce. This location is known as the Painted Desert. It is a land where no white man has dared attempt agriculture or mining, where there is nothing but the Indian, his ancient civilization unaltered, living in his story houses of 100 rooms without an outside door, doing the same things in the same way his forefathers did for centuries before white men came to America.

Comparatively few white men have penetrated this district. None has remained there. At long intervals a scientist has penetrated the fastnesses of the red and yellow hills. Indians emerge from it occasionally but they invariably return. Their homes are the identical buildings erected many centuries ago. Their pottery is the same, used for the same purpose and in the same rude manner. Their customs and tribal laws remain unchanged since when no man knows to the contrary. They irrigate small patches of grain just as did their forefathers. The country repels even the hardy prospector. Trees, except those petrified into stone, are not seen. No two hills are of the same color. The very rocks are variegated in hue. The pitiless sun scorches all vegetation encouraged by the winter and spring rains.

Members of the Santa Fe exploring party declare the Painted Desert rivals the wonderful Grand Canyon of the Colorado in grandeur and beauty of scenery. A second party has been sent into it to gather material for the great exhibit the railway will install at the San Diego exposition, to contain every thing possible to bring from that region, a territory that seems to have been forgotten by nature herself.

WOMAN REFUSES OPERATION

Tells How She Was Saved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Logansport, Ind.—"My baby was over a year old and I bloated till I was a burden to myself. I suffered from female trouble so I could not stand on my feet and I felt like millions of needles were pricking me all over. At last my doctor told me that all that would save me was an operation, but this I refused. I told my husband to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I would try it before I would submit to any operation. He did so and I improved right along. I am now doing all my work and feeling fine.

"I hope other suffering women will try your Compound. I will recommend it to all I know."—Mrs. DANIEL D. B. DAVIS, 110 Franklin St., Logansport, Ind.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

GOVERNMENT TAKES HAND IN LAND CASES

FEDERAL ATTORNEY IN PORTLAND TO ARGUE AGAINST APPEAL OF COMPANY.
Forced Sale is Demanded—Interior Department Backs Hermiston Bank in Effort to Carry Out Agreement for Distribution of 8000 Acres Owned by Maxwell Company.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 12.—The hand of the United States government will be a potent factor in the case of the Maxwell Land & Irrigation Company, a corporation, appellant, against the Hermiston Bank Trust Company, respondent, which will be tried in the Oregon supreme court at Salem this week. The case involves the compulsory sale of more than 8000 acres of land owned by the Maxwell concern.

United States District Attorney Reames and Assistant United States District Attorney Johnson are the attorneys for the respondent. They will be assisted by Judge King, chief counsel for the reclamation service, who arrived from Washington yesterday, and who will go to Salem today to make preparation for the trial of the case, which is the first of its kind in Oregon.

In 1904 and 1905 the government, acting under the act of congress approved June 17, 1902, generally known as the reclamation act, undertook an investigation of the feasibility of the construction, by the government, of an irrigation project embracing about 25,000 acres of lands within the Hermiston Basin.

Agreement to Sell is Made.
To the end that the holdings of the Maxwell Company, which amounted to almost one-third of the entire irrigable area of the proposed project or more than 8000 acres, included within the government project contemplated, negotiations were entered into between the agents of the United States and the Maxwell Company in 1905, which resulted in the Maxwell Company entering into a written agreement with the government which became binding April 1, 1905.

The Maxwell Company agreed to place all of its irrigable land within the project under the provisions of the reclamation act, and to dispose of the land in tracts of not greater than 40 acres to each person, to persons qualified under the terms of the act, to make applications for water rights; the 40-acre unit having therefore been adopted by the United States interior department, as the maximum acre necessary in this locality for the support of a family.

The government began the construction of the project in 1906, and November 12, 1908, the Maxwell Company, by agreement, deeded its land in trust to the Hermiston Bank and Trust Company.

Sale by Bank Provided.
The terms were, in effect, that in event the Maxwell Company had not disposed of any of these company lands for the irrigation of which water under the government system had been available for a period of one year, the bank should advertise and sell such lands at public auction, in tracts of not more than 40 acres to any one purchaser.

