"HOW MARY GREW."

With wisdom far beyond her years
And graver than her wondering peers,
And strong, so mild, combining still
The tender heart and queenly will,
To conscience and to duty true,
So, up from childhood, Mary Grew.

Then in her gracious womanhood
She gave her days to doing good;
She dared the scornful laugh of men,
The bounding mob, the slanderer's pen,
She did the work she found to do—
A Christian heroine, Mary Grew.

The freed slave thanks her; blessing comes
To her from women's weary homes;
The wronged and erring find in her
The censor mild and comforter.
The world were safe if but a few
Could grow in grace as Mary Grew.
—John Greenleaf Whittier.

The first thought of the nations at war was of their food supply, and when their armies took the field in Europe's Needs, Belgium and France Americans at once felt the effect of higher prices for many of the necessities of life. As soon as the lanes of the Atlantic were made safe for shipping, enormous cargoes of wheat and flour and sugar were started on their way to British and Continental ports.

With a winter campaign and a long war in sight, a different class of orders from Europe is pouring in for the relief of American manufacturers. The British, French and Russians want huge quantities of blankets for the men in the trenches and for horses. France and Great Britain are asking for bids for shoes for their armies. There is a sudden demand for sheepskins for overcoats. Our mills are called on hurriedly to supply underwear. Harness, leather and saddle-trees are needed at once. A thousand automobile trucks, said to be for the Russians' use, must be produced without delay. Half a million reels of barbed wire, measuring approximately 125,000 miles, are to be delivered within the next few months. The shortage of hospital supplies can be met only from America. Even large quantities of clocks are demanded.

When millions of men are engaged in wholesale destruction and the industries of Europe are paralyzed by war, it has no choice but to turn to the one great nation where peace prevails and labor and materials are plentiful.—New York World.

Careful polls taken in Portland within the last week show that Dr. Smith is the favorite for governor excepting in the vice districts. The people who represent the homes of Portland want him as governor. This despite the fact he is the democratic nominee and Portland is a republican city. They know that partisanship is not the paramount issue in state politics. They like Dr. Smith because they have confidence in his ability and in his attitude on public questions that are of vital concern in this campaign. Dr. Smith is a man of strops views and he makes his views known in straight from the shoulder style. He is not "muzzled" as is his chief opponent.

The race for the governorship will be close as it usually is in this state but the odds are in favor of Dr. Smith. Hence the larger the majority that is rolled up for him in this county the surer will be his chance of election. Old Umattilla came to the front in loyal style at the primary and aided materially in nominating the man from this county. If the multitude of people in Umattilla county who claim Dr. Smith as a personal friend will work for him with the same zeal and energy that was displayed in May they will exert an influence that may prove decisive Nov. 3. Now is the time for every man and woman who has confidence in the ability and integrity of Dr. Smith to come to his support and to show by deeds that count that his long valued service to the people of this county is appreciated. In their hearts the people of this county believe in Dr. Smith and want him to be governor. Put your feelings into action.

It is almost always the habit of the liquor interests to blunder. It is the blunders of the blunders that do blunder. It is so much to bring it into embarrassment and reproach. The traffic is now on trial for its life in this state. It is the moment when the men in the business should be guided by wise counsel and sane endeavor.

But there is an apparently organized movement among the saloons to interfere in personal politics and attempt control of the offices. Instead of confining themselves strictly to their fight against prohibition, most of the saloons of the state are lined up solidly behind Dr. Withycombe in an attempt to dictate government from the Oregon state house.

The charge of the saloonists is that they fear Dr. Smith's plan of law enforcement. Here again is an irremediable blunder. There are saloons that obey the law, and if all were like them, the present strong attempt to abolish saloons altogether would not be nearly so effective.

It is the lawless element in the business that makes the strongest and best arguments for use by the drys. It is the lawless men in the business that make all the trouble for the men who conduct a lawful business, and no greater blunder was ever made by the dealers than is the present united and determined effort to beat Dr. Smith because of his plan of strict enforcement of law.

If the war could only be settled with the same speed the world's baseball championship was decided there would be cause for rejoicing.

Evidently Mr. Booth has never been disposed to share his great prosperity with the loggers and sawmill men who made him rich.

