WAR AND PEACE.

The clash of arms still shakes the sky. King battles still with king-- Wild through the frightened air of night The bloody tocsins ring. And stronger far the clasped hands Of labor's teeming throngs, Who in a hundred tongues repeat Their common creeds and songs. But clearer far the friendly speech Of scientists and seers, The wise debate of statesmen and The shouts of pioneers. O Father! from the curse of war We pray Thee give release, And speed, O speed the blessed day Of justice, love and peace.

In adopting resolutions endorsing Dr. Smith for governor the members of the local Typographical Union have not acted merely through consideration of personal regard for the former Pendleton man. There is deeper meaning back of their action and it lies in the fact those men realize that of the two men in the race Dr. Smith is the logical man for the wage earner to support. It is significant that the Portland labor organizations also have taken action along this line. Dr. Smith's candidacy appeals to such men not because he is a democrat but because he is democratic. They know he is friendly, just and fairminded. Any man, rich or poor can go to Dr. Smith and get a hearing. Dr. Smith was always that way when he lived here. He will be that way if he becomes governor. But that is not all of the story. In the present gubernatorial race there are issues that vitally affect the workingman and the common citizen in all walks of life. Dr. Smith stands for the defense of the direct primary law; his opponent denounces that law. In his antagonism to the direct primary Dr. Withycombe is antagonistic to the welfare of the common voter everywhere. It is through the direct primary that the ordinary citizen gets a voice in the making of nominations. Annul the direct primary by setting up the assembly scheme as Dr. Withycombe and the standpatters advise and the average man and woman will become virtually disfranchised on primary day. They will get what is left after the politicians and corporation lawyers have gotten through with the game. It is not a scheme to attract the approval of people and the printers show sound judgment in refusing to take up with any such proposition. Of even more direct interest to the wage earner is the theory of Dr. Withycombe regarding Chinese labor. He is sorry the Chinese were driven out and said in a speech at Oregon City, before his campaign advisors made him stop talking, that this state made a blunder in excluding the Chinese coolies. But if Dr. Withycombe's view had been adopted by this country the American wage earner on the Pacific coast would be paying heavily. The common fields of labor would be taken by oriental laborers and all our better lines of work would be crowded accordingly. Wages would be lower and jobs more difficult to get. White men and women would have to get out of many lines of work or work side by side with Chinamen as they did at one time in this state. How can anyone expect men who work for wages to support Dr. Withycombe with his Chinese labor views? If workingmen and women do not go almost as a unit to the standard of Dr. Smith in this race they will be dull and blind indeed. There will be no more rowing at the University of Wisconsin because an official ban has been placed upon that form of sport. An investigation was made by the medical faculty of the Wisconsin institution and it was discovered that a majority of the students in the rowing teams had developed hypertrophied hearts. Twenty out of 23 "varsity" men had this trouble which was charged directly to the overexertion incident to participating in rowing contests and practicing for such events. There will be disappointment among rowing enthusiasts over the discredit into which the sport has been cast. But if the facts are as reported the Wisconsin faculty has taken the only sensible action. It is of more importance for a school to turn out men who will be in line for future good health than to turn out winning rowing crews. Such athletic work as breaks down the body should be frowned upon or forbidden entirely. Some day the schools will cease paying so much attention to athletics and will devote more time to physical training. Such training is for all students and may be made extremely beneficial. Athletic work is only for the strong and vigorous and is frequently carried to such extremes that the student is injured more than he is benefited. Emperor William of Germany is a grand son of the late Queen Victoria of England and he asserts that during the Boer war he gave valuable aid to the English in conquering the South African Dutch republic. In an interview with the London Daily Mail, given a long time ago, the Kaiser claimed credit for the success of the English arms in the Transvaal. He said: "Just at the time of your Black Week, in the December of 1899, when disasters followed one another in rapid succession, I received a letter from Queen Victoria, my revered grandmother, written in sorrow and affliction, and bearing manifest traces of the anxieties which were preying upon her mind and health. I at once returned a sympathetic reply. Nay, I did more. I bade one of my officers procure for me as exact an account as he could obtain of the number of combatants in South Africa on both sides, and of the actual position of the opposing forces. With the figures before me, I worked out what I considered to be the best plan of campaign under the circumstances, and submitted it to my general staff for their criticism. Then I dispatched it to England, and that document, likewise, is among the state papers at Windsor Castle, awaiting the serenely impartial verdict of history. And, as a matter of curious coincidence, let me add that the plan which I formulated ran very much on the same lines as that which was actually adopted by Lord Roberts and carried by him into successful operation." The statement indicates that either the Kaiser is somewhat conceited or else he was then much more friendly toward England than he is today.

to keep track of affairs if you will use a small rubber band to mark the fighting line. It can be extended to the north when reports are received from Paris and snapped southward when the news arrives from Berlin. The auto street cars will be a particularly good convenience when the weather is bad. The enterprise should succeed and merits all the support that can be given. The men and women who work for wages do not appreciate a Chinese labor advocate as candidate for governor. There are also some interesting local political contests. BROKE UP THE GAME. The two football teams are facing each other. Tense and quiver, the opposing men await the signal that shall put the ball into play and hurl them against each other in the fierce shock of battle. The captain begins calling the color: "35, 35, 22, 17," he shouts. At that instant the left tackle, which is working his way through college by understudying a tailor, absent-mindedly asks: "Side or top pockets?"
