Home Hints and Recipes

White Marks.

White marks can be removed from the top of a table and it can be made to look like new in the following manner: Slightly dampen a piece of wadding with methylated spirit, over which place a piece of white linen rag; screw round at back so as to form a portion to hold with, then apply with a circular motion where the marks are, rubbing gently, always in the same direction, until the marks disappear. Then rub well with a dry, clean cloth, after which polish with a good furniture cream. On no account must the spirit be put directly onto the linen, but on the wadding, which cover with the linen before using.

Set The Colors.

Now is the time when the "forehanded" woman is getting some of her summer sewing done. Before making up the colored wash materials she shrinks them and "sets" the colors. Green and lavender materials will retain their coloring unhurt by laundry work if they are soaked at first fifteen minutes in about two gallons of cold water, to which half a cupful of strong vinegar has been added. Salted water, or water to which a little turpentine has been added, will set pinks and blues. Colored silk stockings may be successfully washed by following the same rules.

Boil The Molds.

The wooden button molds are very apt to discolor the material with which they are covered, if they are left on a tub dress when it is laundered. If the precaution is taken of boiling the molds before covering they may be washed with impunity.

APPEAL FOR EDITOR IS DENIED BY SUPREME COURT

CONVICTION OF SILVERTON MAN IN MT. ANGEL CASE IS APPROVED.

SALEM, Ore., June 17.—Conviction of J. E. Hosmer, editor of a paper at Silverton, on the charge of committing criminal libel against the Mount Angel convent, was affirmed by the supreme court in an opinion written by Justice McNary and concurred in by Chief Justice McBride and Justices Bean and Eakin.

The libel was contained in the publication of an alleged confession of Mary Laseman, a nun, who was said to have escaped from the convent.

When the time of trial came the defendant could not locate Miss Laseman and asked for a postponement of the trial. This was denied by Judge Kelly, and this action of the judge constitutes one of the grounds upon which an appeal was made.

The supreme court held that no error had been committed in this instance, as facts were not presented to the court that the missing witness could not be produced.

The court also held that the plaintiff's contention that the indictment was faulty because it contained no allegation that the publication was malicious was untenable in view of the statutory definition of the crime of libel.

All other objections raised by the defendant were overruled.

TREES PLAY PART IN HISTORY OF NATION

AMERICAN AFFAIRS LINKED WITH NATURE AS WELL AS WITH BUILDINGS.

"Summer Elm" in Front of the Capitol Was Planted by Abraham Lincoln—Nearly Every Other President of United States Has Planted Trees in Washington.

(By Burton K. Standish.)

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Few persons realize that American history is linked as much with old trees as with historic buildings and spots. Few visitors to the National Capitol ever look at the famous trees—and there are thousands of visitors here every week who believe after their tour that they have seen everything of importance.

Not one in a thousand Washington visitors—or residents—know that the beautiful "Summer Elm" in front of the Capitol was planted by Abraham Lincoln. Few know that nearly every other president of the United States has planted trees in Washington which still stand. Nearly every famous American statesman can be linked with one or more of the sturdy old trees here. A big cypress near the Capitol was brought here by Mrs. Jefferson Davis and just across the street from it is a tree Charles Sumner planted.

The "tree man" of Washington is Bristow Adams, forest examiner of the Bureau of Forestry, United States Department of Agriculture. Speaking of trees closely associated with American history Adams said: "There is the famous elm under which William Penn made his treaty with the Indians. That tree was so esteemed that the English soldiers placed a special guard around it during the Revolution, and after it was blown down by a gale in 1810 its trunk was sent to the old Penn family seat, near Windsor, England. There it still is preserved."

On Georgia avenue in Washington, according to Adams, on the grounds of the Walter Reed Hospital is the trunk of an American poplar which was occupied by both Confederate and Federal lookouts and sharpshooters during the Civil War when the Southern forces made their nearest approach to Washington. The tree was the lookout point from Fort Stevens.

