YALE ATHLETE MAKES STRENGTH RECORD

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 11.—With a score of 3,000 points, William Roos of Yale University has bettered his own record of strength by 400 points and holds the championship of the university. Roos, who is a student at Sheffield Scientific school, will be graduated in June. He attributes his wonderful physique to outdoor life, and asserts he never has trained day. In reality, that means he never has relaxed training a day. He followed nature's simple laws of hygiene and health and never finds it necessary to exercise rigorously to get into "form."

BASEBALL TAKES SLAP AT UNION AMONG PLAYERS

RELEASE OF REUBACH HINTS AT DISPLEASURE OVER THE FRATERNITY.

BY HAL SHERIDAN. (Written for the United Press.) NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—In the unconditional release of "Big Ed" Reubach by President Charley Ebbets of the Brooklyn Dodgers many persons interested in baseball politics profess to see a direct slap at the Player's Fraternity. They also profess to sight in Ebbets' action a general policy that is to be adopted by all magnates toward players who become too active in the ranks of the "Union."

Reubach is secretary of the Fraternity and with his former teammate, Jake Daubert, was one of the most active men in Dave Fultz's organization. "Big Ed" will be remembered as one of the committee that presented the players' claims to the National Commission last winter, and he also was one of the leading figures in the threatened strike in the Kraft case last season. He was one of the very first to announce he would walk out. And he had the support of his teammates in the announcement.

In explaining why he had released the veteran, Ebbets said he did so on advice of Manager Robinson, who thought several recruits could do more and better work. He also said that Reubach's last season's record was partly responsible.

While the old Cub star was not a howling success last year he did more work than he has done since 1908. His record shows he worked in forty-four games, winning eleven and dropping eighteen. He allowed 2.64 earned runs a game, which is not an awful bad showing. When one takes into consideration that the Dodgers did not stand very high in the percentage table when the curtain rang down on the season his record doesn't look so rotten—at least not "unconditionally" rotten. Only one Brooklyn pitcher, Jeff Pfeffer, had a better record.

Reubach probably will hook up with a Federal league team this season, as no organized team seems to be exactly pining for his services.

Reubach's passing, if he has passed, marks the further disintegration of the famous old Cub machine of world's championship days.

Reubach was one of the famous old tri. Overall-Brown-Reubach, which was in those days what Rudolph, Tyler and James is now. Overall has just been released by the San Francisco club in the Coast league and it is said that Miner Brown is about to get the gate by the Feds. Frank Chance got his release and has retired to his orange groves, Johnny Kling has gone back to his billiard emporium, Jimmy Sheppard, who last year managed the Cleveland American Association club, has been released; Harry Steinfeldt died last summer and Artie Hoffman is now with the Brooklyn Feds.

Reubach came to the Dodgers in the season of 1913 when Johnny Evers, then manager of the Cubs, traded him for pitcher Eddie Stack. In 1906-7-8 "Big Ed" was one of the best hurlers in the business. With Overall and Brown he pitched the Cubs to several pennants and world's championships.

His best year was in 1905 when he worked in 34 games, winning 19 and dropping 4. His complete record since joining the Cubs in 1905 follows:

Club	Yr.	G.	W.	L.	Pct.
Chicago	1905	34	19	4	.552
Chicago	1906	34	19	4	.528
Chicago	1907	27	17	4	.810
Chicago	1908	46	24	7	.774
Chicago	1909	35	19	10	.655
Chicago	1910	24	12	8	.600
Chicago	1911	33	16	9	.640
Chicago	1912	39	10	6	.625
Chi-Brook'n	1913	25	8	9	.471

ROLLER LOSES MATCH WITH JOE HEINRICH

CLAIMANT TO TITLE OF CHAMPION HEAVYWEIGHT WRESTLER FALLS HERE.

Dr. B. F. Roller, aspirant to and claimant of the title of champion heavyweight wrestler of the world, last night lost a handicap match to Joe Heinrich of this city when he failed to put the local man's shoulders to the mat three times in an hour. The best he could do was to secure two falls in 55 minutes.

The match was held in the Oregon

CATARRH LEADS TO CONSUMPTION

Catarrh is as much a blood disease as scrofula or rheumatism. It may be relieved, but it cannot be removed by simply local treatment. It breaks down the general health, weakens the lung tissues, and leads to consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla is so successful in the treatment of catarrh that it is known as the best remedy for this disease. It purifies the blood. Ask your druggist for it.

theater and was witnessed by perhaps 150 fans. It was a scientific exhibition of the grappling game and was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. Though no match in skill, strength, weight or experience with the Seattle physician, Heinrich proved that he knows the mat game and more than once brought cheers from the fans by wriggling out of tight places.

