Stories From the War Zone

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY AT THE FRONT, Nov. 29.—(By Mail to New York.)—At places, here in the Argonne, the French and German trenches are so close together that in the weeks the two armies have been thus face to face the soldiers are after a fashion, acquainted with each other.

Here, the fighting has become systematized and follows a routine. At certain sections of the trenches the French and Germans have reached an agreement that before a certain hour in the morning there is to be no killing; in the opposing trenches the men are to be allowed to wash up and make their toilet for the day. After the gong taps, figuratively speaking, and any head showing above the level of the ground gets promptly taken off.

Rock battles often take place between the opposing sides. The men grow tired of having nothing to shoot at for hours at a time and in order to amuse themselves they bombard each other without the thrower exposing his person to the bullets of the enemy.

The old fashioned hand grenades have come back into style with this close trench fighting, the Germans using them frequently. They steal up to the trenches in the night or through the heavy fog now of almost daily occurrence in this region, and let go into the midst of a crowd of men.

At times the enemies, however, become almost friendly.

"Say, over there," a German shouted from his trench. "Have you guys got anything to smoke?"

"Sure," the chorus came back from the French. "Have you?"

"Not a crumb!"

"Too bad. You ought to write the Kaiser."

"Gimme the makin'."

"Come and get 'em."

A giant of a young fellow stuck his head and shoulders above the ground, placed his hands on the edge of the trench and vaulted out on the side towards the French. A month old flaxen beard stood out about a very round face. Mud covered his formerly grayish-brown, greenish uniform. A little round, vicious, fatigued cap made him look like a young Santa Claus stooping. He ran swiftly across the highway which separated the trenches at this point and, falling flat on his stomach, peered down into the enemy's trench.

"Where's them cigars?" he demanded.

"Here they are," a Frenchman replied. "You deserve them. Six and they're worth a lous apiece."

"Merci," said the German as he scurried back to his burrow.

"Say," this same German shouted between puffs, "these cigars are great. Real imported hemp!"

A rock the size of a man's fist was the reply to this sally.

"Hey, you Frenchers," the German kept on, "you're a pretty decent lot. I'm going to give you a present too. Will you shoot me if I come over again?"

"We will that—after what you said about the cigars."

Once more the lumbering giant captauled out of his trench and ran low over to the French, dropping on his stomach as before. In his hand was an object, a dark green, one, with tin foil around the neck and the words "Gout American" on a slip of paper across the sloping shoulder. It was a bottle of champagne, swiped while the Germans were in Rheims.

"Here's your health, fellows," the German said. "Drink hearty." And back he ran.

"Hey!" the Frenchmen shouted laughing. "You've got the nerve of a burglar! You are giving us back our own champagne!"

"Oh, that's all right," the German replied, "your cigars were made in Germany. I recognized the stench!"

Later in the day the German was killed and the news was shouted across the road. He simply would keep sticking his head above the trench during business hours. But in the night a wreath of wild flowers gathered by the Frenchmen from heaven knows where, and at no one knows what risks, fell into the trench where he was wont to have his place.

All is not cutting and slashing and shooting and gore; the spice of good humor and the milk of human kindness often, in this fighting, lessen the sting of hatred between the races and of which one hears so much.

KING ALBERT REUNITES OFFICER AND HIS BRIDE

GENEVA, Jan. 6.—The Lausanne Gazette tells the story of how a young Parisian woman, recently married to a French artillery officer, won her way to her husband's side at the front in Flanders. She tried first to obtain a pass of the French authorities. Failing in this she traveled in a peasant's cart for several days to the Belgian headquarters. She met with a polite reception and a polite refusal. A tall officer looked upon her from a map he was studying and intervened. "Madame," he said, "a Frenchwoman could not have undertaken such a voyage for nothing." He took up the telephone, and after conversing a moment over the wire, said: "Your husband will be here soon." He ordered that lodgings be found for the young woman who thanked the "tall, kind officer" and warmly shook both his hands.

Two hours later her husband, puzzled at his recall from the trenches, was astonished to find himself in the embrace of his young wife. Both were further surprised to learn that it was the king of Belgium who had arranged the meeting.

The inward effects of humors are worse than the outward. They endanger the whole system. Hood's Sarsaparilla eradicates all humors, cures all their inward and outward effects. It is the great alternative and tonic, whose merit has been everywhere established.—Adv.

United States Has Secret War Plans Stored in Vault

BY BURTON K. STANDISH.
(Written for the United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Stored away in the vaults of the army and navy departments today are secret plans for war. These show just what moves this country would make in event of hostilities against our shores. Every possible plan of approach of an enemy has been considered and it has been evolved by the military strategists a method for meeting such an attack.

Not until the recent agitation over national security was it known that this nation is prepared for war, in the sense of having such carefully laid schemes of defense and offense.

As a charming but simple wedding yesterday afternoon Mrs. Ida Hunziker, of the Fordham apartments, became the bride of Dr. Roy McDaniels, one of the staff of physicians and surgeons of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company, and a well known Portland man. The ceremony was read by Rev. W. R. Powell at Trinity Episcopal Chapel at 2 o'clock.

The bride was attended in a smart traveling suit with a small toque of black velvet and also wore a corsage bouquet of pink rose buds and violets. Mrs. McDaniels is the sister of Charles W. Meyers of the Oregonian staff, and of Mrs. Victor Hunziker, of Walla Walla, who came to attend the ceremony. Dr. and Mrs. McDaniels left for a fortnight's trip to the Puget Sound cities.

Congratulations are being bestowed upon Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Sturdivant today following the birth of a ten pound son to them yesterday evening at St. Anthony's hospital.

Miss Dorothy Green returned yesterday to The Dalles after attending the funeral of her aunt, the late Mrs. Edwin P. Marshall.

Mr. and Mrs. William Nor Dean of Wallace, Idaho, who have been visiting relatives at Weston during the holidays, were here yesterday. Mrs. Nordean was formerly Miss Viva Warren, principal of the Hawthorne school in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Swaggart have returned to their home in Union county after visiting relatives in this city and in Sunnyside, Washington.

Mrs. James Johns, Sr., will entertain the Current Literature Club at her Jackson street home on Friday of this week.
