FROM "LOCKSLEY" HALL.
 For I dip into the future, far as human eye can see,
 Saw the vision of the world, and all the wonder that would be;
 Saw the heavens fill with commerce, argosies of magic sails,
 Pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales;
 Heard the heavens fill with shouting, and there rain'd a ghastly dew
 For the nations' airy navies grappling in the central blue;
 Far along the world-wide whisper of the south wind rushing warm,
 With the standards of the people plunging through the thunder storm;
 Till the war drum throbb'd no longer and the battleflags are fur'd
 In the Parliament of Man, the Federation of the World.
 —Alfred Tennyson.

Before many months roll by water will be available for the land under the West Umatilla Give The Settler project and it is a fair inference that colonization of that land will be undertaken. Therefore the East Oregonian will once more urge that the land be sold at low prices and upon considerate terms to actual settlers only. Irrigation in the past has been conducted too much for the land owner, the promoter and speculator and not enough for the real settler. Almost every private irrigation enterprise in the state has been a failure for this reason and tragic bunders have been made even on government projects. The settler who reclaims the desert and makes it produce has a big task on his hands. He has a task requiring hard work, patience and some capital. If he cannot secure his raw land at a low price he tries a difficult game indeed. It is a game in which he has all to lose and nothing to gain. Intending settlers upon the West Umatilla project and upon all other projects in the future should get their land at low prices or they should not take it at all.

Turkey explains that a shot was fired across the bow of the Tennessee's launch to keep Imbecille the launch from entering Nagging, a harbor that was mined. In other words if the launch had proceeded on its course it might have been blown up by striking a mine. Under those conditions the drastic warning given by the Turks seems more friendly than otherwise, unusual though it may have been.

Yet to listen to the jingo papers, among them the Oregonian, the incident amounted to a monumental insult to Uncle Sam. Those papers think we should be making feverish preparations for war, as though we were a belligerent. The action of the administration in treating the matter lightly is derided as weak and unpatriotic.

If any heed were given such imbecille utterances this country would soon be head over heels in the war. As with individuals the nation that is constantly rolling up its sleeves and looking for a fight will find one. But if this country goes about its business refraining from making mountains out of mole hills there is every reason to expect peace. Fortunately we have a president who gives no heed to slyster journalism and refuses to have a spam every time some military man thinks he sees blood on the moon. If the people wish to support him in that manifestly sane policy one way to do it is to shun those newspapers that are constantly nagging the administration at a time when cooperation should be given.

There has been considerable comment about the religious aspect of the war. Each nation has No Longer striven to impress its Sinners, soldiers with the fact they are fighting for God. Judging from the following story there is now a reaction against that line of teaching:
 "In the monastery of Klosterneuburg, near Vienna, there are many wounded soldiers. The clergymen and the populace, which is very pious, during the first days of the war, engaged in a lively rivalry to make the soldiers happy by giving them Bibles, pictures of saints, rosaries and other religious tokens.
 "One day, when a strong delegation of pious citizens arrived with a load of religious gifts, the head of the monastery greeted them with these words:
 "A soldier who fights for his Fatherland is no longer a sinner! You had better bring these wounded braves some playing cards and tobacco!"

In setting itself up as an interpreter of the Constitution of the United States, the National Suffrage a American Woman Suffrage Association has ventured upon ticklish ground. It may be easy for the Suffragists in their zeal to read into the Fourteenth Amendment any meaning they desire but it is quite another thing to convince congress that their view is the only sound one and that it must yield to their instructions on constitutional grounds. A federal statute is a simpler device than an amendment to the Constitution of the United States for the enfranchisement of all women, but it presents practical difficulties.
 A woman suffrage bill in congress would solidify all the opposition from all parts of the country, and in the present state of opinion in the east and south be certain to fail. Even in the unlikely contingency that it should pass, congress would only have enacted interminable litigation on the constitutional questions involved. For the suffragists at this time to concentrate their efforts in this direction would seem futile.
 The old way is the best way, and with the results attained by it they have no cause to be dissatisfied. With the conquest of Nevada and Montana on Nov. 3, they now hold as suffrage territory all the country from Colorado to the Pacific, including Alaska, and have occupied Kansas and Illinois, conditionally, as footholds further east. By carrying one state at a time they are assured of certain progress. The more they stake on a decisive campaign for suffrage on the battleground at Washington the more they stand to lose. Woman suffrage is still a local issue for each state to decide for itself according to its own needs and desires.—New York World.

Every 10 days the war in Europe costs as much as was required to build the Panama canal; at that basis 11 Panama canals could have been built by this time and this estimate takes no account of the value of the lives and property lost.
 This clear frosty weather is more typical of eastern Oregon; the fog that prevailed last week was shipped in here from the Willamette valley.

IN MIRTHFUL VEIN
UNDESIRABLE ACQUAINTANCE.
 A Baltimore woman went to get a check cashed at a bank where she was entirely unknown.
 "It will," said the polite teller, "be impossible for me to give you the money unless you can identify yourself in some way."
 "But I am Mrs. Jones," said the woman, with the air of an empress.
 "Certainly, madam," replied the teller, "but all the same it will be necessary for some one whom we know to gie an introduction to us."
 The haughty one drew herself up and regarded him scornfully.
 "But," she said, "I do not wish to know you."