Scattered throughout the United States, especially in New England are many other famous trees. If one elm on Boston Common could tell its history, tragic tales of suffering would be unfolded, for on it were hanged two witches and Mary Dyer, the Quakeress.

At Hartford, Conn., is the famous Charter Oak where the charter of Connecticut was hidden when King James sent Governor Andros across the ocean to usurp the powers in the original land grant.

Adams said he believed the old Appomattox Oak is still standing. Under it Generals Grant and Lee met on the occasion which marked the close of Civil War hostilities.

At one battle of the Revolution the American forces were saved from a terrible defeat by the tough spongy wood of the palmetto tree. This was at Charleston, S. C., during the battle of Fort Moultrie. Then the British volleys fell harmless against the trees which sheltered the Continental army. The first Protestant church services in the United States were held under trees at Jamestown, Va. The most recent of historic trees in Washington are the Japanese cherries, the gift of the late Emperor of China. They were set out along the Potomac Drive.

It seems known to few Washington visitors that the huge bronze statue of Liberty which tops the Capitol dome faces away from the White House and Washington monument. Few seem to know that the original plans of the city were for the building where the nation's laws are made, to face east and not west.

When the Capitol plans were drawn the government expected the city to

ECZEMA ITCHED FOR 20 YEARS—RESINOL CURED

Dec. 8, 1913: "I had eczema for 20 years. It started on me when I was but 13 years old and am now 34, and have suffered all these years. It started with small pimples all over my face, arms and hands. My hands would swell up so that I could not shut them, and I was almost blind. It would itch, then burn, and I had to keep the affected parts wrapped up so that I would not scratch them. I couldn't sleep at all—just walked the floor a whole night."

"I have tried many different remedies, and spent a large sum of money, but had no relief. Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment were recommended to me. They gave me great relief after the third application, and after using four jars of Resinol Ointment and three cakes of Resinol Soap, I am completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. H. E. Fleager, Box 13, Dauphin, Pa.

spread to the east and the building was faced in that direction. Trade, however, drifted west and before many years it was necessary to make the western approach as dignified and beautiful as the real front. And now when strangers come few notice that they look at the original rear of the Capitol when they glance down Pennsylvania avenue from the Treasury Building.

Just the common ordinary mumbly-peg is the latest diversion for high government officials. Some days ago, weary by the long tolls debate in the senate Senators Overman and Chilton, of North Carolina and West Virginia respectively jumped into an automobile, rode over about twenty miles into Virginia, sat down in the cool shade to play. Chilton possessed the two bladed knife and started the fun. After a tough contest Overman lost and had to kneel down and pull with his teeth a peg from the ground. Chilton had the pleasure of "driving the peg."

Catarrh, for Example May Be the Cause of Very Serious Illness.

A Slight Trouble Often Brings Serious Blood Disorders.

A chronic cold means something wrong constitutionally. Pimples mean bad blood. Rheumatism means faulty elimination. These and a hundred other symptoms are easily recognized, but where is the trouble. Where is it located? What is wrong with the bodily machine? If you will go into any first class store and get a bottle of S. S. S. you are on the way to getting rid of those conditions that cause sickness and disease. But don't let anyone work off that old trick of something "just as good." S. S. S. taken into the blood just as naturally as the most nourishing food. It spreads its influence over every organ in the body, comes through all the veins and arteries, enables all mucous surfaces to exchange inflammatory acids and other irritating substances for arterial elements that effectively cleanse the system and thus put an end to the trouble. S. S. S. cleans out the stomach of mucous accumulations, enables only pure, blood-making materials to enter the intestines, combines with these food elements to enter the circulation, and in less than an hour is at work throughout the body in the process of purification. You will soon realize its wonderful influence by the absence of headache, a steadily improved condition of the skin, and a sense of bodily relief that proves how completely the entire system was loaded with impurities. You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores. It is a valuable remedy for any and all blood affections, such as eczema, rash, lupus, tetter, psoriasis, boils, and all other diseased conditions of the blood.
