South Pole Pictures.

The "Siege of the South Pole" has lasted nearly 150 years. It was in 1772 (to 1775) that Captain Cook made his historic voyage "Towards the South Pole and around the World," and since then (no fewer than 18 separate expeditions went out between 1819 and 1910) many endeavors have been made in attempting its conquest.

Famous names in the history of Antarctic exploration are: Willoughby and Jackson (16th century), Sir James Clark Ross, Sir George Nares, Sir John Franklin, Dr. W. S. Bruce, Borchgrevink, Lieutenant de Long, of the American navy, who sailed from San Francisco in the "Jeanette," in 1879; and Sir Ernest Shackleton, who went to within 100 miles of the pole in 1909. Captain Amundsen reached the pole December 24, 1911, just five weeks before Captain Robert Falcon Scott, R. N., who arrived there January 17, 1912.

No explorer in command of an Antarctic expedition, had ever met his death in those regions until Captain Scott succumbed in March, 1912.

Captain Scott, whose motion pictures come to the Oregon theater on March 5 for three nights, was the first to make the art of photography a separate department in a polar expedition. He placed Mr. Herbert G. Ponting, F. R. G. S., in charge of the photographic department and that gentleman, a famous British war correspondent, world traveler and camera artist, brought back 25,000 feet of cinematograph film and 2000 negatives.

Here's An Earned Nickname.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Representative Langley of Kentucky has the nickname "back home" of "Turnpike John." And by heck, sir, he's proud of it. He told the house recently during debate on the good roads bill that nobody could accuse him of playing politics on the $25,000,000 pork barrel roads measure, for by all the moonshine of the eternal Kaintucky mountains, he had gained his title of "Turnpike John" because he was a red hot advocate of the good roads movement.

Relic Not Digger Indian.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21.—Professor John C. Merriam, associate professor of paleontology and historical geology of the University of California, is in Los Angeles to determine whether the three-foot-high man found in a Brea asphalt pit belonged to the pleistocene age.

Professor Merriam has already disposed of the theoy advanced by a Stanford savant that the bones were those of a Digger Indian, declaring that the depth of the asphaltum pit at which the bones of the man were found made such a theory impossible.

Movies Called Indispensable.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb 21.—"The use of moving pictures in state institutions has become such an important part of the entertainment and instruction of state charges, that they are now indispensable." This statement was made today by C. J. Vassaly, chairman of the Minnesota state board of control.

"The motion picture is being found especially valuable in the schools for the deaf and the insane asylums," said Vassaly.

"It has been found especially difficult to get any sort of attraction that will hold the attention of the insane, but the problem seems to have been solved with the movies.

"At different exhibitions of pictures at the state asylum, the inmates were invariably intensely interested by the rapidly changing scenes.

It undoubtedly has a good effect upon their minds. At the school for the deaf the motion pictures have proved one of the biggest items in the teaching system, as the educational pictures can be explained by flashing the words on the screen. The movies will undoubtedly grow in importance as time adds educational improvements.

Woman and Her Varied Interests

Social and Club News, Personals, Fashions, Home Hints and Other Items of Interest to the World Feminine.

SOCIETY

A South American sazenda was the form which the annual of the Current Literature Club took yesterday afternoon when the members of the popular literary and social organization met at the home of Mrs. Lee Moorhouse on Water street. The club is this year studying the southern continent and this fact determined the nature of the entertainment. The affair was most unique and delightful. Luncheon was served from the typical South American coffee booth and the ladies all appeared in mantillas. The living room of the Moorhouse home was elaborately decorated in autumn leaves and flowers for the occasion.

The luncheon was served at 1:30 and the menu was composed of dishes dear to the heart of the Latin-Americans. Among the delicasies served were chili con carne, pimento wafers, tamales, cheese sandwiches, Spanish relish, Brazilian nuts and raisins. Yerba mate and Brazilian coffee.

After the luncheon, a very pleasant time was spent in answering appropriate queries and conundrums. Two very pretty Spanish songs were rendered by Mrs. Edwin B. Aldrich.

Mrs. David H. Nelson entertained informally yesterday afternoon at her home on the North hill. Bridge was played at three tables, the honors being won by Mrs. Chas. Greulich and Mrs. Frederick E. Judd. Those present were, Mesdames Wilson E. Brock, J. Newton Burgess, Henry W. Collins C. K. Cranston, Chas. Greulich, Frederick E. Judd, Chas. A. Murphy, William McCormmach, William L. Thompson, Thos. Thompson, Lina H Sturgis and Miss Hilda M. Erickson of Duluth, Minn.

The ladies of Umatilla believe in social as well as political equality and proved the abilities of their sex in an entertainment way last evening by giving a dance, planned, paid for and managed exclusively by themselves. Mere man took a back seat and, instead of picking and choosing his dances with an eye only to his own selfish desires, was glad to receive such favors as were bestowed upon him by the ladies. It was a highly enjoyable affair, according to reports received in this city.

The Luncheon Bridge Club was delightfully entertained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Joseph V. Tallman at her home on Water street. A Spanish luncheon was served as a novelty This is the last meeting of the club until after the Lenten season.

Mrs. Arle C. Hampton and her brother, James Bowler, are expected home tomorrow from Denver whither they were called ten days ago by the death of their mother.

Mrs. E. J. Sommerville is expected home today from Portland and Hoquiam where she has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Sprague.