Throughout the whole state the anti-law enforcement crowd is lined up for Withycombe. The law enforcement people should know what to do.

Gilliland was in office 16 years. It was long enough.

IN A MIRTHFUL VEIN

THE VITAL QUESTION.

A Chicago business man with many relatives, some of whom were well-to-do got grasping, recently sought the services of his lawyer to draw up his will. When, after much labor, the document was completed, his client asked:

"Have you fixed this thing, as I wished it, tight and strong?"

"I have done my best," said the lawyer.

"Well," continued the client, "I want to ask you another thing—not professionally, however. As a friend, and man to man, who do you think stands the best chance of getting the property when I am gone?"—Harper's Magazine.

Of London, England, compositors, 12,000, or 80 per cent, are union workmen.

MILITARY TERMS.

For the benefit of those who are at a loss to understand the numerical values of military terms, says a contemporary, it may be pointed out that in most armies the figures are as follows: Infantry—A squad, 8 men, under command of a corporal; section, 16, under command of a sergeant; platoon, 50 to 75, under a lieutenant; company, three platoons, 200 to 250, under a captain; battalion, four or more companies, under a major; regiment, three or more battalions, under a colonel or lieutenant-colonel; brigade, two or three regiments, under a brigadier-general; division, two or more brigades, under a major-general; army corps, two or more brigades, supplemented by cavalry, artillery, engineers, etc., under a major-general or lieutenant-general; Cavalry—Section, 8, under a corporal; platoon, 25 to 50, under a lieutenant or junior-captain; troop, three to four platoons, 125 to 150 men, under a senior-captain or a major; regiment, four to six squadrons, under a colonel; brigade, three regiments, under a brigadier-general; division, two or three brigades, under a major-general; These figures may help when the dispatches refer only to army names and not numbers of men, as is so often the case.

HANDING THE BOSS ONE.

In a certain machine shop in Chicago an apprentice was one day swinging his hammer somewhat languidly when along came the boss. An angry expression overspread his countenance as he observed the performance of the lad. He took the hammer from the boy and delivered himself of the following:

"When I see a man that takes his hammer by the end of the handle, like this, and strikes fine, hard blows—like that—I pay that man anywhere from $15 a week up. But when a man takes his hammer by the middle, like this, and strikes gentle taps—like this—like this, he gets only $9 a week; and he's the first to be laid off when work's slack." Then, the boss returned the hammer to the apprentice, thinking he had taught him a good lesson; but the shrewd lad came back with:

"Would you mind showing me, sir, where I ought to hold the handle for $12 a week?"

HIS ESTIMATE.

Rastus was an elder in the church, and a truly pious man. He had an eye for beauty and a love for it, but he married Mandy because he knew she would make him a good wife.

"I suppose dat Mandy is a queen," said Rastus' cousin, who met him in Richmond, Va., not long after the marriage, and had never seen the bride. "I know youse got good taste, Rastus."

"Well," said Rastus, cautiously. "She's de Lawd's handiwork, Bill; but I ain't prepared to say dat she's His masterpiece."

J. Carlisle Smith, pictured here, did not play with Boston because of an injury before world's series began. He was sure, however, that the Braves could win without him.

LABOR.

I've builded your ships and your railroads,
I've worked in your factories and mines,
I've buffed the roads that you drive on,
I've crushed the ripe grapes for your wines.

I've worked late at night on your garments,
I've gathered the grain for your bread,
I built the fine house that you live in,
I printed the books you have read.

I've linked two great oceans together,
I've spanned your rivers with steel,
I built your towering skyscrapers,
I've gone out to wrecked ships, in the life boats.

When the storm loudly cried for its prey,
I've guarded your home from marauders,
I have turned the night into day.

Wherever there's progress you'll find me;
Without me the world could not live,
And yet you would seek to destroy me,
With the meager pittance you give.

Today you may grind me in slavery;
You may dictate to me from the throne,
But tomorrow I throw off my fetters
And am ready to claim what I own.

You masters of field and of factory,
I am mighty and you are but few,
No longer I'll bow in submission,
I am Labor and ask for my due.
—Budd McKillips, in The Timber Worker.

SEE IF THE CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED

IF CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED, GIVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS."

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.