Roller consumed over half of his time in winning the first fall. It took him 22 1/2 minutes to get Heinrich's shoulders down. The second fall was won in 22 1/2 minutes leaving five minutes for the third fall. Though he made a valiant effort to fasten a hold on the local man that would force him to the mat in that limited time, the doctor was still trying valiantly when the hour mark was reached.

The wrestling bout was preceded by two boxing preliminaries. Willardson and Doherty boxed four rounds in which Doherty, more experienced and older, had the best of the argument. John Sylvester of Pilot Rock, put a colored man down and out in just two punches. A blow on the back of the head put the darky down for seven seconds before the first round was 15 seconds old, and when he rose, was sent down for the count by a smash to the jaw.

FIGHT DOPE.

BY HAL SHERIDAN. (Written for the United Press.) NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Big Jess Willard, who is matched to battle Jack Johnson somewhere outside these United States in the near future, has "passed the buck." In other words, he has put it squarely up to his manager and the men who are pushing the titular clash, whether he is to engage any of the numerous white hopes before the big mill and by doing so quiet the howls of the multitude, "who did you ever whip?"

Jess has shifted the matter to the shoulders of Tom Jones and Jack Curley. Stung by the numerous howls as to what he had ever accomplished and that he was afraid of the other "hopes," the big cowboy came forth recently with the announcement he was ready and willing to battle all comers, but his managers would not listen to it. Jess said he had always stood ready to show the world he was the one best bet to uncrown the negro, and particularly right now when there seems to be some doubt about the matter.

That certainly puts it up to Tom Jones, Jack Curley, et al. Could it be possible that these men are afraid to shove the big westerner through the ropes with some of the other hopes? Relief in sporting circles is gradually turning that way. If Jess is the best thing in his line it looks as though his managers would be willing for him to prove it. Merely pointing to "his great record," which is plentifully sprinkled with "K. O.'s" of various "Battling Battlers" and "Terrible Terrys" is not proving to the men who shove their shekels through the box office window that he is the man to whip the big black.

Willard has come out and declared himself. He asserts he is ready and willing to prove all his managers' claim for him. Now it's up to Messrs. Jones and Curley.

Without a doubt the game of golf is gaining converts, perhaps more rapidly than any other sport. Once looked upon as distinctly the sport of the men of some age and avoirdupois, it reaches now into all ages and types of men for its followers. Wide press-agenting, one golf expert declares, is responsible for the advance in golfing. Word that sturdy athletes like Christy Mathewson and other ballplayers had turned to chasing the little white ball across the green brought many followers to the game. They even report here that John J. McGraw of the Giants, is about to take up the pastime of John D. Kockleller and other notables. The report, however, seems to be based on nothing more tangible than the fact that "Jawn" was presented with a fine assortment of golf sticks.

The army of fanatics who play the game in this country was increased last year by more than 50,000, according to representatives of golf supply houses. At the recent meeting of the United States Golf association a gain in membership of 33 golf clubs with membership running into the thousands, was reported over the previous year.

The growth of municipal golf courses has brought out regiments of new golf enthusiasts in larger cities of the country. There is every reason to believe that the coming season will see a great host of recruits to the game.

German Cruiser Damaged

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The German cruiser Gazelle, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company, was struck by two torpedoes discharged by submarines and was discovered adrift off Rügen, in the Baltic Sea, by the Swedish ferry steamer King Gustave which towed her to Sassnitz. The Gazelle was badly damaged.

A Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam quotes a Berlin telegram received there as saying that the Gazelle was attacked near Rügen by a hostile submarine and suffered slight damage. There were no losses among her crew. The dispatch added that the cruiser had entered a German harbor in the Baltic.

Stories From the War Zone

VIENNA, Dec. 10.—(By Mail to New York.)—Lieutenant Franz Koleski, recovering in a local hospital from a bullet wound through his right lung, today gave a wonderfully vivid and gripping account of one more horror of the present great European war—the horror of the Galician marauders.

These marauders extend for almost endless miles through great stretches of Galicia. Their almost fathomless mire are the accumulation of centuries of decayed vegetable and animal matter. From them there issues constantly malaria and other miasmatic exhalations equally as deadly as the trenches and which a rank growth of grass conceals. Once a man by chance steps in this, he never comes forth again. And into one of these Lieutenant Koleski saw a whole regiment of Russian soldiers sink, sink—until the sickening-death-dealing mire closed over the start feeble gurgle of its struggling victims.