THE AWFUL SMALL BOY AGAIN.
 The young minister preached one Sunday to a rural congregation and spent the next day visiting the people. At one house the man of the house was expressing his appreciation of the sermon in complimentary terms while assisting the minister to put up his team. His little son had followed him, and after eyeing the minister a minute or two, exclaimed: "Why, papa, you said he was one-hoss preacher, and he's got two hosses!"

OREGON UNIVERSITY AND AGGIES IN TIE

TWO HOURS OF GRUPELLING BATTLE RESULT IN SCORE OF 3 TO 3.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Ore., Nov. 23.—Two hours of gruelling battle between the University of Oregon and the Oregon Agricultural College ended in a 3-to-3 tie score Saturday—just such a tie score as the memorable 10-to-10 encounter last fall at Albany. Honors appeared about even but a tie was greeted by the varsity as a victory, because Oregon figured as slight short-ender.
 As indicated by the score, place-kicks settled the outcome. As late as the fourth quarter it looked as if that elusive bird of victory were to perch this year upon the Argie standards. After the rival teams had fought each other to a standstill, Art Lutz booted a placement between the varsity posts in the third period, and at that stage of the game this three-point lead looked as big as the Matterhorn along side Mount Tabor.

Oregon Is Handicapped.
 Oregon began with only two veterans in the backfield and its offense was not having much success in advancing the ball against the husky Orange and Black forwards.
 Suddenly Quarterback Sharp of Oregon, launched a play that engraved two names on the roll of honor in the respective colleges, West and Lutz. Neither team had attempted any passing in the first half, but in the fourth quarter, with the score 3-0 against him, Sharp opened wide the throttle for an aerial attack. With 10 minutes left to play, he called for a forward pass to West, left end. The ball was shot back to Sharp, and 20 yards over the heads of the tigerish Aggie linemen whirled the leather into the outstretched arms of West. There was nobody near him and for 20 yards he tore toward the Argie goal, when a desperate tackle by Lutz brought him to earth on the 30-yard line.

Huntington of The Dalles, a youngster just breaking into big-league ball, booted the ball over the crossbars on the tying score. His kick was made on the fourth down from the 32-yard line. Both teams had other opportunities to score by field goals, but other attempts failed.
 The boot work by Lutz and Beckett was a revelation. These two sterling kickers uncovered punt after punt which soared for distances ranging between 45 and 50 yards. Particularly was this true in the first half. Each pulled one bobble on wobbly kicks that netted only 30 yards, but outside of these two slips, their punting was superb. The average was around the 44-yard mark and the odds with Lutz.
 Although Lutz and Parsons played their usual brilliant game, it was decidedly not a day for stars. Rival coaches had builded their defenses so as to guard against the headliners.

Beckett's Defensive Work Great.
 Beckett displayed wonderful defensive ability and we believe we would award the individual honors to the Washington high tackle were any poll to be taken.
 Football conditions were ideal. It was the biggest day the little city of Corvallis had enjoyed in many years. From early morn the town was jammed to overflowing with Oregon and Aggie partisans. At dawn the automobilists began streaming into the city from all points of the compass and the crowds coming by special train helped the restaurants and barber shops to do a thriving business.
 And such a day—bright, sunny and crisp. It seemed that all the horticulturists in the valley had shipped their chrysanthemums into Corvallis. There were thousands of Oregon "mums" for the Argies and just as many yellow "mums" for the varsity.

$3000 FIRE LOSS IN ELLENSBURG SAWMILL
 ELLENSBURG, Wash., Nov. 21.—Fire partially destroyed the mill of the Ellensburg Lumber company with a loss of $3000. The lumber yard, the drying plant, the office and part of the mill were saved. The mill had not been running for a month. It is believed that tramps made a fire in the engine-room to keep warm and that it got beyond their control.

HUNTING SEASON IN EVERGLADES STARTS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 20.—The "bang bang" of guns and baying of hounds were heard throughout the everglades and other haunts of the simrod today, when the "open season" for hunting began. Hundreds of tourists are here to join in the sport, which lasts only three months. Licenses are required from all sportsmen. Sale or shipment of game is prohibited by state law.

Best Cough Medicine for Children
 "Three years ago when I was living in Pittsburgh one of my children had a hard cold and coughed dreadfully. Upon the advice of a druggist I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it benefited him at once. I find it the best cough medicine to take. They do not object to taking it," writes Mrs. Lafayette Tuck, Homer City, Pa. This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as an adult. Sold by all dealers.—Adv.

ITALY TO DECIDE ITS ATTITUDE ON THE WAR

LONDON, Nov. 21.—A conference shortly will be held at Rome to decide Italy's attitude toward the war. It was learned on reliable authority, Ambassador Marchei, the Italian diplomatic representative in London, left for home today to attend the meeting. Messages from Paris and Petrograd, said the Rome government's ambassadors at both capitals have been summoned home.

LOCAL DRUGGIST MAKES MANY FRIENDS
 Tallman & Co., reports they are making many friends through the QUICK benefit which Pendleton people receive from the simple mixture of buckhorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-I-ka. This remedy became famous by curing appendicitis and it is the most thorough bowel cleanser known, acting on BOTH the lower and upper bowel. JUST ONE DOSE of Adler-I-ka relieves constipation and gas on the stomach almost IMMEDIATELY.

Albany, went to Canada a few years ago and, in order to take a homestead look out citizenship papers in the British province. Recently he wished to return to Albany for a visit, and made the trip from Watson, Saskatchewan, to Kingsgate, where he was informed that he would not be permitted to leave the country, as he was a British subject and liable to be drafted for military service. He turned back to his homestead.
