HUSBAND ALLEGES HIS WIFE IS CRUEL; WANTS A DIVORCE

HELIX LIVERYMAN AND FARMER FILES SUIT IN CIRCUIT COURT HERE.

The domestic trials and vicissitudes which follow an "unsight and unseen" marriage are very fully and very painfully told in a divorce complaint filed today by Charles Stanton, Helix liveryman and farmer, against his wife, Elizabeth Stanton. Incidentally this is the third divorce suit in which this couple have figured as principals in little more than two years.

Stanton is asking for a divorce on the general grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment and he relates a tale which, if true, goes far toward supporting Kipling's theory that "the female of the species is more deadly than the male."

The couple were married in March, 1906, at Cairo, Ill., as the result of negotiations carried on entirely by correspondence. The bride at that time was a widow of 39 with four children and the bridegroom a widower of 44 with three children. He brought his wife and step-children from Illinois to Idaho and from Idaho to Helix where they have resided for the most time since.

In Dec. 1912, Mrs. Stanton started suit for divorce against her husband, accusing him of cruelty and infidelity, but had the case dismissed the following month. In Dec. 1913, she again commenced suit and this time her husband contested the proceedings in court. The result was that the suit was ordered dismissed by the court after the plaintiff had failed to prove the material allegations in her complaint.

Stanton, in his complaint, charges his wife with having an ungovernable tongue, that she has slandered him 100 times he relates of slanderous accusations, she alleges that by her persuasive arts and devices she has at different times induced him to deed property to her and has then refused to let him use the rentals for paying off debts on other property. Just lately, he alleges, she has refused to sign with him a mortgage which enable him to save land he has in Idaho. She has accused him more than temper and an ungovernable tongue, and contumacious actions without any foundation in fact, has reviled and cursed him and scattered wicked tales about him. Moreover she has cost him in unnecessary litigation and unnecessary trips more than $4000 during their married life. For all of this he thinks he should be entitled to be released from the ties that bind him. His attorney is W. M. Peterson.

projects and make use of the water within five years time.

Under the law waterusers not satisfied with the ruling by the water board may carry the matter into the state courts.

Reservation Rights.

It is known that the United States government will carry the case involving Indian rights to the supreme court of the United States if necessary.

Major Swartzlander has talked at various times with Mr. Rankin on the subject and at all times the federal attorney has expressed his faith in ultimately winning out. This belief in the ability of the government to establish the Indian claims is based on former decisions by the United States supreme court wherein with reference to cases arising on reservations in Montana the supreme court ruled in favor of the redmen.

In his statement today State Engineer Lewis said each Indian case was considered separately, as were all other cases, and the Indian cases were not considered collectively. He said he could not give the general reason for the ruling in the Indian cases.

Remember the Old Reliable.

Saturday night dance in Eagle-Woodman hall continues to run and will run every Saturday night, winter and summer, rain or shine. Best of music by Pendleton United Orchestra. All are welcome and assured a good time.—Adv.

To Fight Holdover Canker.

The Milton-Freewater Fruit Protective league is planning to assist the county fruit inspector in clearing orchards in the valley of hold-over canker.

The committee has divided the territory into 12 districts and named committeemen for each district. In sections where more than one is named, the first will serve as chairman.—Milton Eagle.

Killing Coyotes.—Henry Burg was in from Seven Mile this week for a hair cut, and while having his locks removed vouchsafed the information that he had killed 15 coyotes last week and one so far this week. When asked how he exterminated the varmints he said he used both poison, traps, electricity and his rifle. According to Mr. Burg, Glen Bushie and Fred Beck are not meeting with success in his locality. They had only secured one coyote during the past week.—Pilot Rock Record.

Early Plowing in Baker.—Spring plowing has begun in the East Eagle district, northeast of Baker. This is the first time in history that plowing has started so early, or, in fact that ground has been broken at all in February in Baker county.

Continued thaws of the last few weeks have taken the frost entirely out of the ground. The first rancher to begin spring plowing was E. S. Thompson of Sparta. He will plant his homestead to grain. All ranchers in the East Eagle district propose to plant much more grain than usual.

Russian Wheat at 20 Cents.—Wheat in Russia is quoted at 20 cents a bushel with no market is the statement contained in a letter from Russia seen by James Johns of this city yesterday. Mr. Johns was at Heppner Junction and encountered a German-Russian by the name of Schreiber who had just received the letter from his father. The letter also stated that there are 350,000,000 bushels of surplus wheat in Russia, bottled up by the war. When this wheat is turned loose upon the world market, there is bound to be a big drop in the market, Mr. Johns thinks.

NEWS OF FARM AND RANGE

Must Reread Barley.—G. W. Staggs and Sen have found that eighty acres of barley has frozen out at their lower ranch (formerly the Wade place) on Dry creek, and will re-seed the tract so soon as weather conditions are favorable. The wheat was not damaged, and looks well.—Weston Leader.

Shipping Much Fertilizer.—Nearly forty cars of fertilizer have been shipped to Walla Walla this season by the Weston brickyard, says the Leader. The yard pays 50 cents per ton for this material, thus giving local people an opportunity to clean up their barnyards at a profit.

Install Babcock Test.—A standard Babcock milk and cream tester has been added to the laboratory equipment of the Weston schools in order to accommodate the pupils who are keeping dairy herd records. Tests for percentage of butter fat have to be made by these pupils at least once a month. Anyone so desiring may have tests made free at the school at any time, the only requirement being a small sample of the milk to be tested. Care should be taken that the milk be thoroughly mixed before sampling. Here is a chance to learn whether your cows are mere "boarders" or not.—Weston Leader.
