THE LADY OF THE VALLEY I. The Valley lies still in the beam Of Winter's wild, lingering light. But I know of a glory far-thrilled through its dream— The fairy-like phantoms of flowers that seem The shadows of angels of night. II. For the Valley is dreaming of Spring— Of the starlight that shines from the eyes That out of all season makes mockingbirds sing. While the silver-soft bells of the dim thrushes ring Of morning and violet skies. —Frank L. Stanton.

If the Oregon legislature is opposed to any rational plan to bring about power development Why The Ferris with a view to us— Bill is so bad. ing publicly owned natural resources on such a basis as will give the public at least half way fair treatment then adopt the resolution denouncing the Ferris bill. There is no other reason why the Ferris bill should be opposed. The talk about injustice to the state is miserable bunc that will be exposed by a mere reading of the bill. None of the money from leases is to be retained by the national government, half the income being paid directly to the states where power is developed and the other half to the reclamation fund, which means being put to use in the west. In states where there are public service commissions with power to regulate rates and the issuance of stocks and bonds the control of rates and service will be entirely with the state commissions. Therefore the western states will get the exclusive use of the lease money and will be in position to have sole charge from an administrative standpoint. The only objection to the Ferris bill is by electric interests that want nothing to interfere with their exploitation of the public. Their notion of a proper plan would be one under which they could grab power sites free of cost, then persuade the investing public to put up bond money for development purposes after which juice could be sold to consumers at prices six times too high. This is no exaggeration; it is a true picture of past conditions in the northwest and it is the sort of development we will get in the future if the lawmakers of the state and nation listen to the oily words of electric trust lobbyists and to the pleadings of the tory press. The only trouble with the Ferris bill is that it does not provide for development on such terms that 99 per cent of the benefits could be corralled by private parties not earning them and not entitled to them. The men in the trenches are not bearing the full burden of the war. The women of Europe have to work the fields, run street cars for fuel and do other forms of manual labor. While forced to do such work many of these women are mothering unborn babies. This is a side of the war god's business about which little is said, but it is worth consideration. In an address in Philadelphia recently Mrs. Mary Garlin Spencer, professor of sociology at White Plains, N. Y., said: "The awful, hopeless drudgery of the women in Europe will make the next generation, born on European battlefields, inferior mentally and weak physically. This will happen because women have been put back into the drudgery of primitive, tribal days, from which the enlightened women of today have emerged after centuries of struggle. "In Europe woman again has become only a breeder of food for cannon. Soldiers are encouraged to marry before they leave for the front, with the thought in the minds of the autoocrats that if the men of this generation are killed some means must be devised to supply the men of the next." The women of the world have a right to resent war when it means such things. It is degrading for women as well as men and the cost is greater than the gain can possibly be.

THE HUB

In Oregon the only official hand ever created by law to be stretched out to the working girl, in the Name is the Industrial Welfare Commission. It is the one hand that has been empowered by state authority to give her a better wage, better working conditions and shorter hours. It is a service for the people of any commonwealth to contemplate with the highest pride. There is a sublime thought in the fact that a people have concern and sympathy for toiling women. To turn to such an ideal from the hard lines and grinding purposes of a highly commercialized social order, is a refreshing, reassuring and delightful contemplation. What is the wage, what the life, standard, what the working hours and what the future of young women who struggle for survival amid the maddening crowds and pushing throngs in a great city are issues of gravest concern to human society. Less than two years ago, Oregon provided a commission to do such work. The members served without salary. Earnestly and laboriously, they have delved into the relations between employers and employees. They have devoted great time and patience and intelligence to their work. Father O'Harra, Amidee Smith and Miss Bertha Moores, representing the employe, the employer and the public, respectively, were named for the commission and Governor West was never fortunate in his appointments. Trained by their investigations and skilled in their knowledge of the function and purpose of their work, the members are especially equipped for a continuation of their service. Yet the legislature proposes to abolish them and place their work in the hands of others and under an incongruous arrangement in a misfit combination with some other department. And it is proposed to do this in the name of economy and efficiency!—Oregon Journal. Some of the legislators who are trying to make great splashes about the millions of dollars they want to save the state are the very fellows who pulled off the big treasury raids of the past. They are the disease, not the remedy. If you have anything to build now is the time to build; you can get work done cheaper now than later on when the rush gets started. The shipping trust is a smooth fighter and has strong support from the republicans and a few democratic allies but Woodrow Wilson is likewise a fighting man and he may win out yet with the ship purchase bill. Duel Fought in Bank DEWESE, Neb., Feb. 3.—Peter Hedrick, a young farmer, was killed, and Joseph Peshek, the bank cashier, has a bullet wound in his head and two in his body, the result of a mysterious shooting affray here. Peshek is unable to talk. He is cashier of the State Bank of Dewese. People passing the bank heard several shots in rapid succession. They rushed in to find the one man dead and the other wounded on the floor.

Bills Introduced in Oregon House

The Measures Below Were Introduced in the House at Yesterday's Session.

- SALEM, Ore., Feb. 4.—The following bills were introduced in the house under suspension of the rules: H. B. 452, by ways and means committee, appropriating $65,275 for Oregon state training school. H. B. 453, by Anderson (Wasco), defining qualifications for osteopaths. H. B. 454, by Blanchard, to protect people against "sharp practice." H. B. 455, by Davey, to amend laws relating to mortgages.
- GOVERNOR SIGNS FOUR BILLS. SALEM, Ore., Feb. 3.—Governor Withycombe signed the following bills: H. B. 54, by Allen—Regulating discharge and paroling of patients at state hospital for insane persons. H. B. 106, by Stott—Giving laborers additional claim for wages. H. B. 120, by Smith, of Multnomah—To prohibit advertising within limits of state highways. H. B. 151, by Blanchard—To exempt Mexican and civil war veterans from paying hunting and fishing licenses.
- 3 DEAD MEN ARE DISCOVERED IN A FREIGHT CAR GREWSOME FIND IS MADE AT HUNTINGTON WHEN TRAIN 256 ARRIVES. HUNTINGTON, Feb. 4.—Freight train No. 256 with a refrigerator car bearing three dead men arrived here shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The bodies were not touched but persons viewing the bodies declared that two of the men were named Johnson, being a father and a son from Caldwell, Idaho. The other was in a position with his face downward and beyond the fact that he was roughly dressed, as were the other two, nothing could be told as to who he was. One of the men whose faces could be seen was apparently an old man while the other was apparently in his early thirties. The men were lying in the bunker which, in hot weather, is used for ice. Electric bulletin boards are now used by churches.
