Newsy Notes of Pendleton

Building Addition to Home.
O. S. Young has taken out a permit to build an addition to his dwelling house on Aura street.

Will Visit in Old Home.
O. F. Steele, well known Nolla resident, came in this morning on the motor car and will leave on No. 18 for Cape Girardeau county, Missouri, his old home, for a visit. He has not been there for 22 years.

Tent Woman Arrested.
Chief of Police Kearney and Officer Manning this morning arrested Irene Young, a woman who has been occupying a tent in the east end of the city and who according to the police, has conducted in it a brothel of vice. She has been in the city jail before.

In Remodeled Building.
G. W. Hooker, who has been running a florist shop in half of the room formerly occupied by P. O. Elliott's restaurant, is moving two doors south into one of the rooms made from the old Grand theater. Mr. Hooker is also agent for the Oregon Journal.

Pendleton Gets Light Snow.
Snow of the light and dusty variety has been falling in Pendleton nearly all day. It began before breakfast this morning and has continued almost without interruption. However, it is so light that at present time the ground was hardly more than covered.

Hermiston Promises 1500 Rabbits.
That the Hermiston sportsmen will supply 1500 rabbits for the shipment to be sent to the Portland poor is the statement of J. D. Watson, bookkeeper for the Western Land & Irrigation Co., in a letter to E. E. Cleaver who is directing the Pendleton end of the big Sunday shoot. Mr. Watson states that he and Herbert Strohm will leave between 30 and 40 men on the west side of the project Sunday morning and are confident they will bag 1500 rabbits.

Bud Anderson May Fight Here.
A New Years battle between Bud Anderson, the Vancouver-Medford lightweight, and Sammy Goode may be a sport card offered to Pendleton fans to open 1915. Dan Downey has entered into negotiations with the scrappers with favorable results. Anderson is now in Wallace, Idaho, where he is to meet Frank Barriera on Christmas day in a 20 round go. Goode is a Portland boy who has shown considerable class as a battler.

Big Epidemic of Mumps.
That the epidemic of the mumps which caused the closing of the University of Oregon this week until after the holidays, had assumed serious proportions is the statement of Bertrand S. Jerard, who is home to spend the Christmas vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Jerard. The epidemic was spreading rapidly and the disease was in a severe form. Young Jerard lives in the Beta Theta Pi fraternity house, the first closed on account of the disease, and states that seven of the young men in that house developed mumps within four days.

No Rock Crusher Work.
Owing to the fact the city rock crusher is in a delapidated state and cannot be made ready for use except at heavy expense it is announced the plan of running the rock crusher has been abandoned. However there will soon be some city and county work here in the building of a little concrete bridge at the west end of Webb street. The iron for this bridge will be here within a few days and the work will be taken up as quickly as possible, says Mayor Dyer. The work will be done by force account and not by contract. If arrangements for right of way can be perfected it is said the county will shortly undertake the building of a cutoff at the end of East Court street, connecting with the paved end of the street. A new bridge is also contemplated across the Umatilla river there. All that work will be by the county and will provide cheer-ful. Others in the cast are Jane Riley, political boss (George Baer) her charming son (Ray Crystal) who is preparing for his wedding and had selected George Darveau as the dimpled bridesmaid; and Clarence Bean, stenographer. All the parts are exceptionally good and the farce is a high flying success.

MINSTRELS BANISH DULL CARE

"The death of the Gladiator" is a serio-comic scene that may well send Sullivan and Considine scouting. Clive Cheshire is the Roman senator. Lou Steelhammer, "Archibald" the gladiator, and Don Saunders, "Penny Ante," the fair daughter. The gladiator is "half shot" by the enraged parent and the combat is something worth seeing.

The closing scene of the performance presents old plantation melodies with several good numbers. Among them the "Teasing Moon," sung by R. E. Chloupek and chorus; a quartet composed of Messrs. Baer, Chloupek, Dickson and Scott which made a hit with the new version of Tipperary, "It's a Long Way to California" and the Darktown wedding as finale. Lou Johnson is the bride, Roy Buchanan the groom and Lee Drake the person who tells the "contestants" to join hands.

The minstrel chorus is composed of Glenn Storie, Brooke Dickson, Cecil Cole, C. O. Rinehart, Hal Corby, Dick Mayberry, Walter Rose, L. G. Frazier, Chas. Viner, Alfred Fitz Gerald, Glenn Finch, Clarence Bean, George Phelps, Walter Freeman, Frank Hayes, Harold Brock, Volney Bybee, Nat Kimball, Roy Wisler and Garland Gray.

The orchestra is also worthy of praise and the following is the personnel: Wm. Goedecke, Trev. Sharp, Bert McDonald, H. M. Warren, Robert Barney, Charles Kelly, Wesley Whipple, Hal Bishop, Arthur Cody and Mrs. W. D. Humphrey, accompanist.

The committee having general charge of the Elks Minstrel is composed of Jack Gibson, Roy Buchanan, James Estes, Frank Downey and Jack Watson. Wade Privett served as electrical manager.

Olive Sherwood, a pretty girl, living in a mid-west city grows tired of the quiet life and longs for the gayeties of fashionable New York society with its snery. At length she is able to go and is introduced into the glided circle where she is petted and happy. After a while envy and jealousy of her artificial world overshadow the joys. Evil influences of which she is unaware threaten her. Through a crucial episode she barely escapes tragedy. It is a true story in many respects of the life it depicts.

House Peters has an unusually good charm and displays finished acting.

Among the cast supporting her are Harold Lockwood and Jack Pickford.
