GLEE CLUB IS HIGHLY PRAISED FOR PROGRAM RENDERED THIS YEAR

OREGON UNIVERSITY BOYS HAVE STUNTS AND SONGS THAT WILL PLEASE ALL.

Concert Will be Given Here Tomorrow Night at the Oregon Theater—Other Cities Where Boys Have Been Have Nothing but Praise for the Excellence of Their Show.

Regarding the Oregon University Glee club which will give its program here tomorrow evening at the Oregon Theater, the Portland Oregonian says of the entertainment which was given recently in Portland:

Rousing, amusing vaudeville and good singing marks the excellent program of the University of Oregon Glee Club.

The "boys" appeared in concert last night at the Helix on their 17th annual concert tour, and their uniformly good work was received with warm applause. Some of the "stunts" were so original and laughter-provoking that they are worthy of a place in regular vaudeville. The entire bill is easily one of the best of the entire series, and says much for the hard work and talent shown by the director, Ralph H. Lyman.

The Eugene Register comments as follows:

A large audience filled the Eugene theater last night to witness the debut of the Oregon Glee club in Eugene. The program was highly successful and well planned.

The club is wonderfully well balanced. The stunts and skits were especially snappy and pleasing. The solos by Albert Gillette and the work of the quartette call for special mention and are certain of being received well wherever they appear.

The club will take its usual trip through Eastern Oregon during the Christmas holidays though the itinerary has been cut down this year.

The present week will be one of the gayest of the social season in Pendleton. Several large events and many smaller ones are on the calendar.

The festivities commence this evening with the annual ball of the Lambda Sigma fraternity in the Eagle-Woodman hall, always one of the prettiest affairs of the year, and will reach their climax on New Year's night with the Library Ball, the event which always ushers in the new year.

In between these two events there will be the University of Oregon Glee Club concert tomorrow evening, in the Oregon Theater and the watch parties of New Year's eve. The Hotel Pendleton promises to be the center of the social life that will mark the death of 1914 and the birth of 1915.

Elaborate plans have been made for entertaining the guests with music, dancing in the lobby and refreshments, light or solid, in the dining room.

News has been received here of the wedding in Portland on Christmas of Miss Mabelle Cameron and G. A. Marshall. The bride formerly lived in Pendleton and was very popular in younger society circles here.

For the past few years she has made her home in Portland. She is a sister of Mrs. R. W. Fletcher of this city.

Another sister, Miss Josephine Cameron of Heppner, went down to attend the wedding.

Mrs. Roy Alexander has returned from Walla Walla where she was a holiday guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Abbott. Miss Bertha Anger and Miss M. Criger of Walla Walla were Sunday guests of Mrs. Alexander.

Miss Bertie Hicks of Portland, is spending the holidays with her mother, Mrs. H. A. Hicks.

Elmer Storie will come down this evening from Walla Walla to attend the Lambda Sigma dance. Mrs. Storie has been here since Christmas as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Mable.

Miss Marie Rust, who is attending St. Paul's school in Walla Walla, is spending the holidays in Pendleton.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Snyder and daughter, Miss Marie Snyder, returned last month from a three months' trip through the middle west. They visited in Chicago, in Nebraska cities and other points of the middle-western states.

Miss Gladys Lane is spending the holidays in Echo as the guest of Miss Edna Thompson.

Mrs. Guy Jones returned Saturday to her home at Athena after spending Christmas here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Scrivner. Her children, Master Wayne Jones and little Regina are still here visiting with their grandparents.

Miss Clephane Gullford visited last week with friends at Pilot Rock.

William Ryals Passes.
ALBANY, Ore., Dec. 28.—William Ryals, pioneer of 1853 and for five decades one of the best known residents of this section of the state, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. B. J. Hecker, in this city, aged 83.

Born in Schuyler county, Mo., February 11, 1831, he crossed the plains to Oregon in 1853 and located in Benton county four miles north of Albany. There he lived continuously for 43 years. Twelve years ago he moved to Albany.

Mr. Ryals was married in 1851 and of the nine children born to him and his wife, six survive: Mary Lamar, of Albany; Dora Jackson of Corvallis; Frank Ryals of North Albany; Flo Ryals of Portland; Mrs. H. A. Hecker, of Albany, and Mrs. B. J. Hecker of Albany.

