No Speeding Tolerated.

Acting upon positive instructions from the city council as well as upon his own responsibility, Chief of Police John Kearney today issued orders to all of his police, regular and special, to arrest every man, woman or child who violates the speed ordinance of Pendleton. Any vehicle driven faster than 15 miles an hour or any horse exceeding that limit will be stopped at once and the owner taken into court. With such a great crowd present the officials are determined that no needless dander shall confront them.

Witnesses Must Go.

Despite the story in a Portland paper Saturday to the effect that U. S. Attorney Clarence Reames had postponed the cases requiring the presence of local people before the federal grand jury in Portland this week until next week on account of the Round-up, Police Officers Manning and Russell, Supt. Swartzlander of the Agency and his interpreters must report tomorrow, according to a telegram received today. With good fortune, however, they will be able to get back Wednesday night.

Police Prepare for Offenders.

Round-up week is the busiest week of the year for the police as well as for everybody else in the city and Chief Kearney has made preparations accordingly. Seventy-five special police have been secured and each one has been assigned to a separate beat so that every part of the town will be patrolled day and night. In the business district traffic police will be on every corner to lessen the danger of collision or other accidents. Sheriff Taylor also has an extra force and some of the best detectives in the northwest will be here on the lookout for crooks.

Walla Walla Show Sued.

Reports reach here that already at least one suit has been filed against the management of the Walla Walla frontier show in an effort to collect money from it. Del Blacett, well known cowboy who won some of the prizes there last week, is said to be

He will put an attendant in charge whose business it will be to answer questions of strangers and supply them with telephone numbers and other information. The city calls in these booths will be free of charge. Manager Mabie is making the arrangements in order to facilitate the handling of the crowd.

Mail Boxes at Front Doors.

Hereafter, if residents of Pendleton desire mail delivered at their homes they must provide receptacles for the mail at the front doors. This is an order sent out by Assistant Postmaster General Daniel C. Roper and received by Postmaster T. J. Tweedy this morning. Sixty days will be given for compliance with this order, after which service to houses with receptacles at side or back doors will be discontinued. The department holds that the carrier's time can be cut down considerably and a better ser-

3 WASHINGTON STATE BANKS HAVE CLOSED THEIR DOORS

CENTRALIA, Wash., Sept. 21.—The United States National bank with deposits of over a million, and the Union Loan and Trust company with deposits over a quarter of a million, failed to open their doors following an inspection of the institutions' books by Federal Examiner Mullt.

The directors of the institutions assert they will turn over all their private property and that the depositors will be paid in full.

George Dyzart, a stockholder in the United States National, attributes the failures to the European war and dullness of the lumber market and also to the fact that other banks had called in paper held on the local institutions.

It was said the trouble directly was due to financing mill and logging properties in which the bank people were interested. The state bank at Tenino, owned by the same interests as the two institutions here, also failed to open their doors. This failure, bank officials stated was largely due to the fact the bank had invested heavily in commercial paper similar to that held by the two local concerns.

The heaviest depositor in the local banks was the City of Centralia which had $90,000 on deposit. The closing of the institutions leaves the municipality with but $10,000 cash on hand from the spring tax receipts.

Charles Gilchrist is president of the United States National bank.

The beautiful saddles to be given as first prizes for the men's and women's bucking contests, this year will be on exhibit at the Hamley shop this evening. These saddles are said to be the finest ever turned out as prizes and the feature of the workmanship is the fine hand engraving.

Wires for Reservations.

Sheriff T. D. Taylor, president of the Round-up, this morning received a telegram from J. C. McKeen, deputy sheriff at Moro, asking him to make reservations during the Round-up for a party of four. Sheriff Taylor also was asked to make reservations for George Payne, special N. P. agent, and his wife.

Sues For Harvest Bill.

Alleging that they have $200 due them for harvesting the crop of Ernest Worle, Gust and Robert Belke have commenced suit against Worle, and the Pendleton Roller Mills and Pacific Coast Elevator Co., both of which claim an interest in the grain. J. B. Perry filed the suit for the plaintiffs.

His company has notified him to remain here and superintend all of the work in this district. He will move his family into one of the houses recently constructed on Raley street by himself and A. H. Cox who are in the building business together.

Victims of Accident Recover.

Mrs. Gus Byers and Mrs. C. O. Rhinehart, who were injured in an automobile near Walla Walla Saturday, are recovering satisfactorily and will be home this afternoon. This is the message received over the long distance telephone this morning. When the Byers auto turned turtle, both women were thrown over a fence. Mrs. Byers was only dazed by the fall but Mrs. Rhinehart suffered a fractured wrist and several cuts and scratches on the face, caused by a barbed wire which she struck. The three other occupants, Mr. Byers, his little son, Waldon, and Doc Richardson, a boy about 17, miraculously escaped. According to W. L. Thompson, whose car Byers was passing at the time of the accident, it is wonderful that the occupants escaped so fortunately. Mr. Thompson had stopped his own car at the side of the road to examine his engine. Mr. Byers, who was close behind in his big Stevens-Dureg, turned his car so suddenly and sharply in passing that one of the front wheels buckled under and the car turned bottom upward. Both of the boys were caught under the car but neither was hurt. Mr. Byers was thrown clear of the car save that his coat was pinned down. With the aid of some Greeks and Mr. Byers, Mr. Thompson liberated the boys and took the whole party to the Walla Walla hospital where the injured members were given attention.

We anxiously await the day when all the knoekers and kickers will get together and fight it out.
