WITHYCOMBE STILL URGES ASSEMBLYISM

CANDIDATE ALSO REITERATES VIEWS ON CHINESE LABOR —"ADVISORS" BECOME MAD.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 20.—There is trouble among the Withycombe "advisers." The doctor has been declaring for the assembly again. He did it at Klamath Falls and at Ashland.

It seems that on his recent two weeks' trip through the southern Oregon counties Dr. Withycombe broke away temporarily from his managers, violating specific instructions to speak on nothing but "A Greater Oregon," and the result is fireworks and cuss words among the men who are running the doctor and his campaign.

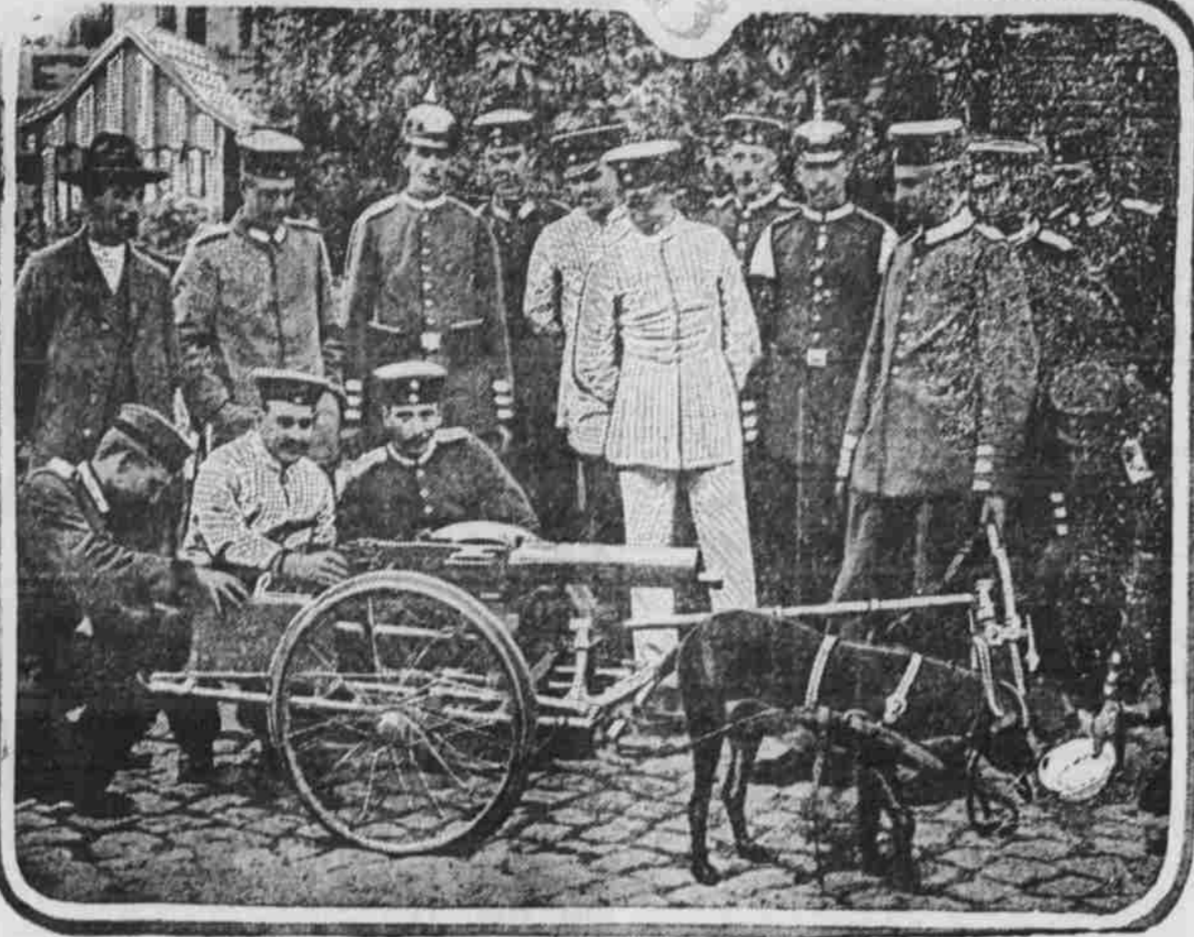

The trouble began with the arrival of newspapers from the southern counties with reports of the doctor's speeches, of which four or five were made. They thought the information that Dr. Withycombe had returned to the discussion of the assembly and his predilections in favor of it, and he also renewed that part of his Oregon City speech, which declared that a mistake had been made in driving the Chinese out, and that he "believed what he had said about it being a mistake that Oregon people had listened to San Francisco agitators and driven the Chinese from their work in clearing the land in Clackamas county."

Assembly Plan Favored. As reported by a Medford paper, Dr. Withycombe said at Ashland: "I am being falsely charged with being opposed to the primary system because I had the temerity to say that I was in favor of a convention to help party organization."

