TO SEE HER FACE.

I. You know Miss Spring is coming. To fix up all the place. For a mornin' glory's climb. To see Miss Mary's face.

II. So long they have been waitin'. One little smile to wim. To see her at the window. With the roses lookin' in.

III. But welcome, Mister Bluebird. And dress up in your best. And welcome Brother Robin. In your crimson-colored vest.

IV. I know how well you love her. With love so sweet and true. But there is one comes singing. That loves her more than you. —Frank L. Stanton.

Most Americans will thoroughly uphold the administration in its protest against the use of the American flag by British merchant vessels. Had this country let the Lusitania incident go without a protest we would then be in no position to complain effectively if a German submarine should by mistake sink a bona fide American steamer.

It is said international law affords no justification for such misuse of our flag though it is generally recognized that a warship may make use of another flag to deceive an enemy, the only requirement being that the warship's true colors be shown before she starts an engagement. Under the English law of 1894 Great Britain allows ships of other nations the right to use the English flag in order to escape capture, if they so desire. However, England is far from being the whole world and it does not necessarily follow that because she is willing to countenance this practice other countries must do the same. The substance of the whole thing is that by the course taken the British are trying to save their own shipping by endangering American ships. It is not action to promote great friendliness on the part of Uncle Sam.

If the action of the interstate commerce commission in allowing railroads to grant lower rates to coast cities in order to meet water competition. It is inexcusable to allow the railroads to give cheap rates to coast cities in order to meet water competition. If freight can be handled cheaper through the canal than by rail let it come by water. This is the natural order. When the railroads are allowed to make unnaturally low rates to meet ocean competition it simply means they will tax interior points that much more in order to make up their loss. It is a policy of robbing Peter to pay Paul and it is a perversion of the natural law which suggests that rates, when regulated by the government, be based on the principle of making a reasonable profit above the cost of service—not on sticking the interior because it is helpless in the matter.

It is easy to understand why Foreign Minister Grey has no hope for early peace. Plainly it is the purpose of the allies indicated. not to end the war until they can bring Germany to her knees. They want France to once more have Alsace and Lorraine. They want Belgium to be restored and amply repaid for her losses. They want to put a permanent crimp in German militarism. Unless they can bring these things about the allies will not consent to peace. Unless of course Germany should be able to fight them successfully and hold them all at a distance. This the allies think the Germans can do for a limited time only and they have many reasons for that belief.

On the other hand there are good reasons for believing the Germans are capable of a tremendous defensive struggle and there is no certainty they cannot resist the foe indefinitely. It is very certain the Germans will refuse to consent to the terms that would be demanded of them, unless first they are conquered. Therefore the signs are for a long war and no one can tell how long it may be if affairs in the various warring countries continue under the control of the men now in power.

Senator Jones of Washington spent the night talking in the senate in order to prevent a vote upon the shipping bill.

Senator Jones' upon the shipping bill. Jones comes from a state whose prosperity would be peculiarly enhanced by the shipping act, though he either hasn't sense enough to know it or has shipping trust reasons for not wanting to know it.

In the course of his speech Jones declared that the advocates of the bill were trying to pass it by brute force. Which is Jones' way of saying that a majority of the people's representatives in the senate favor the bill and desire it to be brought to a vote.

It would be interesting and instructive to be able to look inside the Jones head while all the wheels were in operation. —San Francisco Examiner.

Meanwhile the United States has no ships while another harvest is coming on and there are great trade opportunities going to waste because of the senate filibuster.

The legislature will have some heavy work during the remainder of the session.

The state's new prison policy is evidently going to be expensive.

THIS MAY ENTERTAIN

GOING THE LIMIT.

Jones was one of those men who grumbled at everything and everybody. He was once attacked by inflammatory rheumatism and was carefully nursed by his wife, who was very devoted to him, in spite of his fault-finding disposition. His suffering caused her to burst into tears sometimes as she sat by his bedside. One day a friend came in and asked him how he was getting on. "Badly, badly!" he exclaimed; "and it's all my wife's fault!" "Is it possible?" asked the friend, in surprise. "Yes. The doctor told me that humidity was bad for me, and there that woman sits and cries, just to make it moist in the room."

