The Science of Medicine is Progressive

Judging from the trouble and expense people have in getting satisfactory glasses, there is room for improvement in glass fitting. A glass that was apparently alright at first but later requires changing, is absolute proof that it never was correct. We use a method of glass fitting that will straighten cross eyes without a surgical operation; the same principles will give you a glass that will never require changing, except for reading from the ages of 45 to 55.

Only one of the various systems can make the above statement good. We are the only refractician in Oregon using this system.

Newsy Notes of Pendleton

Experiments Made.
The physics class of the local high school went out on an experiment trip this morning in company with Prof. Livingston, science instructor of the high school. Experiments were made with sound.

Suit Against Former Clients.
A suit was instituted today by B. L. Ballard, local attorney, against James McAdwin and F. A. Bailey to collect $100 alleged to be due on a promissory note executed last September by the defendants to plaintiff and his partner, W. M. Peterson. G. H. Bishop is his attorney.

Holiday Tomorrow.
Tomorrow being a legal holiday, Lincoln Day, the local banks, postoffice and other public offices will be closed save that the postoffice as usual will have the general delivery open for an hour during the forenoon.

Preparing Garden.
In accordance with the call of spring the high school experiment garden is now being plowed up in preparation for the coming work in gardening. Mr. Gambee of the agriculture department has made quite elaborate plans for the running of the experiment garden this spring.

Panorama of "The Mine."
A panoramic view of "The Mine," a replica of a real mine which the U. S. Bureau of mines will install at the Panama Pacific exposition under the metallurgy building, was received this morning at the Commercial association and has been hung up on the walls.

Saw Basketball Game.
Lyman G. Rice of this city and Irvin G. Brooks of Athena drove to Walla Walla yesterday afternoon and last night witnessed the basketball game between the University of Oregon and Whitman college, a game that was won by Whitman 22 to 15. Tom Boylen, a Pendleton boy, played one of the guard positions for the Oregon team.

Looking for Son.
Mrs. C. Davis of Minneapolis has written to the local postoffice in an effort to locate her son, Floyd Sullivan, who was here the later part of December and wrote his mother from this place. She has not heard from him since then and is anxious to locate him.

Old Book on Lincoln.
John Hailey, Jr., has a copy of an old book regarding the early life of Lincoln, written in the year 1863 and which came into the hands of the local man a few years later. The book is by William M. Thayer and tells in story form of the hardships young Lincoln and the Lincoln family had to face in the primitive civilization in Kentucky and Illinois.

Game Tomorrow Night.
It was announced this morning by Coach Livingston of the local high school that the girls basket ball team is in the best shape to meet the Walla Walla squad which will play here tomorrow night in the high school gymnasium. There will also be a preliminary game played between the sophomores and the freshmen which is expected to be quite interesting. The game between the local girls and those of Walla Walla is expected to be the best to be played on the local floor this season.

Particular as to Company.
There is class distinction even in the criminal world. There are different levels of criminals and the higher-ups look with the same contempt upon the lowest order as some of our millionaires look upon the laboring man. Thus yesterday George Fay, who readily pleaded guilty to assault with attempt to rob and who has a certain pride in being a strong-arm man, urged the sheriff not to take

PRESIDENT'S NIECE IN PLAY.
Margaret Vale is in "A Gilded Fool" at Pastime Theatre Today.
"A Gilded Fool" is the main attraction, beginning today. This is the play made famous by Nat Goodwin. It is a production of the Box Office Attraction Company and the star of the cast is the well-known actor, William Farnum.
Margaret Vale, a niece of President Wilson, and an actress of some fame, also is featured.
Director Edgar Lewis, the noted producer who managed the William Fox picture of Henry Guy Carlton's comedy drama, "A Gilded Fool," in which Nat Goodwin made one of his greatest successes, was a much surprised man when he learned that Margaret Vale, who had been engaged for the ingenue role, was a niece of the President and as much at home in the White House as before the footlights.
Miss Vale, whose striking personality is bound to excite interest among the spectators of "A Gilded Fool," plays the part of a young girl with a distinction and individuality that suggests all the culture and refinement of the South, which is hers in a full measure.
She is the daughter of Dr. Smyth Flinn, a noted Presbyterian pastor of South Carolina. She was an amateur actress of considerable attainment and her sparkling vivacity made her a general favorite throughout her home state. As the wife of Dr. George Howe, professor of Latin in the University of North Carolina, she became a great society favorite and entertained such eminent personages as ex-Ambassador James Bryce of England; Jerome K. Jerome, Sarah Bernhardt and a host of other distinguished men and women, including President Wilson, then head of Princeton University.