"Forward! Charge to the assault!" was the cry that rang down our ranks," said Lieut. Koleski. "The Russians saw us coming and for a moment stood still, as if too contracted, too perplexed to move. Then out rang their cry of 'About face' and away they went.

"But it was only for an instant. For at the next instant something strange and unusual happened. From what could be ascertained at the moment the Russians who had been the first to turn and run, had stopped suddenly. Perhaps it was for the purpose of reorganization, perhaps for the purpose of opposing resistance.

"Yet, so burning were the Austrians with the lust of the chase that they barely perceived this strange fact. They perceived only that they were constantly and rapidly approaching with every leap and bound to the ranks of the Russians, and then in an instant more they were all but upon them.

"Then it was that they perceived that the Russians who had so suddenly stopped themselves still kept their backs to the pursuing enemy. For the instant it aroused sudden suspicions. Perhaps they intended to defend themselves as they remained steadfast, upright, as though impaled.

"The nearest files also, one would have said, might suddenly have arrived at the edge of a precipice so sharp was their stop. They formed a solid cordon of men toward which the Austrians hurried themselves as towards a wall of stone. But even as the first of the Austrians all but reached the solid rank of Russians they became stupefied to see the latter still remaining unmoved, their backs still turned, and apparently without one thought of making the least defense.

"What is it?" the Austrians demanded of themselves. Was it another of those tricks of war? Was some terrible mine about to explode beneath their feet? Were the Russians merely waiting unmoved to see their pursuers suddenly wiped from the face of the earth?

"An uncanny fear ran down the lines of the entire Austrian force at the spectacle, an uncanny fear that the next instant crystallized as there again rang out from the officers the cry of 'Halt! Halt! Halt!'

"The officers not an instant too soon, had solved the mystery and then it was that there was unfolded a scene that made our blood run cold.

"Terrifying, frightful cries rose from those masses of Russian soldiers as with a supreme effort they turned their heads toward us and stretched out supplicating hands. Then it was that even a stranger fact dawned upon our appalled senses. The Russians were rapidly growing smaller and smaller. Their legs, little by little, went disappearing down through the rank grass; giving the impression as though all had suddenly squatted.

"Then, too, we perceived that all had freed themselves of their rifles, had thrown them away, and with contracted, contorted faces as though with one final collective spasm they stretched, not out, but up, up, up, their supplicating hands.

"Not one of us fired against the enemy.

"At first only perplexed, we became suddenly terrorized, when finally we grasped that which was happening before our eyes—the treacherous mire, under which was hidden the fathomless marshes had opened to swallow them up.

"All the efforts, persistent, desperate, which each made to liberate himself from the clammy element only engulfed him the deeper. If some poor soldier, after a thousand efforts, succeeded at last in extricating a leg, he found only the other more hopelessly than ever imbedded.

"First one, then another, then another, and finally all of that mass of writhing humanity, as if by a sudden inspiration of salvation, as from some inner subtle intuition that urged the distinction of the body's weight over the greatest surface possible or even that urged the tearing of the upper portion from that lower portion already imbedded, threw their bodies forward at full length on the deceiving grass before them. But already doomed, it served only to lengthen their torture.

"Cries, shrieks, groans, sighs, prayers and invocations some high, some desolate, some supplicating and some desperate, increased ever and ever as there increased before their vision the reality of the death that every moment made itself come closer and closer apparent.

"Our soldiers, whose humanity even for an instant deserted them even-

In the face of the greatest horror of the war, reached out the stocks of their rifles to the men whom but a moment before they had hoped to slay. The Russians grasped them—but it was a grasp that was futile. No power on earth could save them and with an 'About face,' the Austrian officers, turned their men, already terrified, white and trembling, and marched them away with never a look backwards at the horror that lay behind."

Arizona Prohibition Self-Executing.

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 10.—Judge Cooper held in the superior court that the prohibition amendment to the Arizona constitution adopted by the people last November is self-executing. This point the special federal tribunal, which recently decided the prohibition amendment itself was constitutional, refused to consider.

Recognized Advantages.

You will find that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has recognized advantages over most medicines in use for coughs and colds. It does not suppress a cough but loosens and relieves it. It aids expectoration and opens the secretions, which enables the system to throw off a cold. It counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia. It contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. For sale by all dealers—Adv.

The substitute has only the dealer's word to recommend it and selling it means more profit to him.

Offering things "just as good" is a practice not tolerated by reputable dealers.