Stories From the War Zone

LONDON, No. 16.—(By Mail to New York.)—If the British royal family ever have to work for their living, Princess Mary will have no difficulty in getting a job as stenographer or secretary. During the present crisis she has made herself invaluable to her father, and has been acting as a sort of extra special private secretary to the King. She is a capable shorthand writer and typist and the king has been glad of an assistant whom he can trust with family secrets and weighty affairs of state. She shows no signs of feeling the strain of carrying stupendous state secrets.

PETROGRAD. —
A Russian sister of mercy, named Yevheneya Gorkeanah, has been decorated with the band of St. George and a medal in recognition of her remarkable bravery and devotion in moving, singlehanded a field hospital under fire.

Miss Gorkeanah was working in a Russian hospital in the neighborhood of Soldau, East Prussia. When the Germans attacked the Russian position she remained all alone in the hospital attending to the wounds of officers and privates. The hospital was quickly in the zone of the enemy's fire, and the brave nurse seeing that her patients must be moved, went outside and procured a number of horses, harnessed them, found several vehicles and drove them away to a place of safety. The hardships and dangers which Nurse Gorkeanah experienced have greatly affected her health, and she has come to Petrograd with a view of taking a short vacation, before returning to the front. The minister of war personally presented the medal and decoration, and thanked her for her heroic service.

CAPE TOWN. (By Mail to New York.)—All South Africa is singing with praise of the bravery of a young woman at Wingurg, Orange River Colony. When the town was occupied by the Boer rebel general DeWet and his followers, some of the men hauled down the Union Jack from the court house and trampled it in the dust. The young woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Pionner, rushed out into the street and forcing her way through the group of rebels snatched up the flag and bound it around her waist like a sash. The men demanded to know what she intended to do with the flag. "For the present I carry it with me," she said, "and you dare not touch me. When decent people return we will hoist it again." The rebels abused her, verbally, but did not touch either her or the flag, which was promptly hoisted again when General Botha recaptured the town.

VIENNA. (By Mail to New York.)—In order to provide her son with winter underclothing, the 54-year-old mother of a young volunteer serving with the Austrian army tramped in the rain for three days from her home at Szegedin, Hungary, to field headquarters.

LONDON. (By Mail to New York.)—Two weeks ago Miss Dorothy Thompson, a wealthy young woman of Blyth, offered to give 1500 to the war relief fund if an additional 100 of the unmarried young men of her town would enlist in Kitchener's new army. The desired number of recruits was obtained in 10 days and today the Prince of Wales received Miss Thompson's check for the promised amount.

LONDON. (By Mail to New York.)—A poor woman who had just arrived at the Belgian relief headquarters here declined at first to part with her bundle to the official who looks after the fugitives' personal belongings. Reassured, after some difficulty, she finally untied the knotted shawl and displayed two fine cabbages.

She explained that they were all she had in the world, and that she did not want to part with the food until she was sure she could get more. A subsequent visit to the refreshment counter, where the poor woman took a deep interest in the sandwiches and coffee, served to allay her fears regarding the scarcity of food in London.

LONDON. (By Mail to New York.)—The Woman's Theater, of which Lady Forbes Robertson (Gertrude Elliott) is president, has inaugurated a scheme of providing theatrical and variety entertainments for the troops in the various training camps throughout England. Miss Lena Ashwell, England's leading actress-manager, who will have charge of this work, is now selecting the artists who will compose the training camps touring companies. "The men of Lord Kitchener's volunteer army," said Miss Ashwell today, "are, many of them, men who are used to quite the best form of entertainment, so we intend to give them the best programs possible. Our plan, also, will serve to give employment to many really competent artists whom the war has thrown out of employment. Aside from the expense of organization, it is intended to make the scheme self-supporting by charging reasonable admission fees.

Astorian Burns to Death.

ASTORIA, Ore., Dec. 28.—John Grant was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the little cabin in which he lived near the site of the old North Shore cannery on the Washington side of the Columbia. The flames were discovered by neighbors.

It is supposed that Grant set his bed on fire by smoking after he had retired; and that he was smothered by the smoke. Grant was a native of Maine, about 75 years old and had fished on the Columbia river during the past 30 years. He was employed by the Columbia River Packers' association.

