WOOLGROWERS MEET HERE TOMORROW AND FRIDAY

SECRETARY HOKE ARRIVES TODAY TO PLAN FOR COMING SESSIONS.

Secretary J. G. Hoke, of the Oregon Woolgrowers Association, arrived here today from his Baker county home and he is one of the advance guard of woolgrowers to be here tomorrow and Friday for the annual meeting of their association. The meetings are to be held in the rooms of the Commercial Association and an interesting program has been prepared.

R. N. Stanfield is president of the state association and he will arrive this evening to attend the meeting. According to Secretary Hoke it is impossible to tell how many growers will be in attendance, but a good delegation is expected particularly from Umatilla and Morrow counties.

The Southern Pacific Co. is reported to have bought the line down the coast to Eureka.

FRENCH 'YELLOW BOOK' BLAMES THE TEUTONS

PARIS, Dec. 2.—The French foreign office gave out a "Yellow Book" which recites the French viewpoint of events which led up to the present war. This book reviews at length the diplomatic exchanges before the declaration of war. An abstract given out by the foreign office lays emphasis upon the responsibilities of Austria as a primal cause of the conflict, and says that Germany persistently avoided every opportunity to adopt measures of conciliation and reach a settlement.

In its presentation of the case the French foreign office places the responsibility fully upon Austria and Germany and relates that Great Britain, Russia and France were ready to adopt means of settlement, but that the Teutonic allies would not consent. Germany's ultimatum to Russia is said to have precipitated the rupture. France, according to the book, exhausted every possible avenue of conciliation before she decided to draw the sword to defend her very life.

PROBE INTO COLORADO STRIKE IS BEGUN

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 2.—An investigation by the federal industrial relations commission into the causes of the Colorado coal miners strike was started in the chamber of the state senate today.

Governor Ammons was the first witness. He recited the early history of the strike and said he didn't call out the militia until the demand of southern Colorado citizens almost was unanimous. He said that from the time the state troops occupied the strike zone until the Ludlow battle, only two were killed.

Hill Gives $50,000 to College.

CHARLES PETERSON SHOOTS AND KILLS STRANGER

of it at the time, he said, but as the man came to the house and asked for a drink he asked him if anything was the matter. The man stated that he had got the harness on wrong. At the time Mrs. Peterson was milking some cows a short distance from where the man had stopped the team.

When the man had put away the team he came to the house and entered the kitchen. Mr. Peterson states, and Mrs. Peterson was at the time engaged in mopping the floor. "Did you tell him what I was doing 'cut there' the man demanded of her. Mrs. Peterson answered that she hadn't noticed what he was doing. "Well, it's none of your damned business what I was doing," he retorted and it was these words that Mr. Peterson, sitting in an adjoining room, heard.

He stepped to the kitchen door and asked what the trouble was. The man, he says, thereupon turned upon him and began cursing him. Mr. Peterson ordered him to leave the house but the man, instead of going, reached into his pocket and advanced toward Mr. Peterson. The latter caught the flash of a knife and immediately drew out a .32 caliber revolver which he says had been in his pocket since Thanksgiving day when he had been shooting magpies. As he drew the gun he again ordered the man to leave but the other kept advancing, whereupon Mr. Peterson, without further hesitation, opened fire. He thinks he shot four times but declares the bullets seemingly had no effect upon the man. He kept advancing and having emptied his gun, Mr. Peterson retreated into the other room to reload. As he did so he heard the man go out the door and soon afterwards heard him fall to the floor of the porch. Having determined that he was dead, he escorted his wife to the Madison place and sent Mr. Madison to Pendleton.

When the sheriff and coroner reached the Peterson place they found that the man had fallen against one of the porch posts and that his head was leaning against it. The fall had bruised and cut one ear and the side of his face. Undertaker Haws Judd went out after the body and brought it in to the morgue where photos were taken of it this morning.

Hardly anything is known of the man. Mr. Peterson states that he had mentioned his name once but he has forgotten it. He also states that the man told him that he was born near Richmond, Virginia, that he had served two years in the army and that he had drifted about all over the United States. He was a tall man of probably 35 or 40 years, light complexioned with a small moustache. He wore patched khaki trousers and a corduroy coat. Nothing was found in his effects to indicate his name or home.

What the man had been doing in the field that he did not want his employer to know is a mystery to Mr. Peterson, and his motive for starting a quarrel and drawing a knife is likewise unknown. He thinks the man may have had a mania to kill for he states that his face was distorted with violent passion when he drew the knife and advanced upon him. The knife was a large pocket knife with a spring blade.

Will M. Peterson states that, he spent Thanksgiving at his brother's ranch and was not at all impressed with the face of the man, and cautioned his brother at that time, telling him that the man had an evil face.

Charles Peterson is a young man, being only 23 years old, and has been living on his brother's ranch at Cayuse for the past three years. Only last February he went to Tennessee and took as his bride a young lady with whom he had been raised from childhood.