David H. Nelson is enjoying a visit from his father, Gustaf Erickson, and his sister, Miss Hilda Erickson, of Duluth, Minnesota.

Miss Irene Shea left this afternoon to spend the week-end at Vansycle with Mrs. George Strand.

Miss Velma Wilkinson, popular young lady of Athena, came in on the morning train.

Mrs. T. C. Benson arrived last evening from Portland to be the guest of her daughter, Mrs. A. W. Rugg.

A number of high school boys will be hosts this evening at a dancing party in Moose Hall.

Miss Genevieve Clark is a guest of Miss Bertha Anger in Walla Walla.

Home Hints and Recipes

Women and Time.

Emerson is said to have remarked—not in print—that "women have no clocks in their minds." He probably meant that women as a rule have not that continual consciousness of an appointment to be kept, of a givien thing that must be done, at a given time, which the average man is obliged to require.

One reason for this may be that women do not often carry a timepiece upon their persons, because of that lamentable defici-worn pendant or attached to the masculine eye appears to be the fundamental defect of feminine dress. Even when a watch is worn pendant or attached to the wrist, the observer suspects that ornament is more often considered than used.

Punctually, the constant realization that you must make your actions fit into the time scheme of others and the general movement of the world, is the first principle of business. A man must learn it, even though it goes against the grain, and although his habits remain shiftless and irregular in the seclusion of his home. Probably the increasing army of women whose livelihood depends on business understand it better than their mothers did.

But if women have no clocks in their minds, at least they have watches in their hearts to take the pulse and measure the smallest needs of those they love.—Catholic Universe.

Through the Heart.

An anxious parent asks us why boys are so much harder to manage than girls. In reply we may say we have never found it so, but you must get hold of the boy's heart. Yonder locomotive with its thundering train comes like a whirlwind down the track, and a regiment of armed men might seek to arrest it in vain. It would simply crush them and plunge unheeded on.

But there is a little lever in its mechanism that, at the pressure of a man's hand, will slacken its speed and in a moment or two bring it panting and still, like a whipped spaniel, at our feet. By a similar little lever the steamship is guided upon the sea in spite of adverse wind or current.

That sensitive and responsive spot by which a boy's life is controlled is his heart. With our grasp gentle and firm on that helm you may pilot him wither you will. Bad and willful boys often have the tenderest hearts hidden away somewhere beneath the incrustations of sin, or behind barricades of pride.

And it is your business to get at that heart, keep hold of it by sympathy, trusting in him, manifestly working only for his good. Ther are many ways. Provide him some little pleasure; now and then set him to some little service of trust for you; love him—love him practically. Ony way and every way, rule him through his heart.—Record, London, Ont.

Becoming Hat for Every Face.

The hat with its crown towering is not altogether new, it has been seen some during the late winter. It will be seen more often as the spring hats appear, says the New York Press. This style of hat will be constructed from straw, tulle and jet. The brim will be straw, the crown tulle and the band and aigrette will be of jet. It is a hat that will have many followers, for most women will be glad of its height-giving effect. It will be becoming, for it will be shown in so wide a variety of brim and brimless effects that there will be a hat for every face.

The Care of Children

No one knows the exact number of babies that are born or that die every year in the United States, because, as a nation, we are ready enough to keep a record of registered blooded animals but we neglect, in many places, to keep any official record of the birth or death of the best stock we have—the American baby. In one of our Western states, some few years ago, a case was brought into the law courts inolving the inheritance of a considerable estate by a young girl. It was necessary to prove that she was born before a certain date. There was no official record on file to show the date of her birth; it had not been recorded by her family even in that repository of so much similar data—the family Bible. Her father swore that she was born on a certain date, and when he was required to tell how he could be sure, he said that he remembered it was two days before the birth of a fine blooded calf and that he had kept an account of the calf's birth, as it was registered stock. The girl inherited her fortune on this evidence, though her birth had seemingly been a less important occasion than that of the calf.

To give every mother an opportunity to learn how to develop the physical, intellectual, and spiritual nature of her child; to secure closer relations between home and school (great stress is laid on this); to encourage mothers' clubs in public schools and elsewhere; to secure adequate laws for dependent and delinquent children—these are the mothers' stated aims, and their summing up comes in one sentence—to raise the standard of home life. All over the nation, the newly awakened mother-spirit echoes the faith in its personal form:

"We believe in ourselves! We believe in our children!"—From "Making the Most of Motherhood," in Good Housekeeping.

Every man ought to know at least as much about his own business as he does about the other fellow's.

PARISIAN FRIVOLITY IN OUTER WRAPS.

The excuse for this Parisian coat is that it is very pretty and very fashionable since proportion was slighted when the loose, shapeless and almost one piece upper part was sewed to the skimp skirt. The ides of protection was thrown aside with a don't-care truly Parisian in the use of a material lightly touched with a cotton velour stripe on a ground so gauzy that the rose tinted chiffon lining shows through.

Christiane of Paris designed the coat to go over the sheer and crushable blouses and bodices to be concealed when one motors about Paris or promenades in the warm Riviera The front panel makes a oneness to the affair, assisted by a plenty of snap-fasteners along the side. Patent leather, rose-tinted taffeta, and embroidery silk make an original trimming that no one but a French woman could conceive.

SALTS IF KIDNEYS OR BLADDER BOTHER

HARMLESS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS AND NEUTRALIZE IRRITATING ACIDS.

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.