Tramps Shun Woodpile.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Dec. 28.—Since Vancouver established a municipal woodpile where all unemployed asking for something to eat and for shelter are compelled to work the number of tramps is reported to have diminished.

Since the woodpile has been in operation the number has been reduced from 100 to 50 or less daily, and most of these are willing to work. The Northern Pacific Railroad company donated to the Wayfarers' Inn, an old trestle, which contains more than 100 cords of wood, to be used in keeping the unemployed busy.

The Laurentide company of Quebec, producers of pulp and pulpwad, is reforesting its non-agricultural cut-over lands. It is also importing reindeer from Newfoundland to see if they can take the place of dogs in winter woods work.

SUBMARINE-AEROPLANE WIRELESS SYSTEM OF SEACOAST DEFENSE

The following plan of seacoast defense is suggested by an engineer of international repute in the January Popular Mechanics Magazine:

"Let the Atlantic and Pacific coast be divided into 10-mile sections, measuring along the main contour and disregarding the minor bays, headlands and inlets. At each 10-mile point let there be erected a wireless tower of a height and capacity sufficient to enable it to communicate a minimum distance of, say, 500 miles. Let this wireless tower, or rather the spot at which it is located, serve as the base and harbor for one submarine and two scouting, bomb-dropping aeroplanes; the aeroplanes and submarines all to be equipped with means of wireless communication. On the towers searchlights might also be mounted, and they could likewise be utilized as lighthouses or landmarks for mariners, as well as stations for the coast patrol and life-saving service."

"With 300 such wireless-submarine-aeroplane coast defense stations in constant communication with each other, no hostile fleet could approach our shore from any direction without being discovered and its exact position noted and reported by aeroplane scouts. Even if they found no opportunity to drop bombs on the advancing warships, they could guide the submarines to the attack. Long before the enemy's smoke were visible, 50 miles out at sea, the submarines from 20 stations would be converging toward the hostile ships. The air would be filled with aeroplanes whose pilots could direct the movement of the submerged craft with unerring accuracy. Before the watchers on shore could get a glimpse of the hulls of the invaders only a rare combination of chances could prevent the entire fleet from being sunk. "Should all or most of the units of the attacking fleet succeed in evading the submarine attack, fields of mines, placed by mine patrols working from each 10 mile base and sown so thickly as to form a continuous cordon along the shore, would serve as a further and final defense. These might be contact mines, or electrically connected to the shore stations. By the time such a scheme of defense could be put into operation, however, there is little doubt that means of controlling and exploding mines and torpedoes by wireless impulses will have been perfected. Indeed, if the results already known to have been achieved in Europe by Torres y Quevedo, and in this country by John Hays Hammond, Jr., in controlling vessels by wireless impulses from a distance, are taken into consideration it is not a wild dream to predict that the submarines involved in this project could be operated without crews, being steered and their torpedoes discharged by the operators in the wireless towers, acting under the direction of the expert officers in the aeroplanes. There is reason to believe that our war department, under whose patronage and direction Mr. Hammond has been working, already possesses the secret of this means of wireless control."

Salmon Pack Is Heavy.

ASTORIA, Dec. 28.—The fall fishing season, both on the Columbia river and the various coast streams, was one of the best in years. About 111,000 cases of canned salmon were packed by the Columbia river canneries and 100,000 cases were put up at the coast plants.

The market for fall salmon is said to be quiet and the pack of silversides is moving slowly. The prevailing prices are $1.15 a dozen for pound cans and from 65 to 75 cents for halves.

SAILORS OF THE BULWARK WHO WENT DOWN WITH BATTLESHIP

This is a group of seamen of the British Battleship Bulwark which was sunk in the Medway, just off the entrance to the Thames. Since then there has been a dispute about the cause of the wreck. The British admiralty insisted that a magazine within the vessel had exploded, but there is strong grounds for belief that a German submarine torpedoed the warship. So complete was the wreck that only one man of the more than 500 on board the vessel was saved. There has been just as much mystery about the sinking of the Audacious north of Ireland. The British admiralty has not yet admitted that the vessel went down, but it is generally believed that she, too, was the victim of the daring commander of a German submarine.