WORTHY TO WEAR A CROWN.

"Are you sure you love your neighbor as yourself?" asked St. Peter, who was cross-examining the new arrival. "Yes," answered the applicant for a golden crown. "For ten years he used my telephone to carry on his business and I never complained."

"Enter, my good man," said St. Peter, with much feeling.—Birmingham Age.

SENT IT BACK.

"Ma'am, there's a man at the door with a parcel for you." "What is it, Bridget?" "It's a fish, ma'am and it's marked C. O. D." "Then make the man take it straight back to the dealer. I ordered trout." —Builders Gazette.

Winter Doubles Work.

In summer the work of eliminating poisons and acids from the blood is helped by perspiration. In cold weather, with little out door work or exercise to cause sweating, the kidneys have to do double work. Foley Kidney Pills help overworked, weak and diseased kidneys to filter and cast out of the blood the waste matter that causes pains in aches back, rheumatism, lumbago, stiffness of joints, sore muscles and other ills resulting from improper elimination. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

LIQUOR AND LIVERS.

Cirrhosis of the liver is one of the several prospects the moderate drinker must bear in mind.

In the development of a case of cirrhosis, or hardening of the liver there are four distinct stages. First, the stage of hearty, almost tigerish appetite. Under the irritation of alcohol the appetite calls for all sorts of burdensome and indigestible things, and if they are not supplied on the free lunch counter the drinker will get them somewhere else. He eats like a horse at all hours of day and night and feels proud of his capacity; also of his fine flushed and manly complexion; yes, and in a little while he finds a base pride in the little corporation which begins to grow out.

In the second stage the now seasoned, good natured fellow takes his social glass rather more frequently than he likes to admit; has a big circle of jovial, fun loving acquaintances, and goes to lodge with unfailing regularity, having now married and settled down to quiet home life. He notices that lots of gas comes off his stomach, and his clothes seem tighter and tighter. He is also likely to have trouble from hemorrhoids, and he gets the habit of taking cleansing salts once or twice a week. He feels a little relief after taking a few drinks; but a little worse after the temporary narcotic wears away.

Insidiously, gradually, the victim begins to realize that he has got a stomach. He realizes it both in the vernacular and the anatomical sense; it sticks out and jiggles and grumbles when he moves about with anything resembling activity, and it reminds him of his sin on many a restless night.

Third stage. The doctor finds the liver enlarged. Prescribes teetotalism. Patient declares he'd just as soon never take another drink—doesn't really care for it that way. But nevertheless he continues drinking, purely in a social way. The fellows might make fun of him if he should really swear off for good.

Doctor advises him to cut out breakfast, cut out meat, become a vegetarian. Doctor knows well enough that a non-meat diet tends to kill the craving for booze. Also he knows that overeating stimulates the appetite for alcohol.

Up to this point it is possible for the man to retrace his steps and recover his health. Will he do it? Well, it all depends on his heredity, his will power—and the fellows!

The fourth stage is the stage of degeneration. The liver becomes as hard as rocks, and as useless. The legs incline to swell in the daytime; more or less dropsy accumulates in the abdomen; morning retching and vomiting becomes the rule, and at times a little blood is vomited. Now is the winter of his discontent. He becomes a patient in real earnest.

THE LAND BREATHE LIFE.

I. Life in the old land, people—Havin' our time an' chance; Toll all day In the old-time way.

But never too tired to dance; An' that is why, in the twilight gray. We dance the shadows of Care away.

II. Life in the old land, people—We toil in the fields of life; For golden miles The harvest smiles.

Far from the storm an' strife, An' when Toll takes us to twilight gray We dance the shadows of Care away.

OLD-TIME COLD CURE— DRINK HOT TEA!

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Tee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time during the day or before retiring. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking up a cold.

Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe and harmless.

RUB RHEUMATISM FROM STIFF, ACHING JOINTS

Rub Soreness from joints and muscles with a small trial bottle of old St. Jacobs Oil

Stop "dosing" Rheumatism. It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right on the "tender spot," and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism cure which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache, neuralgia.

Limber up! Get a 25 cent bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.