The government having become satisfied that the company had not sold lands that had been under irrigation for a year or more, the secretary of the interior in 1911 gave notice to the bank to sell the lands according to the agreed terms.

The Maxwell company brought suit to enjoin the sale. The government filed a demurrer to the suit in the United States district court for Oregon. The demurrer was sustained, and the Maxwell company appealed to the state supreme court.

This suit is a test of the government's present policy of trying to get its irrigated lands, or private lands, which are included and participants in the benefits of its irrigation projects, into the hands of actual settlers, who will farm the land, said Judge King last night, "rather than leave them in the hands of the speculator, who, pursuing a dog-in-the-manger policy, holds them out against use."

Under his new organization the reclamation commission is moving along rapidly with work looking to the early completion of irrigation projects in the arid west, including the West Umatilla project at Hermiston, said Judge King.

"Secretary Lane is doing what he can to get congress to act on his recent recommendation of a $100,000,000 appropriation for new projects. If congress acts, funds will be available and Oregon, by reason of having furnished in the sale of her public lands more funds than any other state except Oklahoma, should expect to receive her proportionate share of the benefits."

GRAND JURY OF WOMEN MAKE GENERAL CLEAN-UP

REDWOOD CITY, Cal., Jan. 12.—Indications are that the courts will have to decide the validity of the claims filed by eleven women members of the last San Mateo county grand jury for $3 daily each during their term of service, and mileage covering their trips to and from the county seat.

That they will win their case was the general opinion of lawyers here, but for some reason Auditor W. H. Underhill has declined to turn over their fees, interposing various technical objections as often as their bills were presented. The women version is that Underhill was angered because they compelled him to make a change in his office management and trouble him considerable money and trouble.

"The women on the San Mateo county grand jury," said Epert Accountant L. Q. Haven, who for years has seen service with grand juries here and elsewhere throughout California, "have made it the best inquisitorial body I have ever seen. They are absolutely fair and fearless, knowing no politics and caring nothing for private interests except to give everyone a justice."

HORSES WHO DIE IN SERVICE COUNTRY PAID FOR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—"Paying for a dead horse" is no more agreeable to the United States than to a private individual, even when the defunct animal is assessed at the modest price of $50. Comptroller George E. Downey, of the treasury, has just issued a ruling that under certain circumstances Uncle Sam will pay for a horse that dies in the service of its country, hereafter, but that nothing will be paid for the horse that sacrificed its life on the altar of patriotism on April 12, 1912.

On April 12, 1912, a member of the forestry service in Colorado hired a horse which died late the same day, it was discovered that the secretary of the agriculture, under whose jurisdiction the forestry bureau comes, had no authority to pay for the animal. Accordingly on March 4, last, congress passed a law permitting the secretary to reimburse owners of horses which in the future die in government harness.

Col. F. G. Gaffey, solicitor for the department of agriculture, in a recent opinion, held that as this act was of a remedial nature, it should work retrospectively as well as prospectively. But Comptroller Downey held otherwise; so only the dead horses of the future will be paid for.

Teach Your Child How to be Healthy

Regular Bowel Movement from Infancy Insures Good Health in Later Years.

We cannot all start life with the advantages of money, but every child is entitled to the heritage of good health. Through unfortunate ignorance or carelessness in the feeding of a baby its tiny stomach may become deranged. The disorder spreads to the bowels and before the mother realizes it the two chief organs on which the infant's comfort and health depend are causing it great suffering. If the condition is allowed to continue grave ailments often result.

There is, however, no occasion for alarm, and the sensible thing to do—but it should be done instantly—is to give the baby a small dose of a mild laxative-remedy. In the opinion of a great many people, among them such well known persons as the parents of Bertha Lee Woodward, 3 years old, of Moultrie, Ga., the proper remedy is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Three generations of people are using it today, and the thousands of families keep it constantly in the house, for every member of the family can use it. It can be obtained of any druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a bottle, the latter being the size bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. E. Caldwell, 419 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.