This straight-out declaration for assemblyism was preceded by a stronger declaration of the kind at Klamath Falls, where, according to the Northwestern, Dr. Withycombe said:

"It has been charged that I am opposed to the direct primary. I am not opposed to the direct primary, but I do believe it should be supplemented by something whereby political parties should not be destroyed. Political parties have built up this great country. I believe in the direct primary in a modified form."

Injuring on Assembly Surprises. Many people marvel at Dr. Withycombe's insistence on assemblyism in the very heat of the campaign. Those on the inside are less surprised, because they know that S. B. Huston, the well known corporation lawyer, is one of Dr. Withycombe's chief advisers. It was Mr. Huston who insisted that the assembly is necessary to make the direct primary "workable" on the ground that the people, in order to select proper candidates, have to be advised. Mr. Huston at a political banquet in Portland Friday night acted as the personal representative of Dr. Withycombe and made a speech strongly eulogizing Dr. Withycombe.

WHEAT ADVANCE FORCED

Chicago Market Closes 2@2.74c Up —Pacific Coast Reports Sales of Oats.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Wheat closed 2@2.1-4c higher. It was a bull market in wheat, both early and late, yesterday. It was a strong opening with higher Liverpool cable and bullish report on scarcity of winter and spring, and the cargoes 6 to 9d higher per quarter. Northwest markets were very strong in the face of large receipts and increasing stocks. Export houses were buying December at Duluth. The visible is 3,000,000 bushels, an increase less than expected. Top prices were made after the report was posted.

There was no great activity in the corn trade, but the December price had a recovery from 67 5/8c to 68 1/8c. Sample market 1-4 to 1c higher. Over 300,000 bushels increase in small local stocks and a decrease of 672,000,000 bushels in the visible. Trade was influenced by the action in wheat.

Oats—Market was higher. Pacific coast report claims 3000 tons of Oregon oats sold to Europe. Local export houses confirm sales of 100,000 bushels to Italy today.

Library News

Several of the following books, which today are placed in circulation, are on subjects to be studied in the women's clubs this winter.

New Books. Dresser—A message to the well. "The author, like most who are now writing on this general subject, is not a doctor. Most of the book is excellent. We have read nowhere else so good an historical sketch of the movement which it represents, and of kindred movements, while the messages to the well and to the sick, to the clergyman, to the student, and to all, cannot be read without profit."

Hillquit—Socialism in theory and practice. "Favorable discussion of the theory underlying socialism, its relation to individualism, ethics, law, the state and politics, and of the temporary measures advocated by socialists to alleviate present conditions. Shows clearly both the strength and weakness of American socialism." Jordan—Leading American men of science. "Brief sympathetic biographies and critical estimates of the work of seventeen leading American scientists who are no longer living, each one written by a man in some degree known as a disciple. The volume constitutes a part of the scientific record of the republic for one hundred years."

Munsterberg—Psychology and social sanity. "Ten essays on sex education, socialism, thought transference, juries, efficiency on the farm, advertising, society and the dance, and several topics. Displays much sane common sense but more, the evident uncommon sense of the inspired, trained specialist. A book for anyone to read and take to heart." Reeder—How two hundred children live and learn. "In his brief introduction the author calls attention to the fact that though modern science has invaded almost every other realm of human interest, it has overlooked that of rearing and training children; and that a child's dietary, sleep, play, discipline and household regime is uncertain and haphazard. While the book is primarily the story of the work done by the superintendent of an orphanage, it is a record of the best scientific methods of educating children."

Wilson—The new freedom. "The salient passages of President Wilson's campaign speeches, compiled without alteration from stenographic reports and arranged in orderly sequence, forming a vigorous and brilliantly lucid exposition of his political philosophy. His main theme is the great political and economic changes which have come about through modern industrial conditions, especially through the development of large corporations and the need of divorcing big business from politics. He favors publicity and the referendum." Woodruff—City government by commission. "A series of papers interspersed with essays by the editor, dealing with the subject of city government by commission. This volume contains the latest available data. It aims to present the strongest arguments for and against a system which has been more widely discussed in a shorter time than any previous plan for the improvement of municipal administration. It seeks to give the facts from official reports, so that the impartial and thoughtful student may inform himself about a phase of municipal life which is attracting an increasing amount of attention."

Worcester—Religion and life. "A great deal in this book will appeal to every thinking man and woman. Some of it will be denied by one and another. But that it is a sincere, even a valuable, contribution to modern religious thought, or that it will be of interest to many people who do not consider themselves religious no one will deny. Books of this kind are needed, and few are likely to lay it down without feeling that the writer is a man with whose mind it is a privilege to come into contact."

Caffin—Art for life's sake. Floody—Scientific basis of Sabbath and Sunday. Foster—The social emergency. Hutchinson—Instinct and health. Lodge—Substance and health. Lodge—Substance of faith. Mather—History of painting from the fourth to the early nineteenth century. Royce—Race questions and other American problems.
